Lindbergh 1927-1932.
Money Made Quickly.
The Unborn Mouse Skin.
Do You Know the Words?

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FIVE YEARS ago yesterday, Col. Lindbergh started his flight across the ocean. You know how his country's crime wave has rewarded him.

The question is, can anything, even the hideous murder of a child, persuade this country to do something about its bootleg-crime form of government?

TESTIMONY BEFORE the Senate Banking and Currency Committee shows that you can make money rapidly in Wall Street, if you know how. One little group, operating a pool in radio stock, made five million dollars in a week.

A big concern paid $23,500,000 to another concern, that represented a total investment of $1,750,000, and $90,000,000 worth of a certain stock, with a well known name back of it, was sold to the public at $52 a share. It is worth $1 a share now.

The financial answer to the question: "Where are the snows of yesteryear?" is "They have melted."

FROM THE skin of an embryonic baby mouse, so small that it isn't born yet, scientists at the Rockefeller Institute take a substance that stops cancerous growth in a full sized mouse. Rockefeller scientists, constantly fighting disease, discover in the skin of unborn mammals, including ourselves, a substance that regulates growth, not only in cancers, but all growth, compelling a finger, or an arm, for instance, to stop growing, when it is just the right length.

We are truly "fearfully and wonderfully made."

WHILE ROCKEFELLER Institute scientists fight cancer with unborn mouse skin, scientists of the General Electric Company at Schenectady find a way to send "a secret voice on a beam of light" from an airship to the ground. No enemy could pick up that message, as radio messages can be picked up. In war, airships could send information to the earth in safety.

The light comes to a mirror on the ground, and a photo-electric cell "transforms the light-borne frequencies into sound and voice" with sufficient energy to be sent broadcast.

CONGRESSMAN FULLER, of Arkansas, says every civil service employe should prove his ability to "sing, recite, or write from memory" the words of the Star Spangled Banner. He must know them all by heart.

Does President Hoover know by heart all the words of that estimable song? Does Congressman Fuller know them? What percentage of the Senate and House members know them?

A popular song says those words are known only to the Armenians and the Greeks.

THE STOCK market heard that a powerful financial group, including Owen D. Young, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Charles E. Mitchell, Walter C. Teagle, Clarence M. Woolley and others, will undertake to start the flow of money through the arteries of business. At that news, the little stocks went up as soon as the exchange opened.

A little encouragement puts them up, but, alas, they go down so easily, and stay down so long. The London Times says it's all our fault for accumulating so much gold.

PRESIDENT BUTLER, of Columbia University, says Jefferson's Democratic party, and Lincoln's Republican party are both dead, and if thoughtful people had a real leader to follow, they would "sweep our whole discredited political machinery into the dust heap." Dr. Butler wants a third party.

Questions for Dr. Butler: First, how many "thoughtful people" are there?

Second, what good would a third party do among citizens 50 per cent of whom will not take the trouble to vote?

RUSSIA, NOT willing to be found unprepared if war comes, is training not only men, but also women and children, in the use of firearms. In addition, millions of young Russians study aeronautics, in preparation for flying, and thousands are trained as actual fliers.

In Switzerland, every able-bodied man is taught to use a gun, possesses one, and, at intervals, must prove that it is in good working order and that he still knows how to use it.

Uncle Sam might train twenty thousand or more young Americans as pilots, paying them for their time, summoning them once in so often to prove that they are still able to fly. We shall need pilots some day.

ADVOCATES OF birth control ask Congress to legalize distribution of contraceptive information, at the first hearing since 1873, when birth control information was declared illegal.

Birth control could be made useful, if morons and semi-morons could be persuaded to use it. But they will not take the trouble, and the others, as a rule, have too few children, as it is.

LINDY HUNT TURNS TO GANGSTER

Police Consider Theory of Faked 'Deception' by Norfolk Shipbuilder

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 21.—(AP.)—Search was intensified today for the mysterious gangster, believed to be connected with the Lindbergh baby kidnap case, who recently said in Maryland before the baby's body had been found, that the baby was dead.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, disclosed for the first time yesterday that this gangster was being sought, and today he gave him first mention in his bulletin of developments.

Meanwhile, the possibility that John Hughes Curtis' story of his astonishing lie may in itself have been false in part, received police attention today.

A portion of the Norfolk shipbuilder's confession that his intermediation in the Lindbergh baby case was a hoax already was considered as disproved. That was the portion in which Curtis explained his purpose in the elaborate lie was to get money by the sale of his story to newspapers.

Police pointed out that the hoax was three weeks old before Curtis attempted to sell his story; and that even so, he could not hope to find any buyers unless he recovered the stolen Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., which he must have known was impossible, inasmuch as his negotiations were not negotiations at all.

Brooklyn Rejects Trade for Meine

NEW YORK, May 21.—(INS.)—The proposed Dodger-Bucco swap for Heinie Meine, Pittsburgh hurler, struck a deadlock today when the Flatbush board of directors flatly turned down the Pittsburgh trade offer.

The Pirates asked Babe Phelps, most effective of any of the Brooklyn hurlers; a catcher and an infielder for Meine.

McKeesport Plants Receive Pipe Order

Operation of the McKeesport plants of the National Tube Company soon will be increased as a result of an order for 8,000 tons of seamless tubing by the Iraq Petroleum Company.

Dry Debate Rebuttal on Air Tonight

Rebuttal arguments in Pittsburgh's radio debate on the prohibition repeal question will be heard over WCAE tonight at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. William Maclay Hall, socially prominent former W. C. T. U. worker, and the Rev. Dr. James E. Wagner, pastor of the Mt. Lebanon Methodist Church, principals, debated last night, Mrs. Hall taking the affirmative and Dr. Wagner the negative.

Mrs. Hall, arguing that prohibition is a failure, opened the debate with a plea to legalize liquor and bring about temperance and respect for the law. She said:

"Has prohibition prohibited? I ask anyone who goes into the world—anyone but a 'shut-in.'

MAN KILLED IN 'HILL' FIGHT

An unidentified Italian, was shot and fatally wounded today police reported in a fight in an alleged speakeasy at 95 Washington place.

He died soon after being taken to Passavant Hospital by a Yellow Cab driver, who told police two youths who loaded the wounded man into the cab, leaped out en route to the hospital.

Police raide dthe place, confiscated beer, whisky and two slot machines, they reported, and arrested four men. The latter were docketed at the Center Avenue Station as Harry Thomas, Sherman avenue; Michael Spade, 1141 Brookline boulevard; John Burgunski, 2126 Carey way, and Frank Tavano, 95 Washington place.

The dead man was shot in the back, the bullet passing through his body, the coroner reported.

Pittsburgh Youth Wins Piano Title

R. Earl Wild, of 313 Spokane avenue, a senior in Carrick High School, was one of the winners in the piano solo contests of the National School Band and Orchestra Association at Marion, Ind., his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Royland Wild, were informed today.

Wild, a pupil of Selmar Janson, of the Carnegie School of Fine Arts, won the city and state competitions of the Music Forensic League, the finals of which were held in Pittsburgh, April 29 and 30.

COURT BARES DRY RAIDERS' TIPSTERS

Ruling in 'Two-Gun' Wilson Case Prevents Shielding Of Informers by U. S.

PHILADELPHIA, May 21. — (AP.) — Anonymity is stripped from dry raid informers by a ruling of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which authorities said would have far-reaching consequences.

The ruling sustained Federal Judge John P. Nields, of Wilmington, Del., in holding in contempt of court Harold D. (Two-Gun) Wilson, a federal prohibition agent, because he refused to name the member of the Democratic League of Delaware who enabled him to raid the organization's headquarters.

In an opinion written by Judge Oliver Dickinson, the Appellate Court held that this information cannot be withheld when it may affect the rights of the government or the defendants. Judge Nelson McVicar, of Pittsburgh, dissented.

At the trial of the league on a charge of possessing liquor, defense counsel demanded Wilson name the man who furnished him with keys to the place, on the ground that the member might refute Wilson's testimony.

U. S. GIRLS BEAT BRITISH AT GOLF

WENTWORTH, England, May 21. — (INS.) — Britain's finest at golf were down to complete defeat at the hand of the best from America in the foursomes of the first Anglo-American women's team match over the Wentworth course today.

British champions and ex-champions fell by the wayside as three determined and capable American pairs made a clean sweep of the foursomes.

The results were as follows:

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare and Mrs. Opal Hill (United States) defeated Joyce Wethered and Miss Wanda Morgan, of England, 1 up.

Miss Helen Hicks and Virginia Van Wie (United States) defeated Miss Enid Wilson and Mrs. J. B. Watson, of England, 2 and 1.

Miss Maureen Orcutt and Mrs. Leona Cheney (United States) defeated Mrs. Molly Gourlay and Doris Park, England, 1 up.

SPEEDY CABIN MONOPLANE THAT CARRIED MRS. PUTNAM ACROSS THE SEA TO IRELAND

ENGINE TROUBLE, STORM FORCE DOWN FIRST GIRL TO FLY SEA

CULMORE, Ulster, Ireland, May 21.—(AP.)—Amelia Earhart Putnam, the first woman ever to fly the Atlantic alone, landed here this afternoon. Culmore is five miles from Londonderry.

LONDON, May 21.—(AP.)—The Press Association reported from Londonderry, Ireland, this afternoon that Amelia Earhart Putnam, solo trans-Atlantic flier, had landed there.

Mrs. Putnam, the news agency said, was unhurt. She had trouble with her exhaust manifold, which had burned out.

Her monoplane was reported undamaged.

The Press Association quoted Mrs. Putnam:

"I had this trouble (with the exhaust manifold) for about 10 hours, and for a lot of the way I was flying through storms—mist, rain and a little fog."

When Mrs Putnam landed, the Press Association said, she declared:

"I've done it!

"I had to land here in the pastures outside Londonderry.

"I'm not a bit hurt, and I think the plane is al right.

"In addition to the exhaust manifold, the gasoline gauge had broken, probably in the storm last night, and there was a little leakage, so I decided to come down. I landed in an open field.

GLAD OF SUCCESS

"To my friends in New York I want to send this message: I am very glad to have come across successfully, but I am sorry indeed I did not make France. I am going to speak to my husband as soon as I can by the Atlantic phone."

The Press Association said Mrs. Putnam telephoned to their office from a hotel at Londonderry. She was quoted:

"My first thought on getting here was to call up to so that my safe landing might be known without delay."

The field in which the landing was made is several miles from Londonderry, the Press Associa-

Overjoyed by Wife's Victory, Putnam Says

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—George Palmer Putnam was informed by telephone from London today in a conversation with the London Daily Sketch that Amelia Earhart, his wife, had landed in Ireland. The Sketch told Putnam that its correspondent at Londonderry had interviewed Miss Earhart after she landed.

Putnam declared:

"Of course, I'm overjoyed, but we who know her well were sure she'd do it.

"She has more calm courage than any person I ever know. Please let me thank the Associated Press warmly for being the first to break the news to me."

Endres Dies In Rome Crash

ROME, May 21.—(AP.)—Capt. George Endres, who flew from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to Budapest, Hungary, with Capt. Alexander Magyar in July, 1931, was killed today as he was landing here to attend the convention of trans-Atlantic fliers, which opens tomorrow.

Explosion Destroys Wine Worth Million

SANTA ROSA, Cal., May 21.—(INS.)—A terrific explosion of ammonia tanks here early today violently shook Santa Rosa. Fire followed the explosion and completely destroyed a $300,000 cold-storage plant.

The fire spread to a government bonded winery, and 300,000 gallons of wine, valued at more than $1,000,000, was destroyed. The wine ran ankle deep through Santa Rosa streets.

Two firemen and two employes of the plant were overcome by the ammonia fumes.

DO-X SPEEDING TO AZORES

NEW YORK, May 21.—(INS.)—The German flying boat DO-X, according to a wireless message received by the Radio Marine Corporation this morning, is making good progress approximately 450 miles northwest of the Azores, its first objective.

The message which was picked up reads:

"Position 1100 G. M. T. 44 N. 41.15. Wind west southwest. Sahrt, 90 knots. All clear."

Fourteen hundred Greenwich marine time would be 10 a. m., easter daylight time. The one German word "sahrt" means "speed," which would mean that the huge ship is traveling at 90 knots an hour, which is a little faster than 90 miles.

The DO-X took off from Holywood, Newfoundland, at 5:30 a. m., Pittsburgh time, today on the second lap of its flight homeward to Lake Constance, Switzerland.

Paul Mellon to Sail For Visit to Father

Paul Mellon, son of Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, is expected to sail from New York within the next two or three days to visit his father in London. He left Pittsburgh Thursday night.

tion said. The owner of it was the first to greet Mrs. Putnam.

CROSSED AS PASSENGER

Once before, in June 1928, the flier crossed the ocean in an airplane. But that time she was a passenger. Asked to compare her first flight with her second she said:

"There is no comparison. On this go I was flying low the whole time and had to rely on myself. I am afraid I am a bit deaf after the terrible roar of the engine in my ears all the time, but at any rate I have done it.

"I want to find out what I shall do. I think I may go to London, but the only clothes I have with me are the flying suit on me now and I haven't much cash.

"I'll probably go to London after the week-end, but it all depends on what my husband thinks about it."

LINDY ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. Putnam reached Ireland on the fifth anniversary of the day on which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh completed his memorable New York-to-Paris flight. She left Harbor Grace exactly five years to the day after Lindbergh left New York.

A quart of chicken soup was all the food she took. She said:

"You don't want to eat much on these trips."

The aviatrix left Harbor Grace suddenly after her adviser, Brent Balchen, Com. Byrd's South Pole [illegible] sight.

She stepped into the inclosed cockpit of her red and gold monoplane, quickly shook hands with Balchen and Eddie Gorski, her mechanic, waved a hasty farewell to others gathered to see her off, and piloted her plane skillfully down the runway. It was a perfect getaway, and the ship was soon lost to sight.

Not Worried Yet, Amelia's Friends Say

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart did not get to Paris from Newfoundland in her estimated 15 hours today, but her friends here said they still had a five-hour "worry margin."

The plane carried enough fuel to keep it in the air for 20 hours under normal conditions. That period ends at 1:51 p. m., Pittsburgh time today. There will be time enough to start worrying, her friends said, if she should not be heard from by then.

Drastic 'Gas' Price War Looms in East

NEW YORK, May 21.—(INS)—A drastic price war in the gasoline industry was scheduled to start today.

Big oil companies were expected to reduce prices four cents a gallon on gasoline today to meet underselling competition of independents. Heretofore, the larger concerns charged 16½ cents a gallon, which included the 3-cent state tax. They probably will meet the price of the smaller firms, at 12½ cents a gallon, including tax.

Ammonia Study Wins Medal for Scientist

CHICAGO, May 21.—(INS)—Dr. Edward Curtis Franklin, champion of the theory that life can exist if there is only plenty of ammonia, today possessed the Willard Gibbs medal for eminent scientific research.

Professor emeritus of organic chemistry at Leland Stanford University, Dr. Franklin has made outstanding discoveries as to how ammonia can be combined with other substances, opening a new field of creative chemistry.

Butler Street Girl Missing From Home

Police today began a search for Catherine Centenna, 17, of 7218 Butler street, who disappeared from home several days ago. Her mother told police she started a shopping trip and had not been heard from. She wore a long black coat, light silk dress and hat, black suede shoes and carried a pink handbag. She is five feet eight inches tall and has black hair and brown eyes.

Parked Auto Looted Of $300 Fur and $6

A $300 fur neckpiece and $6 was stolen by thieves who broke into the parked automobile of Ruth French, of 263 Lehigh avenue, she reported to city detectives today. The loss was discovered by Miss French upon her return from a visit with friends in Lytton avenue, near Bigelow boulevard.

FRANCE LEADS IN OREGON

PORTLAND, Ore., May 21.—(AP)—Joseph I. France of Maryland, Republican, and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Democrat, held apparently safe leads today in the Oregon presidential preference primary.

On returns from 677 of 1,783 precincts in yesterday's balloting, France led President Hoover 15,001 to 7,252. France's name was the only one appearing on the Republican ballot and those who voted for the President wrote in his name.

Hoover supporters had hoped he would win the Oregon delegates, thus assuring him an indisputably pledged majority at the national nominating convention.

From 677 precincts the New York governor received 11,107 votes to 2,847 for Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma. Murray was Roosevelt's only listed opponent. The name of Alfred E. Smith, party candidate in 1928, was written in only 442 times.

The successful candidates will control Oregon's delegates at the national conventions until they personally release them or all hope of victory is abandoned. The state has 13 Republican and 10 Democratic votes.

TORCH SLAYING SUSPECT HELD

Luigi Coffora, 28, of Negley avenue, Turtle Creek, was being held in the county jail today in connection with the torch murder of Antonio (Toto) Argenti, near Turtle Creek, October 8.

County Detectives Joseph Bodner and Edward Frank said they had been searching for Coffora since the murder. They said Toto was last seen alive in Coffora's Turtle Creek store the night before his burned body was found in a thicket. After the killing, Coffora sold his place and disappeared, the detectives said.

A coroner's inquest named Philip Spallino as the slayer of Toto and Jack Palmere, killed October 7, in Wylie avenue.

HUNT GANGSTER IN LINDY CASE

have had some other motive, quite removed from the sale of his "story," for inventing the deception. It was recalled that due to the "delicacy" of the negotiations with a vessel at sea, coast guard craft refrained from their usual careful patrols in some waters, fearful of causing the collapse of negotiations for the baby's ransom.

As a result of this relaxed vigilance, rum runners were able to move more freely and to land cargoes of liquor without running the customary gauntlet of federal craft, authorities pointed out.

From Norfolk came word that an attorney had been engaged to defend Curtis from the charge of obstructing justice on which he is held, in lieu of $10,000 bail, in jail at Flemington, N. J.

The Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, whose connection with Curtis as an "intermediary" in the hunt for the Lindbergh baby is also under scrutiny, declined again to come to New Jersey for questioning, even with the police offering to pay the expense. He has offered to tell what he knows to a representative of the police who will come to Norfolk.

CONDON PRAISED

There have been no developments in the hunt for the man or men who kidnaped and killed the 20-month-old Lindbergh child the night of March 1 last.

Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the ransom negotiations, was praised last night by Col. Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's friend and counsel. Breckinridge said:

"The Doctor is a very active and wonderful man. It is too bad half the people of the country are not just like him, with the same measure of integrity and high resolve."

Suffering in State Is Cited By Catholic Women in Message to Congressmen

Conscious of the suffering in Pennsylvania and Allegheny County through unemployment, the advisory senate of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association, representing 15,000 women in Western Pennsylvania, today asked Congress to pass the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan for needed public works.

Miss Martha C. McEntee, president of the senate, in letters to Pennsylvania senators and congressmen indorsed the loan and asked them to work for its immediate passage. The memorial stated:

"Due to the unprecedented crisis in the lives of more than a million Pennsylvania families whose income has been cut off by unemployment, and due to the suffering to those women and children who are helpless victims of conditions, the advisory senate of the L. C. B. A. asks Congress to use every means in its command to combat the conditions, and to pass the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan."

The memorial also called attention to present relief funds which, for the most part, will be exhausted by August.

KLINE DEFENSE WANTS ACTION

Counsel for Bertram L. Succop is apparently satisfied with the motions filed for him at Butler for a new trial and in arrest of judgment.

While the defense counsel seems eager for an early argument on the motions, there were no indications of haste from the prosecution. District Attorney Andrew T. Park said yesterday he can see no need for rushing the arguments. Attorney Earl F. Reed of the prosecution is in Washington on business.

Counsel for Mayor Charles H. Kline, in addition to these two points, moved to set aside the verdict on the fifth count, the one on which he was convicted.

The jury found Succop guilty on 29 counts, 24 of which were the alleged trick meat bids which included one cent sirloin steak that the city never bought. Friends of Succop point out that should one of the meat counts be ruled out, all 24 will be eliminated.

Third Man Arrested In Fatal Hill Row

Leroy McCreery, 38, of 407 River avenue, was fatally injured in a fight in Wylie avenue, near Congress street, Thursday night, over a cigaret, police said today as they arrested a third man said to have been involved in the argument. The three suspects held are Orlando Magnotti, 24, of 816 Crawford street, arrested early today, and Charles Peters, of Verona, McCreery's companion, and Raymond Davis, also of Verona. They will be turned over to the Coroner today. McCreery died late yesterday in Passavant Hospital.

Beat Man Resenting Insults to Woman

After resisting insults to his woman companion, R. A. McPherson, 30, of 521 Orchard avenue, he told police, was taken from his automobile last night at Fifth avenue and Grant street, and beaten. His alleged assailants, Early Long, 25, of 1331 Penn avenue, and Abe Sposato, 25, of 1416 Dormont avenue, were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct. McPherson was detained on a similar charge.

Three months' jail terms and $500 fines were imposed upon William P. Schaeffer and Frank Checkeye by Federal Judge R. M. CITY PAY SLASH TO BE ASKED

Drastic demands for wage reductions from top to bottom of the city payroll and for curtailment of city expenses will be made by business and civic leaders who have called a meeting for next week to discuss the decline in city revenues, it is reported from well-informed sources.

Among the organizations called together at the Chamber of Commerce for a meeting Thursday are the Retail Merchants' Association, the Building Owners' and Managers' Association, the Allied Boards of Trade, the Bureau of Governmental Research, the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, the Building and Loan Associations of Allegheny County, and the Smithfield Street, Fifth Avenue and Wood Street associations.

A decrease of $2,266,622 in city revenues for the first four and one-half months of the year served as an alarm signal that a big deficit looms unless expenses are reduced.

ROBBER SEIZES THEATER CASH

City-wide search was continued by police today for the thug who bound S. George Meminger, of 306 Atwood street, manager of the Ritz Theater, 219 Fifth avenue, in the theater office near closing time last night and escaped with $244.85, the day's receipts.

The robber, apparently familiar with the office routine, knocked on the door and Meminger opened it, to be confronted with a revolver. Meminger was compelled to open a safe, but before the gunman looted it he compelled the manager partially to to disrobe and lie, face down, on the floor. Meminger's hands were bound behind his back with adhesive tape and his right leg was tied to a radiator with a piece of wire the man severed from the telephone in the office.

Meminger told police the knock he answered was similar to a signal used by employes of the theater.

Fourth Arson Ring Suspect Arrested

A fourth suspect in an alleged arson ring operating in the Monongahela Valley, was questioned today by county detectives and Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk.

He is Dominick Pishinare, 425 Erie street, Glassport. One other man who is said to have done the actual firing is being sought. Three others held are Samuel Klein, Glassport furniture dealer, who owned a house fired last fall; Joseph Diagiacomo, Glassport, and Ignatz Feldman, of McKeesport. The three are in jail on arson charges, without bail.

Beggars, Vendors Ordered Off Street

Street vendors and beggars were ordered off Pittsburgh's streets today by Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh. In an order to all inspectors, particularly to Inspector Albert Beebe, of the downtown district, Walsh ordered stopped street fakers, who have squatted in doorways and other vantage points to hawk their wares. Beggars also were included in the order.

RELIEF PERILED BY HOOVER'S OPPOSITION

Prosperity Loan Sentiment Grows in Congress, While President Fights Proposal

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Serious differences between President Hoover and Congressional leaders over unemployment relief today threatened to prevent an early agreement upon a legislative program.

The most formidable obstacle was Mr. Hoover's strong objection to a public works program, to be financed by a bond issue. The President was said to hold that this would delay balancing of the budget.

With congressional sentiment crystallizing behind a "prosperity loan" plan, however, it appeared that the President would have to yield to the demand or exercise his veto power.

DEMOCRATS' PROGRAM

The differences existing over relief legislation were thrown into clear relief after the Senate Democratic sub-committee had made public its $2,300,000,000 program.

The Senate plan included $300,000,000 to be loaned to states for relief purposes by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with loans to be repaid from state allotments for federal highway aid; $1,500,000,000 additional for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and a $500,000,000 public works bond issue.

Under the plan devised by Senators Wagner, of New York; Pittman, of Nevada; Bulkley, of Ohio; Walsh, of Montana, and Robinson, of Arkansas, the Reconstruction Corporation would be permitted to loan to states and municipalities for construction of housing and slum clearance projects, grant loans to public or private corporations for construction of toll bridges, tunnels, viaducts or other works, and $40,000,000 to finance export sales of farm products.

LOANS TO STATES

The proposal for loans to states and expansion of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were said to harmonize in principle with Mr. Hoover's ideas.

In urging its program, the Democratic committee said:

"The entire program is arranged with a view to tapping various sources of recuperative energy and bringing into operation the employment producing and trade reviving capacities of public and private industries and agencies."

Oil, Coal Tariff Voted; Senate Continues Fight

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP.)—Tariff seekers—Democrat and Republican alike—scored twice in the Senate yesterday, and today they drove hard through a storm of filibustering oratory to win with the entire import duty program of the billion-dollar revenue bill.

A tariff on foreign oil and another on foreign coal were carried to victory by a coalition which roughly split both parties in two. The first was voted in 43 to 37, the second by 39 to 24.

The two votes sought today to complete the bill's tariff schedule were on lumber and copper. It was hoped obstructive tactics would be dropped for the sake of getting the bill passed.

During debate on the coal tariff, Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, told Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, that he was defending "a monopoly stained in blood and stolen from the original owners" by raising his voice in the Senate in behalf of Russian anthracite.

Borah said:

"As to blood-stained workmen, there have been some in Pennsylvania. We saw things there as bad as anything we saw in Russia."

Ignore Rescue Plea While Boy Drowns

The body of the boy drowned in the Allegheny River near Harmarville Thursday night was identified at the morgue yesterday as that of Elias R. O'Connor, 9, of Powers Run road, Harmar Township. It was learned that a younger brother, Lewis, ran to the road to flag passing autoists to come to the aid of the drowning lad, but drivers thought he was a hitch-hiker and passed without stopping.

Radicals Threaten To Defy Parade Ban

CHARLEROI, Pa., May 21.—No Communist demonstration will be allowed in Charleroi Memorial Day although agitators informed Burgess S. L. Woodward the parade would be held regardless of a police permit.

Any attempt to parade will be stopped by police, Burgess Woodward said. He has refused a permit to the Communists for a demonstration and parade next Sunday or Monday, Memorial Day.

Veteran Kills Wife, Two Children, Self

PHILLIPS, Wis., May 21.—(AP.)—Martin Taras, 31, a World War veteran of the Austrian Army, yesterday shot and killed his wife and two small children and then killed himself in what Price County officials called a fit of temporary derangement induced by war injuries and unemployment. He emigrated from Czecho-Slovakia in 1930.

PITTSBURGH TEACHERS AGREE TO REFUND 10 PCT. OF PAY

BALLOT NEARLY UNANIMOUS, SAYS HEAD

3,500 Instructors Agree to Board's Proposal They Return Nearly $1,000,000

Pittsburgh school teachers voted "practically unanimously" to accept a voluntary 10 per cent salary reduction, it was announced today by Miss Esther M. Smith, president of the Pittsburgh Teachers' Association. Results of the balloting, held yesterday, were not made public. The Board of Education suggested the reduction.

Miss Smith, declining to reveal the figures, made the following statement:

"The teachers agree to assist the school board to balance the budget. They are voluntarily returning almost $1,000,000 in the next school year as a result of the 10 per cent agreement suggested by the Public Board of Education."

Asked specifically concerning figures, Miss Smith declared:

"The action was practically unanimous."

Meetings were held yesterday in 77 schools of the city, 3,500 teachers taking part in the balloting. Results were tabulated and sent to headquarters of the Teachers' Association in the Bessemer Building.

POLICEMAN DIES AT FRAT DANCE

COLUMBUS, O., May 21.—(INS.)—A policeman was found dead early today in the Beta Theta Pi fraternity house at Ohio State University here, following a fraternity dance.

Although cause of the death was not immediately known, it was believed the policeman, Patrolman C. L. Keller, may have been a victim of a heart attack. Coroner Edward Smith said no act of violence had been committed.

Members of the fraternity were held in the house pending investigation, which was conducted with great secrecy. Newspaper reporters were barred during the probe.

Patrolman Keller was at the fraternity house, officials at police headquarters said, on special assignment during the dance.

McKees Rocks Man's Death Investigated

A Coroner's investigation was being made today into the death early this morning of Frank Kowetz, 39, of 309 Olivia street, McKees Rocks, in the Ohio Valley Hospital. Kowetz, taken to the hospital from his home, died shortly after his arrival.

Woods Run Burglar Takes Bonds, Jewelry

Government bonds valued at $875 and jewelry valued at $55 was stolen last night from the home of Alfred Nye, 1234 California avenue, according to a report to Woods Run police. A kitchen window was jimmied.

Weather Conditions.

There is considerable cloudiness over the country this morning and light showers were quite general during yesterday and last night over the Gulf states from Louisiana eastward and northward to the Ohio River. Light showers occurred also over the upper lake region and westward over the northern plains states. The gulf low remained nearly stationary during the last 24 hours. It is still centered over the mouth of the Mississippi section. Other centers of low pressure are over the Northeast and in the Far West over Nevada. High pressure is centered over Manitoba and covers much of the interior of the country. Temperature changes were slight, but mostly towards rising, except over the upper lakes and westward over the upper Mississippi Valley and the northern plains where the high pressure caused a slight drop. There is no cold weather anywhere.

River Conditions.

DEBATING OVER RADIO

DR. JAMES E. WAGNER   MRS. WILLIAM MACLAY HALL

Mrs. Hall, society and club leader, and Dr. Wagner, Mt. Lebanon, in their radio debate on the eighteenth amendment, started last night over WCAE, to be concluded tonight. Mrs. Hall, former W. C. T. U. worker, advocates repeal. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

MOTHER AWAITS GIRL ELOPER

MONOGAHELA, Pa., May 21.—The mother of a 16-year-old girl whose reported kidnaping turned out to be an elopement is seriously ill in her home and wants her daughter to return. The mother, Mrs. Hiram Simmons, said she had received a telegram from Hagerstown, Md., that her daughter, Helen, and Howard Pierce, 34, of Irwin, an evangelist, were married.

Pierce with Mrs. Edith Van Dine, with whom he has conducted evangelistic services for nine years, visited the Simmons home Sunday for the first time in four years. Monday morning the girl was missing.

K. of C. Convention To Open Tomorrow

The thirty-first annual state convention of the Knights of Columbus will open in Scranton tomorrow afternoon, with more than 300 representatives of the 143 councils in Western Pennsylvania present. Bishop O'Reilly will pontificate at the convention mass Monday morning in St. Peter's Cathedral.

Honorary life membership degree will be conferred on Supreme Councillor James A. Flaherty. The third degree will be conferred Sunday night by State Deputy John R. Magill. Bishop O'Reilly also will be the speaker at the convention banquet Monday night.

TECH CARNIVAL ENDS TONIGHT

King Burlesque ruled Carnegie Tech Campus yesterday, but tonight must give way to dignity as the closing exercises of the spring carnival are held.

Burlesques of such college traditions as campus queen, with a grinning youth sitting enthroned on a wagon, and a reproduction of Custer's "last stand," capped by a hijacking scene between student "gangsters" and a student traffic officer, were the high lights in a colorful parade of floats that moved through the campus yesterday afternoon.

Preceding the parade was a roller skate race between girls' house members, the first prize going to Mellon Hall.

Closing exercises will be held tonight in the Sylvan Theater, following a musical revue at 11 p. m.

Parents Will Seek Kirkland's Release

VALPARAISO, Ind., May 21.—(AP.)—The parents of Virgil Kirkland have announced they plan to go before the board of trustees of Pendleton Reformatory in June to seek his release from a one to 10-year sentence imposed for the death of Arlene Draves.

Elmer Kirkland, stepfather of the convicted youth, said last night he and Mrs. Kirkland will request permission to appear before the board. Miss Draves died after an alleged drinking party in Gary more than a year ago.

WCAE DEBATERS RAP, LAUD DRY LAW

Mrs. Hall Takes Stand for Repeal and Dr. Wagner Defends Volsteadism

said prohibition is not succeeding as yet, but let Mr. Hoover show us what can be done. He should show us, but even he has realized his inability to cope with the question and appointed the Wickersham Commission, who found that the law had not been enforced.

"Most people are opposed to the return of the saloon, but at least then we could have pushed open the swinging doors to peep in to see what was going on, but now the speakeasy has taken its place. One slips in and the doors are bolted.

"If we had liquor in control of the government and the millions of license money would go into our treasury instead of in bootleggers' pockets, our taxes could be reduced.

"Prohibition does not prohibit and never will. We must take liquor away from the bootlegger and put it in the hands of the government where it belongs."

MINISTER ANSWERS

Dr. Wagner, replying in general to current anti-dry literature, declared:

"From the economic depression the wets offer us alcoholic wings on which to rise above want and hardship. License beer, we are told, and our budget will balance.

"Somebody is going to get mighty drunk, producing that billion dollars of revenue. In the name of sober manhood, no matter what the wets may say for themselves and their associates, I claim at least one-half of mature manhood does not, never did and never will drink enough to add anything appreciable to revenue.

"To produce a billion dollars in revenue at 24 cents a gallon will require the consumption of 4,166,666 gallons of beer by the 5,700,000 enslaved men, or 730 gallons annually per man. Not even the wets would sell drinks on Sunday, which makes 2⅓ gallons a day for every drinker.

FORECASTS DISEASES

"That much of even 2¾ per cent beer would produce a million cases of Bright's disease, a half million alcohol livers, a vast harvest of insanity, diseased hearts, pneumonia deaths, destitute and maltreated children, wrecked homes, and is a price too high for even $1,000,000,000 of revenue.

"Until our wet friends prove that alcohol has changed its nature, has ceased to debauch and ruin men and homes, this host of dry citizens will stand, unshaken by pleas for easy revenue, or that the reins of government be put into hands friendly to our enemy. Alcohol has never been controlled. Therefore, we declare it outlawed by its own nature and leave it outside legal bounds."

No. 2 Asks Recipes, Wife No. 1 Testifies

CHICAGO, May 21.—(INS.)—There's no reason why Lawrence Gottlieb, a juggler, shouldn't have his meals cooked to suit his taste. His first wife, Mrs. Margie Bartel Gottlieb won a divorce yesterday. She testified:

"I got a letter from his new wife, Sylvia Marks Gottlieb, saying she felt she was a sort of relative of mine since she had married Lawrence, and asking for some recipes for dishes that would please him."

SETTING STONE FOR NEW HOSPITAL

MEDICAL DEAN HUGGINS, OF PITT, PRESIDENT SCOTT, OF EYE AND EAR, SETTING STONE

STONE PLACED FOR HOSPITAL

Leaders in the medical profession of Pennsylvania, society women and business men participated in ceremonies attending the laying of the cornerstone of the new Eye and Ear Hospital in the Medical Center yesterday. John E. Crawford, chairman of the hospital building committee, presided.

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, addressed a crowd of 200 persons, telling them that the field of medicine appeared to be the one in which men moved steadily forward and were not at cross purposes.

Dr. R. R. Huggins, dean of the University of Pittsburgh Medical School, and Mrs. William Scott, president of the board of the hospital, assisted in the laying of the stone.

The new hospital will occupy one wing of a greater structure on a tract of land on Fifth avenue, bordered by DeSoto Terrace and Lathrop streets.

Girl Admits Story Of Abduction 'Joke'

The story told by Elizabeth Perry, 17, employed at 217 Harrison avenue, Avalon, that she had been kidnaped while walking on the High Bridge, connecting Pittsburgh and Bellevue, Thursday night, was a joke, county detectives said today. Questioned by detectives the girl admitted the kidnap story was untrue. She was sent home.

Luncheon to Close Family Aid Drive

The Family-Help-Family campaign will be formally brought to a close at a luncheon meeting in the William Penn Hotel Thursday. Official reports will be announced of all funds raised and their disbursements. Workers who have further returns to make are requested to attend the meeting.

KNIFED IN FIGHT OVER COAT

Guiseppi Deleseo, 38, of 7220 Susquehanna street, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today suffering from numerous stab wounds in his chest and abdomen—the result of an argument over an overcoat. His condition is serious.

Three companions of Deleseo are under arrest in East End Police Station. They are Certino Iannucci, 32, of 7239 Tioga street; Mike Vanelli, 35, of 7429 Tioga street, and John Nero, 36, of 7226 Susquehanna street.

Deleseo and his companions were walking in Tioga street, police said, when Nero and Iannucci started an argument over an overcoat Nero borrowed from the latter a week ago and did not return. During the ensuing battle Deleseo was stabbed.

168 MILLIONS KREUGER DEBT

STOCKHOLM, May 20.—(AP.)—Ivar Kreuger, the world-famous "match king" who until he fired a bullet into his brain in Paris, March 12, was considered the greatest financial genius of modern times, died practically penniless and owing $168,300,000, it was revealed today.

The announcement was made by the Swedish investigating committee which has been probing Kreuger's affairs since his suicide.

The $168,300,000 is in personal debts and indirect liability against the match king's name, the committee said, and there will be little, if anything, left for distribution to unsecured creditors.

The committee found that fictitious assets were set up on the Kreuger and Toll books since 1924 and that the state of the books was such that it was extraordinarily difficult to produce a definite balance sheet for the company. The committee reported:

"This being the case, the committee considers there is no longer any need for maintaining the existing moratorium, and it is therefore recommended to the board that it request the Swedish government to recall the moratorium and take the necessary steps to have the company declared bankrupt."

Passed Fake Bill, Gets 2-Year Term

Max Lebowitz, 27, of 654 Vermont avenue, Brooklyn, was convicted yesterday in Federal Court of passing a counterfeit $10 note and was sentenced by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker to serve two years in prison. Lebowitz was arrested after he had tendered the spurious note in a Frankstown avenue restaurant March 8.

Lebowitz testified he received the fake bill in making change for a stranger and did not know it was a counterfeit. Government witnesses testified he was arrested March 4 in New York, suspected of passing counterfeit notes, but was release for lack of evidence.

KISSING RECTOR PUTS BLAME ON NERVOUSNESS

Davidson Denies Embracing Actress on Motor Trip; Tilts With Chancellor

By H. K. REYNOLDS

International News Service.

LONDON, May 21.—The "nervousness" which prompted the Rev. Harold Francis Davidson to embrace girls was brought out today at the continuation of his trial on charges of immorality.

Resuming the witness stand to dispute charges concerning the conduct with a score of London waitresses and actresses, the 60-year-old rector of Stiffkey Church, Norfolk, engaged in a slight tilt with the chancellor, presiding at the trial in consistory court.

Davidson was questioned by his assistant counsel, Ryder Richardson, who said:

"It is suggested that you are nervous and use your hands a great deal. It is usual for you to touch people, is it not?"

WARNED BY CHANCELLOR

Davidson declared:

"I have restrained myself constantly from touching the chancellor."

The chancellor warned:

"You had better not."

Much of today's questioning involved Winifred Wain, an actress the clergyman took on a motor trip to Norwich.

Davidson denied putting his arm around Miss Wain, as alleged by other passengers in the car.

Davidson told the court Miss Wain is now in a Roman Catholic convent, seeking to become a Nun. He remarked:

"I spent my time on that automobile trip trying to prevent her from becoming a Catholic."

ANSWERS LANDLADY

Questioned concerning testimony of Mrs. Mary Osborne, a rooming house proprietress, that he brought many girls to his flat, he said:

"She never objected when she was sober. When she had a little too much to drink she would get unpleasant."

He denied the charge of Mrs. Osborne that he had changed into evening dress when Rose Ellis, one of the girls concerned in the case, was in the flat.

The Chancellor indicated surprise when the Rev. Mr. Davidson admitted he went into the girls' dressing room in a London music hall. The rector explained the visits were in connection with his work as chaplain to the Actors' Church Union. He said:

"It was my duty. There was nothing immoral in it."

"Do you know a large number of waitresses?"

He replied blandly:

"At least four or five hundred. Some of them I know exceedingly well. I take an especial interest in waitresses because of their low pay. I thought that might affect the kind of a life a pretty girl might lead."

EJECTED FROM TEA SHOP

The rector admitted, however, that his interest in waitresses resulted in difficulties with the managers of restaurants. He recounted how he received £200 damages because a member of the staff of a big tea shop chain attacked him and then ordered him not to enter any of their establishments again.

Davidson was asked whether he told Miss Burn she was going to have eight children. He said:

"The only way that could have arisen was when she asked me to tell her hand. I have done a little palmistry, and waitresses often ask me to read their hands. I don't attach much importance to palmistry, but I always examine hands when I get the chance."

June Collyer, Film Star, to Be Mother

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 21.—(AP.)—June Collyer, motion picture actress, says she expects to become a mother in September and explains:

"This is the reason I have forgotten for the present about pictures."

Miss Collyer and Stuart Erwin, screen comedian, were married last July on an elopement to Yuma, Ariz.

Condition of Pitt Actor Improved

Edward C. Bonner, Jr., University of Pittsburgh Cap and Gown "leading lady," who is alleged to have attempted to end his life, was pronounced in "good condition" at Homeopathic Hospital today. Grief over the death of his mother was assigned as the reason for Bonner's attempt. He was found in a gas-filled room at 209 Meyran avenue.

Fall Causes Death Of Washington Man

A fractured skull suffered last night in a fall down the steps in the basement of Dimling Brothers Restaurant at 24 Graeme street, caused the death two hours later in Allegheny General Hospital of John A. Bebout, 55, of Locust street extension, Washington, Pa., the Coroner's office reported.

Mrs. Belmont, Ill In Paris, Improved

PARIS, May 21.—(INS.)—Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, American society leader who suffered a paralytic stroke several days ago, was slightly improved today.

CHURCH MERGER TO BE HIGHLIGHT OF U. P. ASSEMBLY

UNION REPORT TO BE MADE AT BEAVER

Presbyterians to Receive Recommendations at Same Time at Denver Meeting

Union of the Presbyterian and the United Presbyterian churches will be one of the highlights of the seventy-fourth annual meeting of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church which will convene Wednesday in the United Presbyterian Church of Beaver, Pa.

Coincidental with the assembly in Beaver will be the meeting of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Denver, Col. Both general assemblies will receive simultaneously the report of the joint committee named by four general assemblies on a basis for union. The action on this report taken by the general assemblies will have an important bearing on the future activities and policies of the two churches.

HEADS COMMITTEE

The Rev. Dr. William J. Reid of the First United Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh and editor of the United Presbyterian, is chairman of the joint committee on church union.

The initial meeting in the general assembly will be held Wednesday night at which Dr. James A. MacDonald of Youngstown, O., will deliver the moderator's sermon as alternate for the late Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum College, who died in January. Following this sermon the general assembly will convene for the election of a moderator for the current year.

BUSINESS SESSIONS

Business sessions will be held Thursday morning at which committees will be appointed, boards organized and special work assigned. The business sessions will continue through June 1.

During sessions of the assembly reports will be made regarding plans for the general assembly sessions to be held in Pittsburgh next year. More than 300 commissioners are expected to attend the assembly and will represent churches in all sections of the United States and Canada, 240,000 of whom 180,000 are in the United States.

Memorial Services For Capt. McDowell

Memorial services will be held at the grave of Capt. W. A. L. McDowell tomorrow afternoon in Highwood Cemetery, Brighton road, by veterans of three units of the Twenty-eighth Division. The veterans will unveil a stone. Capt. McDowell died three years ago in California.

Brig. Gen. A. J. Logan of the 56th Brigade will be chief marshal. Judge W. Heber Dithrich of the 111th Infantry will be chaplain and Col. C. C. McGovern, former captain of Troop H, First Pennsylvania Cavalry, will deliver the eulogy and place a wreath on the grave.

Club to Hear Plea For 'Army's' Fund

The work of the Salvation Army among unemployed professional women will be described by Mrs. D. Edwin Miller at a meeting of the Friendly Welfare Club in McCreery's Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Miller, chairman of the women workers in the present Salvation Army drive for $112,500, will speak on "A Key to the House of a Friend." The club is composed of past officers of the Order of Eastern Star in this district.

BISHOP SALARY CUT URGED

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 21.—(AP)—Reductions of 16 per cent in the salaries of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church is proposed by the committee of episcopacy in a resolution presented to the General Conference for action.

The proposed salary reductions were accompanied by recommendation for reductions in allowance to members of the episcopacy for pensions, episcopal residences and office expenses. Conference action on the new scale is not expected for several days.

The committee's report provides:

Reduction of the maximum salary of an effective bishop from $7,200 to $6,000.

Reduction of the maximum salary of a missionary bishop from $6,000 to $5,000.

Reduction of the maximum allowance for a retired bishop from $3,000 to $2,500.

Reduction of the maximum allowance for a retired missionary bishop from $2,500 to $2,000.

The committee recommended no change in the allowance for the widow of a bishop, which is $1,500 a year.

A group of Sewickley folks is in Washington today to attend the wedding at noon of Mrs. Nicholas B. Trist, of Washington, formerly of Sewickley, and John I. Palmer, of Sewickley.

The wedding takes place in the Church of the Epiphany with the Rev. Z. B. Phillips officiating. The bride, who is being given in marriage by Frederick W. Culbertson, of Lewiston, Pa., former state senator in Pennsylvania, is wearing a simple gown of rose beige chiffon and a brown straw hat, and is carrying a prayerbook. Lilies and cibotium ferns decorate the church.

T. W. Claiborne, of Baltimore, is best man and the only attendant. A breakfast is to follow the ceremony. The James W. Crees, of Sewickley; Mrs. Robert W. Reed, of Coraopolis; the Frederick W. Culbertson and Julia Culbertson, all of Lewiston, and the Frank McKibbens, of Chambersburg, are among the guests at the ceremony.

Bridal Party

Barbara Irwin, daughter of Henry T. Irwin, of Edgeworth, who some time ago named June 1 as the date for her marriage to David C. Chaplin, son of the James C. Chaplins, of Sewickley, has named her attendants.

Nancy Scott Craig and Elizabeth Miller will be bridesmaids, and little Elizabeth Irwin Townsend, daughter of the B. R. B. Townsends, will be her cousin's flower girl.

James Crossan Chaplin III will be his brother's best man, and Gilbert S. Rafferty and Ira Fitch Brainard II will be ushers.

The wedding will take place in the Irwin home, with the Rev. Dr. Alleyne C. Howell as officiant.

Virginia Boyce, daughter of W. H. Boyce, of the Gable apartments, Ellsworth avenue, who is a member of the graduating class at St. Xavier's Academy, Latrobe, Pa., will give a private exhibition of her art work of the past two years at the school studio.

Mrs. Miller Urges Dry Bureau Head Be Removed

JERSEY CITY, May 21.—Mrs. Carroll Miller, of Pittsburgh, spoke at a mass meeting here today, substituting for Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

In part Mrs. Miller said:

"The new Allied Dry Forces which have taken control of the dry army may be composed of excellent and well-meaning citizens, but if they are educated and enlightened they never would recommend or approve as impracticable and untrustworthy a method of dealing with the liquor problem as the Eighteenth Amendment has proven. The reasons once advanced for the adoption and later for the retention of national prohibition have all one by one been overthrown. The argument that states which wished to be dry before 1920 but could not remain so on account of neighboring wet states has become obsolete since under the Eighteenth Amendment these original dry states are now wetter than before."

Mrs. Miller closed her address by advocating the removal of Col. Amos W. Woodcock from the Prohibition Bureau of the Department of Justice, saying the 57-page booklet which he issued on "The Value of Law Observance" is nothing more or less than a prejudiced plea for prohibition and is filled with misstatements.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Congress is human for the first time in years. They are broke, just like everybody else, and are running around in a circle trying to pay what they owe. They got an eighteen billion dollar first plaster on the country. And now they are pop-eyed trying to get a second mortgage. They will eventually find out they are just like other folks, they will have to cut down. No taxpayer is going to make 'em a loan if they are going to keep as much help as they always have.

Yours, WILL.

'Bugs' Suggests New Buildings For Washington

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

If the Federal Reserve boys want a real outlet, how about a new building program for Washington?

Some of those ancient and honorable structures have been left behind in the fierce competition of politics. We will donate the blue-prints for the following edifices:

Hall of Investigations.

Bureau of Blacklists.

Tower of Misinformation.

Broadcasting Studio for Whispers.

The Bourse of Patronage. With a lily pond for lame goslings.

The Haunted House, containing hundreds of secret hallways for lobbygows.

The Tapped Telephone Exchange.

And the League of Nations Building. With sunken gardens, sinking funds and floating diplomats.

$810 Extra Granted For Special Tax Work

The request of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes for $810 in addition to the $15,000 spent for 175 special subordinate assessors used prior to the general election was approved yesterday by County Commissioners C. M. Barr and W. D. Mansfield.

No report has been made of the results obtained by the special assessors, who were employed to make a "physical check of taxables."

Congress Group Holds Closing Session

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

So much was crowded into yesterday's program of the Congress of Clubs literature department (the closing session) that it is difficult to recount it in detail. Even the decorations are worthy of special mention, so lovely were they. Great bowls of snowballs, bridal wreath, tulips and iris were striking in their color combination of red, yellow, purple and white.

James Hayden's fine young baritone voice was heard in two groups of songs, several of which are compositions of Marianne Genet, who accompanied him. The words of one were by Mrs. May T. Neff, who is concluding her term as chairman of the literature department.

Youth appeared again on the program when the three high school girls, Margaret Keller, Lois Jamison and Marion Gray, who had received the Blanche Hartman poetry prize and honorable mentions, were introduced and read their entries.

Poems Read

Favorite poems were read by some of the members; Mrs. Marie Tello Phillips, former chairman, spoke; Mrs. James G. Chalfant, district president of the State Federation, introduced Mrs. Hartman, who is Federation chairman of the division of poetry; several other special guests were presented and the principal talk was by Mrs. W. G. Ralston. Mrs. Ralston discussed poets and poetry, quoting from memory stanza after stanza. Among the poets she mentioned and quoted were Rudyard Kipling, Thomas Hardy, John Masefield, Walter de la Mare, William Butler Yeats, Edward Arlington Robinson, Sarah Teasdale and Carl Sandburg.

Mrs. Neff announced a benefit card party which the department will have June 17 at Mrs. Ross Thomas' home, Brownsville road, to raise the department's pledge to the Congress budget.

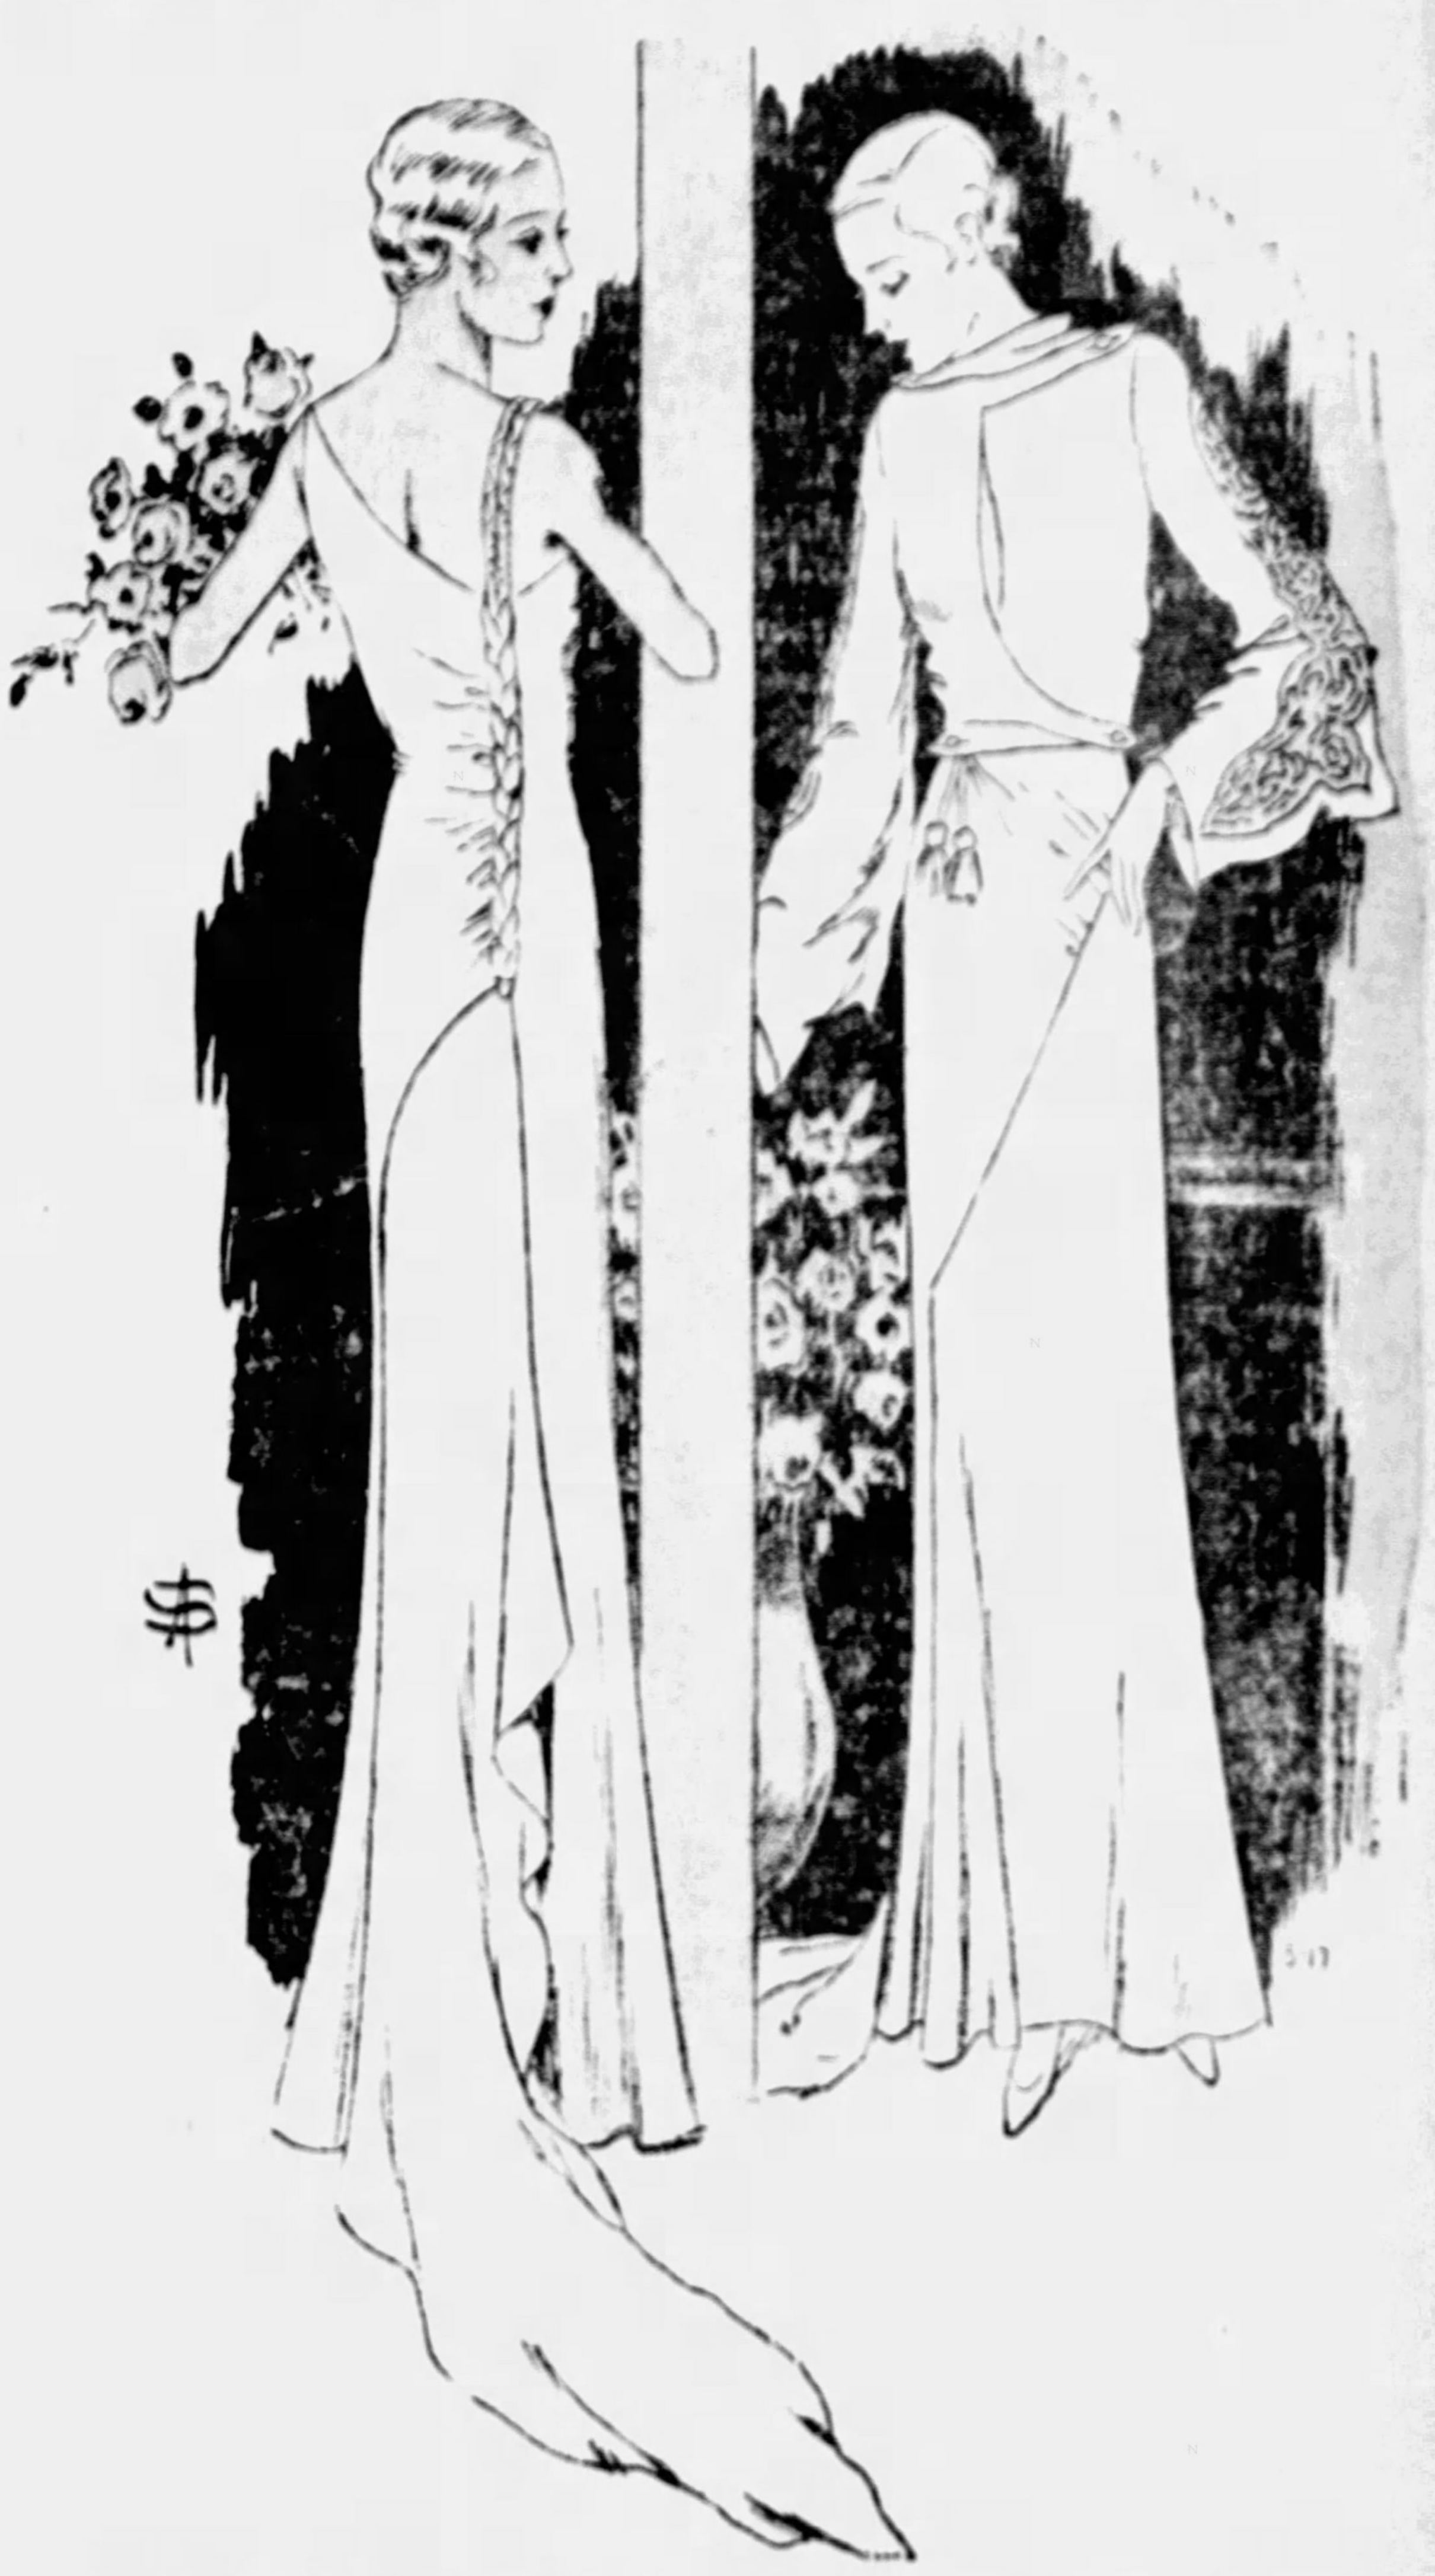
THE WHITE DRESS MAINTAINS ITS FAVORED FASHION CROWN

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, May 21.—There is still no substitute for the white dress. French women still count it, next to black, the most successful of all costumes. It is the one color which is becoming to practically every woman, no matter what her figure or her coloring. And it is still, along with the black frock, the dress which can be as informal or as formal as you like, as prepossessing or as casual—all according to the way it is made.

* * *

THIS YEAR Paris uses any number of types of white, from dead chalky white to the grayed and yellowed tints that border on oyster-white and eggshell-white. There seems, however, to be a noticeable preference to the tone known as porcelain, mainly because it borders slightly on the bluish, thereby bringing out the better qualities of flesh tones.

* * *

SOME OF THE most successful of this season's white evening dresses are those which use the merest suggestion of color in combination. One dressmaker will mark the waistline of a white frock with ribbons in two tones of yellow; another will keep the costume pure black and white by circling the waistline with a wide band of soft crepe wound around and around the figure.

* * *

WORTH MAKES a stunning evening costume—dress and accompanying jacket—of white crepe, combined with silver and strass. As the sketch shows, the only elaboration is the embroidery on the jacket sleeves. The dress is of soft white marocain, the jacket in a heavier weave of the same fabric. White wool is braided together with the silk to form the single shoulder strap and vertical decoration. The buttons are of strass.

The Wail of the Big City!

(Portrait of Another Young Man Talking to Himself)

It's the kind of a sound you feel but never hear . . . It whistles over your head as you turn a corner . . . And it slips up on you from subway holes . . . I mean the Wail of the Big City . . . I've never been able to distinguish it from the million other noises that jam themselves into the clamor of New York . . . That pound at you from the open windows of dance palaces and from the roar of the trembling curbs . . . That turn you, twist you and jerk your head upwards in neck-cracking blows . . . But it's there just the same . . . And it has a suddenness that makes it all the more dreadful . . . I've seen its effect on roysterers . . . I've seen it swoop into gala repent-houses and shock them into a barren hush of overturned gin bottles and rouge-stained cigaret stubs . . . Laughter is the first to wither before its unseen darts . . . Occasionally it brings tears . . . I think it would bring them more often but you can't cry in the face of its eerie movements.

Last night it came to me over the telephone . . . "I've simply got to see you, Paul" . . . It was an old friend . . . For 20 years he has been confecting the songs that have come to you across the footlights and over the air . . . "I'm going crazy. I can't sleep," he pleaded. "Please get dressed and come over right away" . . . You can't ignore the Big City's Wail . . . So I dressed and hurried to his apartment that crowns a 52-story skyscraper . . . From its heights the whole island spreads out before you . . . You could see the Hudson and the East River dividing to make room for Manhattan and then converging again into the waters of the bay . . . To the south the Statue of Liberty gleamed before its arc-lights, and to the north the hazy rectangle of Central Park and its winding lights loomed like a vast pin-cushion . . . "I can't sleep, and Lord knows when I will be able to again" . . . His eyes were heavy and his hair disheveled by sleepless pillows . . . "Listen, kid . . . You've got to tell me what to do! . . . I tried to stay away from her for four years . . . I went to Switzerland . . . I went to China . . . I even tried to fly across the Atlantic last summer . . . I thought I could beat it with work . . . There's 12 hit songs on the piano that I've turned out since the day she walked out . . . But it's no use . . . I'm licked, and I'm licked plenty . . . You know I've put a lot of guys on Broadway straight every time they got themselves in love with a worthless dame, but I can't do a thing for myself."

The muffled snorts of a dawn-fighting tug on the river punctuated his sobs. "Paul, there's no use I tell you . . . I can't get her out of my nights, that's the worst part of it . . . Some guys go out and drink . . . Every time I do it makes my memories more bitter . . . As I was calling you I looked out across that mad carpet below . . . It's exactly midnight . . . There's plenty of gaiety down there . . . Look at that electric bonfire . . . Broadway, eh . . . How many birds are squirming in and out of the speaks to take the knots out of their system? . . . There must be 10,000 of them right now . . . But I can't get consolation out of the thought . . . It reminds me of the night I got drunk after they buried my mother . . . It was a dreary afternoon and I phoned Margie at the theater where she was playing a matinee . . . I told her the chauffeur would pick her up immediately after the show and rush her to the cemetery in time for the final services . . . But she didn't show up . . . I waited out there in Cypress Hills as they lowered my mother from sight . . . And for two full hours afterwards . . . I couldn't believe that Margie would forget me at a time like that . . . Her excuse later that evening was that traffic had delayed the car . . . But the chauffeur couldn't keep silent . . . And told me the truth . . . He had called for her at the stage-door and her leading man got in with her . . . Then they stopped at his apartment . . . That was the traffic, Paul . . . You'd think a fellow could forget a dame like that with the snap of his fingers . . . But I can't.

"You know the songs I've written since . . . And you know how crazy people say I am . . . But, you can't go telling everybody what's tearing you apart inside . . . All they want to hear is the popular melodies about mulchy aching hearts and the concerts of [illegible] of your schooling . . . I've written myself in, out and around every emotion I've ever had . . . But you can't stop the moon, especially when it's the same moon that made you deliriously happy in the early days of a romance . . . Anyway, I had to go to see her early yesterday morning . . . She's living on 54th St. . . . And I've found myself walking past her house for no good reason at all, at least a dozen times a week . . . You know she's tortured me by refusing to get a divorce . . . And a man has the right to break in on his wife any time he feels like it! . . . It was 3 o'clock this morning . . . I rang the bell, and she opened the door . . . When she saw me, she closed it quickly . . . Then I heard some heated conversation, and a minute later she came back and invited me in . . . There was a fellow with her; he is one of the best known dramatic critics in town . . . I yelled at him . . . I told him off plenty . . . Then I ordered him out of her house and he left meekly . . . All the time she was grinning at the scene from a deep-cushioned chair . . . As he stepped through the door, she called him a coward . . . 'Afraid of a husband?' was her parting taunt . . . I lifted the glass covering of her boudoir table and flung it across the room . . . Then I rushed down the hall to the elevator to catch up with the guy . . . In the steam of my jealousy, I blamed the poor sap for all my trouble . . . When I got to the street, he already had a full block start . . . But I caught up in a few seconds."

Motorcycle sirens tore through the avenue . . . And I could see the re-born rage that their shrill C's brought to his face . . . "I cornered the bird in the vestibule of a drug store . . . I was so mad I wanted to choke him and he threw an umbrella he carried between us . . . I smashed it to the ground and a crowd began to gather . . . The poor sap was shaking, but I could see him gradually pulling his poise together . . . 'Wait a minute,' he said . . . 'I can't make your wife love you any more than you can . . . It isn't my fault' . . . And then, Paul, he said something that's haunted me all day . . . 'Look, here, fellow,' he continued, 'Don't forget this is a Big City . . . It's so big that time has nothing to do with evil . . . Just because you found me there this time of day means nothing . . . absolutely nothing' . . . I actually apologized to him . . . And walked away . . . But I can't help feeling the clinging misery . . . She sat there grinning . . . The broken glass at the wall beside her . . . The dame I can't forget . . . Do something for me, Paul . . . Talk to me, tell me I'm crazy."

The Wail of the Big City rushed silently in from the terraced roof . . . It smacked me coldly in the face . . . I couldn't talk . . . I only saw dawn coming over the Atlantic.

MUSIC

Ukrainian Chorus and Ballet

Carnegie Music Hall

After Pittsburgh believed that it had had enough music for the season, along comes Alexander Koshetz and his Ukrainian Chorus with Vasile Avramenko and his ballet. Carnegie Music Hall last night was filled with enthusiasts, from crying babes to grandmothers, and the Ukrainians had a glorious welcome.

Mr. Lissfelt

These singers and dancers earned this applause, not alone for their patriotic reverence to the memory of George Washington (the festival was given in his honor), but for their art. Koshetz and his singers are already known here, for they were among the first of the Russian choruses to introduce their mighty folk music to us. Their sturdy tone and virile rhythms parallel the same qualities among the dancers, and the two directors must be complimented for perpetuating this music.

The program was made of songs and dances of the people, and these are the truest music is. There is suggestion in every tone and gesture, suggestion of the joy of life and freedom, suggestion of the love of nature and the worship of good.

The accompanying folk orchestra of six players made music as one hears in old world villages. Another half hour of their playing and we all should have been on the stage participating in the festival. Two children who were not named, were unusually gifted dancers, and Avramenko, their teacher, did a solo dance that might have been the envy of Pavlova's partners. It was one of the refreshing concerts of the year.

The chorus of the Congress of Women's Clubs sang a very delightful program in the clubhouse last night under the able leadership of Elsie Breese Mitchell. The chorus includes but 30 members and sings most worthy music.

One of the most pronounced characteristics of its performance is not always a feature of ladies' choirs, and that is a balance of tone with sufficient deep voices to keep the soprano group from any thinness of tone. This chorus has nice rhythms, too, and sings as if it enjoyed its music.

Cass Ward Whitney, baritone, was assisting artist, a very entertaining singer with a most mellow voice, and whose approach to his songs is always intelligent.

George Miller played accompaniments.

Fine 'Mikado' Sung Twice In Nixon

By GEORGE SEIBEL

As fine a performance of "The Mikado" as Pittsburgh has ever heard was given last night at the Nixon Theater by the Aborn Light Opera Company. That statement, however, is not quite accurate, for it was really given twice. The audience, small in numbers, was so enthusiastic that everything was encored and had to be repeated. Indeed, the "flowers that bloom in the spring" would have been kept a-blooming till the first snow if Ko-Ko's breath had held out, and the Mikado's Spencerian penology could have been expounded by William Danforth until Floyd Gibbons comes home.

Mr. Seibel

Danforth was a very comical Mikado—his chortled glee as he tells of the "boiling oil or "melted lead" was diabolically amusing. But Frank Moulan as the Lord High Executioner was no less provocative of mirth. They made the whole performance a gorgeous laughterpiece.

Then there was a real Japanese nightingale to sing Yum-Yum. This little prima donna from the land of Fujiyama has a sweetly and richly thrilling voice and a coy comedy spirit that put her audience into high good humor. If cherry blossoms could sing and act, they would sing and act like Hizi Koyki.

JAPANESE ATMOSPHERE

The performance began with a note that gave it a japanesque atmosphere before a single note was sung. On a white screen the silhouettes of jinrikisha men and geishas passed and danced in shadowy grace. It was a most effective introduction—and it prepared the audience for what was to follow.

Costumes that glowed with Oriental colors, scenery that seemed to scatter fragrance, provided a splendid setting for a singing cast that left little to be desired. Vera Ross was a Katisha of impressive powers and Howard Marsh made a romantic Nanki-Po. As Pooh-Bah the proud, Herbert Waterous was ponderous and pompous, [illegible] singing well in the Pish-Tush numbers.

The other "two little maids" with Hizi Koyki were Ethel Clark and Mabel Thompson—and they filled out an adorable trio.

"HAMLET" OF OPERETTAS

It is a pity that there was not a vast audience to see and hear this "Hamlet" of operettas in which Gilbert and Sullivan achieved their masterpiece. But if there had been the performance might not be over yet. The performances would be more accurate—for, as has been said, everything was sung at least twice. It was as fine a performance of "The Mikado" as has ever been given in Pittsburgh. It will be repeated this afternoon, and the week closes with "Pirates of Penzance" this evening.

BITS OF LIFE All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Slip-Up

AROUND police headquarters you'd hear that Slipkins was far and away the smartest detective on the force. And from whom would you hear it? Why, from Slipkins, of course. He was one man who didn't believe in permitting his own praises to go unsung. Give him the smallest opportunity and he would finally convince you that Slipkins was just about the only real detective on the force.

On the surface it looked as though there was a definite basis for his boasting. For several years the man had been making some of the most important pinches in police history. If you didn't know the background of his story, you'd be fairly certain that Slipkins was just as magnificent as he gave himself credit for being.

But if you did know the background—ah, my children, that would be a cow in a different pasture. For, even though the man had become successful in his line, that success had been handed to him on something of a platinum platter.

Uncle Joe was the man who passed the platter. Joe was a big shot in the police department—and Slipkins was his favorite nephew. Catch on? When, in years gone by, Uncle Joe placed an arm around the boy's shoulders and told him to take the examination for the force, he could have tacked on an absolute guarantee that Slipkins wasn't going to remain in uniform very long.

And so it had happened. Slipkins hadn't been on the force more than six months when he was placed in the detectives' division. Whereupon things that were good for Slipkins began to happen very rapidly.

There was that big pinch, for instance, that the young man made in Chicago. The newspapers told plenty about the terrific detective work that such an arrest had required.

The real inside on the case was that the prisoner had hoisted a jewelry store in New York and had skipped to Chicago. A few days later a stool pigeon made his dutiful report to Uncle Joe in New York, and told him exactly where and how the jewel thief could be found.

Then what happened? Yes, indeed, you've guessed it. Slipkins received the assignment. A comfortable ride, a day or two of seeing the sights—and the young man picked up his prisoner without the slightest difficulty.

As time rolled on Slipkins was given other jobs of a similar nature. Uncle Joe never failed to take care of his favorite youth—and the fame of the favorite youth grew apace. At headquarters, of course, his brother detectives knew the truth. Because he was continually burning them with his self-important cracks, the other boys held a genuine hatred for him. I know that plenty of them prayed privately for the man's downfall.

To his face, however, they were rather friendly. They had to be, because they knew all about that important connection. Accordingly, they did their share to help swell Slipkin's egotism. It couldn't have swelled much further for the simple reason that it was almost at the bursting point. But the boys kept chipping in.

"That was a wonderful job you did yesterday," said another detective one morning. "I think we'll change you name to Sherlock Holmes."

Slipkins seemed a trifle insulted.

"Sherlock Holmes, the devil," he replied. "I work alone. He had to have Watson to help him. . . ."

Just about this time a loud and prolonged squawk was coming into headquarters from a chain of stores. A lone thief, it seems, was holding up their stores regularly—and no arrests were being made. The crook was very evidently making a specialty of these establishments, and he had proved so slippery that he was always a jump or two ahead of the detectives who were out to nail him.

When the newspapers took notice of the case and began to kid the department, up bounced Slipkins to Uncle Joe.

"Please get me assigned to that case," he requested. "Some of the newspaper boys were sayin' yesterday that I ought to be put on it right away. I want to get a crack at that mug, and I'm probably the only guy in the department who can nail him pronto."

Uncle Joe was not so positive.

"I'll do as you ask, son," he returned, "but you want to be careful. This is no cinch job. They tell me this crook is a mighty slick worker, and I don't want you in a wrong spot. You know what a wonderful reputation you have, but one black mark can do a lot to destroy it. You're going after a shrewd egg, and he's liable to top you."

Slipkins looked highly amazed.

"Top me?" he repeated. "A bum like him? Why, you must be kiddin'. I'll have him down in headquarters in no time."

The big shot nodded.

"All right," he agreed. "You'll be assigned to the case in the morning. But be careful."

The following morning, bright and early, Slipkins sauntered into one of the stores in the chain that was being victimized. The clerk smiled at him.

"Morning, sir," he chirped. "What can I do for you?"

Slipkins appeared most mysterious. He was acting as he had always figured a great detective should act. He looked at the clerk through narrowed eyes. Then he flashed his shield.

"I'm Detective Slipkins," he announced. "I suppose you've heard of me?"

The clerk was highly impressed—and a trifle frightened.

"I should say I have, Mr. Slipkins," he replied nervously. "But why are you here? I mean, is there anything wrong?"

Slipkins shrugged his shoulders.

"I've been detailed to catch the crook that's been causin' your firm all its troubles. The case got so big that they finally had to put me on it. I'm goin' to get that bum, and I'm gonna get him quick.

"Now, get this—and get it straight. I've been goin' over this thing and I figured out that he's due for a crack at this neighborhood. I'm gonna spend the day between this spot and your store about eight blocks away.

"Don't get scared if he comes in, because you ain't got nothin' to worry about. Your job—if I'm not around—is to stall him as long as you possibly can. He'll order you right to the safe, but you pretend you're very frightened. When you fiddle for the combination, fiddle as you never fiddled before. And, if he shows up, it's 10 to 1 we'll nail him.

"Understand everything?"

The clerk looked as though he was on the edge of a steep precipice.

"I—I—I—think so," he quavered. "I'll do my very best."

"Okay, then," he said. "I'm goin' up to the other store now, but I'll be back in half an hour. You got nothin' to worry about, kid, because Detective Slipkins is on the job."

As Slipkins walked out, the clerk talked.

"Sorry to have kept you so long, old man," he said. "It must be pretty uncomfortable. We'll have to work fast now."

No, my friends, he hadn't gone crazy. And he wasn't talking to himself. He was talking to the real clerk, who was bound and gagged beneath the counter!

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

With a matinee performance of "The Mikado" this afternoon and of "Pirates of Penzance" tonight, the Civic Light Opera Company will bring its engagement in the Nixon to a close. It also marks the end of the legitimate season in Pittsburgh.

* * *

Although the Alvin and Nixon are "through" for the summer as far as regular production goes, there is possibility that Pittsburgh may witness another midsummer premiere of the "Follies." When Mr. Ziegfeld was here with "Hot Cha," he said that Pittsburgh was his "lucky town" and would be given strong consideration when another "Follies" was staged. Recently he has been busy with preparations for a new production of "Show Boat," which had its first performance in Ziegfeld's Casino Theater, New York, formerly the Earl Carroll, Thursday night. With the exception of Howard Marsh and Jules Bledsoe, whose roles now are played by Dennis King and Paul Robeson, respectively, as Ravenal and Joe, the original cast was reassembled to open the new Ziegfeld house, now bearing the name of a theater once nationally famous for its musical productions. When "Show Boat" is straightened out to his satisfaction, Mr. Zielfeld likely will turn his attention to a new "Follies." It is probable that he will seek "names for it, as he did for "Hot-Cha," which, with Lupe Velez, Buddy Rogers and Bert Lahr, has been one of the hits of New York ever since it departed from Pittsburgh.

Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, who are reported to have turned down an offer of $925,000 for a series of movies, will continue to be affiliated with the Theater Guild. Their present play, "Reunion in Vienna," will be one of the Theater Guild subscription plays of early next season, with the Lunts in their original roles, according to an announcement by the Guild. Later they will play Noel Coward's "Design for Living," together with Mr. Coward, this play not being under Guild auspices, being a production of Max Gordon. It also is stated they will appear in London, after which they will return to fold of the Guild, which already is seeking a play for them.

Two Bills to Change And One Will End

Screen programs change today in two East End theaters. In the Sheridan Square will be Robert Montgomery in "But the Flesh Is Weak." Joan Bennett will be seen on the Enright screen in "The Trial of Vivienne Ware." Both of these photoplays proved satisfactory in recent downtown showings.

"Grand Hotel," which has been holding forth in the Aldine for four weeks, will end its showings in that theater tonight.

Darien in 30 Roles In Two Years

Frank Darien, stage character actor, appearing with Marie Dressler in "Prosperity," entered pictures two years ago, and since then has played 30 roles, including those in "Cimarron" and "Bad Girl." He thinks it's a record.

DO-X Flight In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Striking pictures of the world's largest seaplane, the mighty DO-X, as she again braves the Atlantic to fly back to Germany from New York City, are shown in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, featured in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. Pictures taken from the air follow the giant ship along the first leg of her flight to Newfoundland, all of her 12 600-horsepower engines humming tunefully. There are also intimate scenes on board the DO-X and a vivid description by the Globe Trotter.

Details of the amazing Lindbergh baby hoax are presented. The pictures show Col. Schwarzkopf at police headquarters in Trenton, reading the confession of John H. Curtis, Norfolk (Va.) shipbuilder.

ATHLETES IN ACTION

High spots from the careers of leading American athletes who will participate in the Olympic Games at Los Angeles, are shown. Among those in action are Frank Wykoff and Eddie Tolan, joint holders of the 100-yard dash, Mickey Riley and Georgia Coleman, in sensational diving scenes; Will Graber setting his world record of over 14 feet in a pole-vault, and Fred Sturdy, former national champion, and Tom Warne, from whom much is expected.

Following the defeat in the Senate of Senators Tyding's and Bingham's bills to allow the manufacture of 2.75 and 4 per cent beer respectively, Senator Sheppard, of Texas, prime mover against the bill, states his attitude.

"In my judgment," he says, "every legislator who votes for beer by congressional act violates the Constitution."

STEERS ARE BUSTERS

At Livermore, Cal., youngsters show up their cowboy daddies in amazing rough-riding stunts. First the "old gents" try to show off in steerbusting, but in each case the steer does the busting. Then the kids get their turn riding lively young calves and every boy manages to stick.

More than 30,000 Mohammedans gather before the world's largest mosque at Delhi, India, to solemnly celebrate the arrival of the holy days. At signals, the great mass of worshipers kneel and bow in unison, their foreheads touching the ground.

A sure sign that summer has really arrived is shown in pictures of joyous crowds getting their fill of thrills on the breath-taking rollercoaster at the opening of Palisades Park.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover gives some of the children of cabinet officials a treat by taking them to the circus in Washington.

Cabaret Love In Warner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

You might hang around the stay-up-late places, such as is depicted in "Night World," Warner film, only a short time and see just as much excitement as does Lew Ayres, who is part of the picture. You will understand by this that Lew is in no condition to see a great deal of what happens, although they do get him unfried in time for him to witness the gang-gunning of a doorman of a cabaret, and the bumping off of the gunners themselves in time to save Lew and his gal, the latter being Mae Clarke, from the gang boys.

Miss Clarke, by the way, is the one you'll like most in this incredible film. She's a dancing girl in the cabaret, where all of the action takes place, a great deal of it being atmospheric and explanatory of just why Lew is a stew. And the reason doesn't appear at all plausible. The finale shows snow falling on a cabaret, where there have been grim doings and double-crossing love, with our hero and heroine boarding a patrol car, first to make a perfunctory call at the police station, after which—Java for a couple of honeymooners.

Boris Karloff is in the film, too, as a hard night club proprietor.

Letty Lynton Lucky With Poison

By MILDRED FILLMORE

When Joan Crawford, under the name of "Letty Lynton," which is the title of the new picture at the Penn Theater, goes to Montevideo and gets into an affair with a brutal but handsome stranger, it is sure to come to no good end. She has to run away with Louise Closser Hale, who is her duenna—and on the way home to New York they meet Robert Montgomery, and Letty falls in love with him, although his conversation is as dumb as any handsome young hero can make it. By the time they arrive in New York, they are going to get married and settle down.

But, ah, the villain was an aviator—and was there waiting for Letty. He has her letters and threatens all sorts of trouble unless she comes to his room at the hotel that night. She dons her niftiest evening gown and goes, armed with a bottle of poison which she intends to take. After she has it poured out for herself, he knocks her down and drinks it himself, just to be mean. Letty makes her getaway, but leaves her overshoes behind. That almost results in her trial for murder, but Robert Montgomery and her mother go to the bat with a hard-boiled alibi and everybody lives happily ever after, except the aviator, who drank Letty's wine, and it served him right.

As for the stage show, that is as dainty and colorful as it could be. Hoehle's symphony orchestra plays "Tannhaeuser;" the Chester Hale Girls dance like nymphs at Miami; there are two crooning maidens with moonbeam voices; there is a juggler who could balance the moon on the lobe of his ear, and there are three dancers who have an Egyptian specialty of novel flavor. There's also Lois Miller at the organ, who gave a series of beautiful songs beautifully.

Chatterton, Powell in Stanley

By EDWARD W. GOSS

Ruth Chatterton in "The Rich Are Always With Us," her initial picture for First National, is in the Stanley today. Appearing with Miss Chatterton is a new leading man, George Brent. Bette Davis and John Miljan. On the stage is Dick Powell in his old job as master of ceremonies. Dick has returned from Hollywood, where he played in "Blessed Event."

"The Rich Are Always With Us," although enjoyable, cannot be termed an extraordinary production. The story is a bit thick and tends to make the audience impatient. It concerns very rich folk. Ruth Chatterton plays the wife of a broker, John Miljan, who tires of her after 10 years of married life. Ruth knows hubby has a "lady friend" and, to retaliate, she plays around with a novelist, George Brent. Ruth finally catches her husband doing something he shouldn't and divorces him. By this time she loves George Brent, the novelist.

Does Ruth hate her divorced husband? No, sir. She is one of those maternal women. She looks upon her former husband as a small boy who needs her. Therefore, Ruth assumes the attitude of protector and friend of her divorced husband; while Brent is left dangling in mid-air. Brent, by the way, has a lady anxious to marry him, but he loves Ruth, and that's that. Bette Davis is the girl who loves Brent.

Through many feet of film Brent, madly in love with Ruth and she with him, is kept waiting. At the finale they are married—in a hospital, where Ruth has gone to nurse her former husband back to health and happiness. He had been in an automobile accident earlier in the story. Ruth and George don't go on a honeymoon. You see, Ruth decides to forego a honeymoon because she wants to nurse her "ex."

If the story is a strain on the imagination, the acting pays up for the strain. Every player turns in an excellent depiction.

The stage show, including a clever novelty dance by the chorus, is worth seeing.

'Tough to Be Famous' Now in Davis

"It's Tough To Be Famous," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Mary Brian and Walter Catlett, is showing on the Davis screen. The picture shows the experiences of a national hero, played by Doug, Jr. It is a fast moving film, with humor and love spread through its entire length.

Kennywood Bills Two Bands Monday

Two bands, Kay Kyser's and Art Giles', will alternate Monday evening in Kennywood Park's dance pavilion. Music tomorrow afternoon and evening will be played by Izzy Cervone's Orchestra.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Don't Make Children Suffer Because Life Hurt You

Lila's mamma thinks she should wrap her little girl up in cotton wool to "keep her from getting hurt." Marriage brought her nothing but heartaches, so she's determined "to save her little girl from what she went through;" and she throws a fit every time Lila mentions her sweetheart.

"Should I listen to her?" implores her baby, "or should I go ahead and get married? I love Tom and he loves me, and I am so unhappy when I am not with him."

But mamma still insists.

Is mamma being wise—or is she just a kibitzer?

Dear Sally Martin:

Please, won't you give me some advice? I am so miserable I don't know what to do.

I am 19 and in love. Tom, the boy in the case, loves me, too, and he wants me to marry him. He is 24 and, honestly, he is a fine fellow. I don't mean he is perfect or anything like that. I wouldn't expect him to be. I'm not perfect myself. But he has a good job with a future, and everyone likes him and thinks well of him—that is everyone but my mother—and she doesn't think well of any man.

You see, years ago, when I was a little girl, our home was broken up by divorce, and it all made her very bitter. She never would let me have beaus. She has always tried to teach me to hate men, and she never wanted me to go out with any, for fear I might think I cared for them and want to get married.

She says marriage never brings anything but unhappiness; that it is better to stay out of it so you won't get hurt, even if you do feel lonely, and that feeling lonely is better than having your heart broken.

MOTHER OBJECTS

Well, maybe, I was wrong to disobey her, but when I got a job in an office two years ago I met Tom. He works where I do, and during the two years I've worked with him he has never showed himself as anything but fine and decent, and he's been promoted several times.

I have been going out with him, against her wishes, for about six months, and now he wants me to marry him, and I want to say "yes." But every time I mention it to mother she begins to cry, and says I'll be sorry if I don't listen to her.

Sometimes she almost makes me believe she is right. I've seen so many unhappy marriages myself that I am beginning to wonder if maybe going on alone isn't better than having your life marred by misery.

What do you think? Is mother right, or could I really be happy if I married Tom?

LILA.

AFRAID TO LIVE

Is mamma right? No honey, she isn't. Of course there are unhappy marriages, and there is no guarantee that yours wouldn't be unhappy. That much is true.

But nothing on earth can make you so happy as being afraid to live, and that, really, is what ails mamma now.

Your father may have been cruel to her. He may have been mean and unfair. But even if he was, what he did to her didn't hurt her half so badly as what she did to herself when she allowed herself to grow bitter and shut life out.

And the chances are that she, herself, was partly to blame for what happened to her. Whether she was or not, she is to blame for the way she has met life since that tragedy happened—and she has no right to try to cripple your life by visiting her old hurt on you.

So if you're sure that you love Tom, and that he is fine and decent, go ahead to your big adventure, youngster.

Whether it is a happy adventure or not is largely up to you—up to the sense and understanding and tolerance and humor you bring to it.

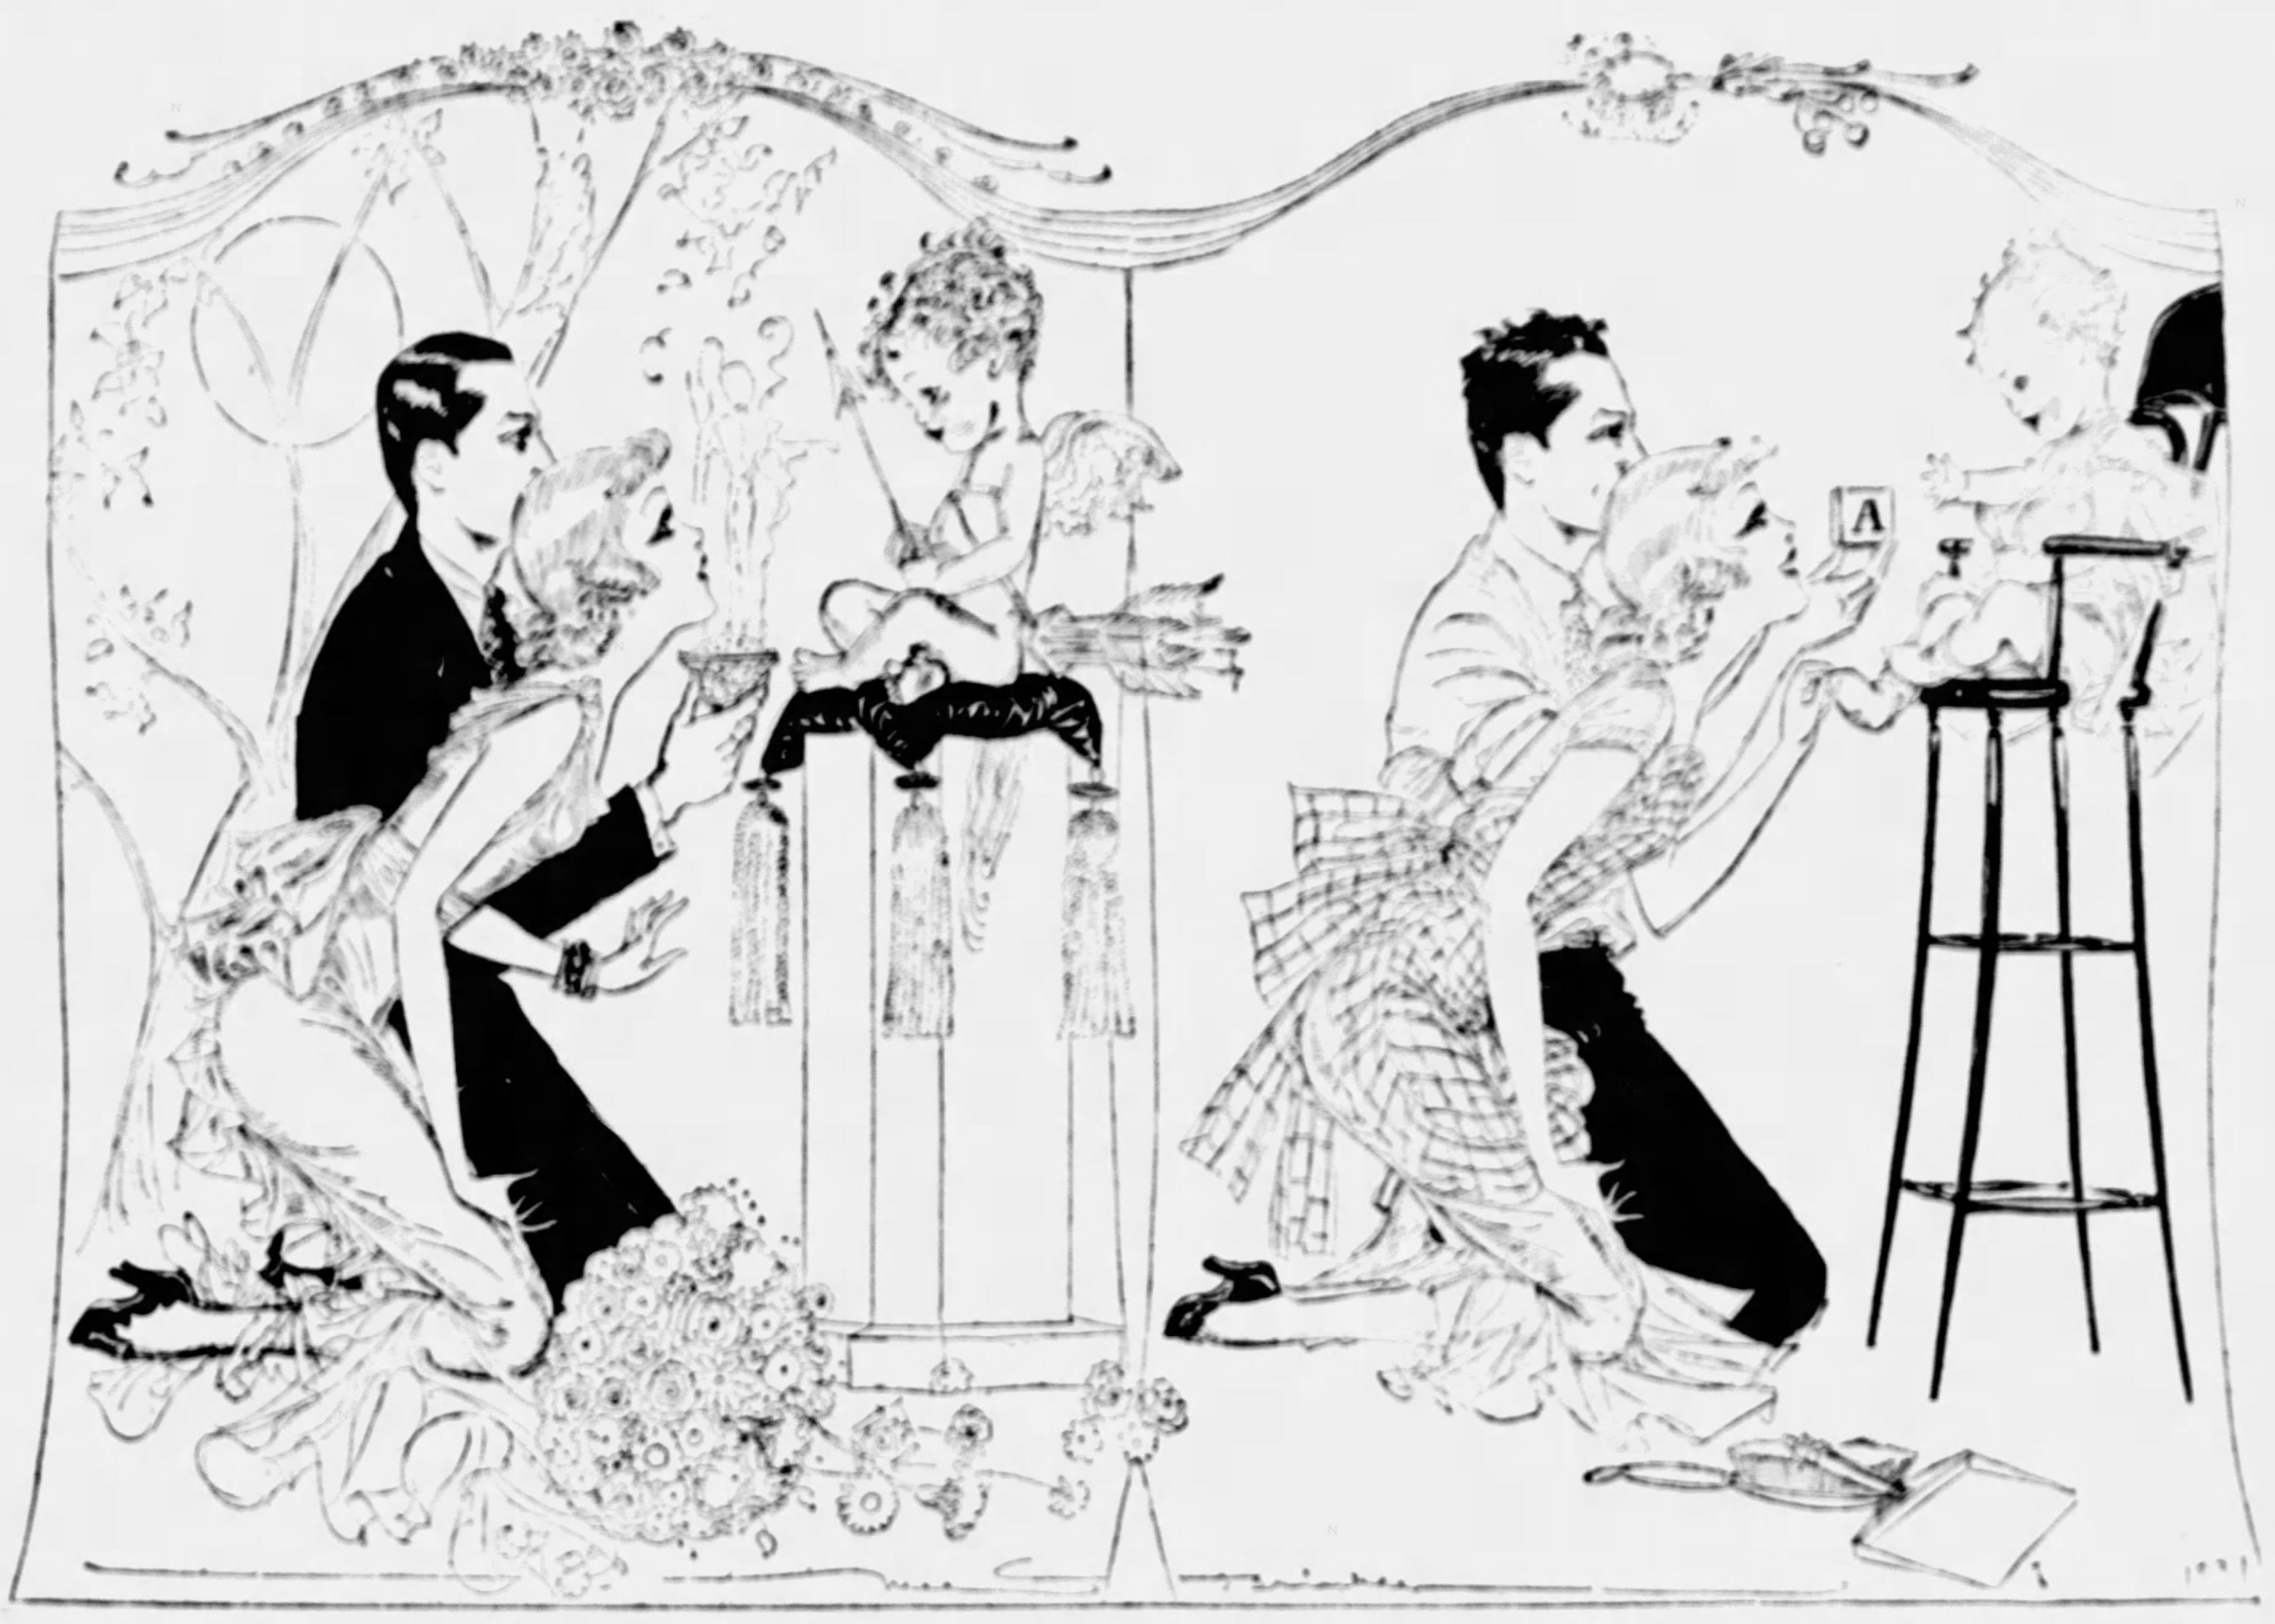
REINCARNATION -:- -:- -:-

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



Jill and Jack, meaning you and I, and many other women and the men they love, worshiped first at a Pagan shrine. They held their devotions in moonlight and roses. Flowers and incense were their offerings. Their idol was a pink and white and gold child. Eternally young, and very old.

They worship still—or is it again? The scene is very different; but the pose of the actors is the same, and the one enthroned is still a pink and white and gold child; only young, not old. Save in this, He is the re-embodiment of the idol who sat in the moonlight. He has not so much hair, and he is not wise—but he is the skin-changing reincarnation of that other one just the same. He sits upon a highchair instead of a marble pedestal. His mother and father bring food and clothes and toys and love, instead of flowers and incense. One actor wears an apron. The other a few lines of care on his handsome countenance.

Recipe for witnessing an actual reincarnation. Fall in love, marry, and have a little child.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Want a Cupid's bow mouth? Too simple. Anoint the lips with a cream, place the first finger in the center of the upper lip, thumb at one end, second finger at the other, keep first finger (in the center) stationary and draw toward it the thumb and second finger. Makes a lovely pucker.

The three-day liquid diet for reducing produces results. No solid foods allowed except perhaps a nibble at a cracker now and then. The menu consists of fruit juices, skim milk, buttermilk, tomato juice, clear broths, clam juice, unsweetened lemonade, clear tea and clear coffee. Go on this liquid spree once a month and in a year you will be pounds minus.

Make-up should be removed with a thin cold cream or a liquid cleanser; the skin prefers that process to the immediate application of soap and water. After the creaming, plunge into the facial sudsings, and after the rinsing and drying, put on some more cream. Complexions thrive when they are petted. Those dingy-looking skins one sees now and then are merely the victims of neglect. Soaping, friction drying, creaming all contribute to the welfare of the complexion, freshening and beautifying it.

Because of the struggle to attain the boyish shape and the wearing of skin tight brassieres, there is considerable hollering going on for advice concerning figure development. Girls are swinging their arms about in an effort to promote the high chest once again. That's good for 'em. Few women get proper exercise, nor do all of them breathe properly, flooding the lower cells of the lungs with fresh air, which habit causes the blood streams to steam up, tint the complexion with that lovely carnation pink, the likes of which no drug store paint can duplicate.

Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM
As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

What to Expect

All four aces will be held by one of the four players about once in 95 deals, so that a specified player (as yourself) may expect to hold "150 aces," as it is termed, once in 379 deals.

Lord Yarborough was so poor a card holder that a hand containing no card above a 9 is still termed "a Yarborough." There is 1 chance in 1,828 for a particular player to hold so poor a hand. Often a hand lacking a single probable trick is termed "a bust."

It is important to know how a given number of missing cards most probably are divided between opponents. In case you find nine cards in your own hand and in dummy, your best chance as a declarer is to go for the drop. This means that you should lay down your Ace and K, expecting to capture the missing four cards in two leads. Five missing cards break 3-2, 68 times in 100. Six missing cards of a suit break 3-3 only 35 times in 100. Eight with A-K-J call for a finesse when trying to trap the missing Q. Finesse also when holding 10 to A-Q-J.

Continually a knowledge concerning what you may expect of your partner is needed to bid or play to the best advantage.

Chances in 1,000 for partner to hold missing cards:

Number missing	1	2	3	4	5
No. held . . . None	667	439	285	182	114
No. held . . . 1	333	456	462	411	338
No. held . . . 2		105	222	308	352
No. held . . . 3			31	90	162
No. held . . . 4				9	32
No. held . . . 5					2
	1000	1000	1000	1000	1000

The above table shows, for example, that before you have seen any hand except your own that your partner is more liable to hold one of two cards missing from your hand than he is either to hold neither one nor both of them. There are almost even chances that your partner will hold just one of three missing cards. Seven times out of 10 your partner will hold either one or two cards of four that are missing, and almost the same is true for his holding either one or two of five missing cards.

An average dummy contains 3 probable assisting tricks, therefore your partner requires something better than 3 probable tricks to at once assist an opening bid of only one. He may assist an opening bid of two upon something less than the average 3 probable assisting tricks. Four small trumps plus one sure trick, or even four small trumps justify an immediate assist of an opening bid of three (when employed as a demand bid).

Speaking mathematically, normal trump support means that declarer and dummy jointly hold 8 trumps, or 7 in case dummy holds the highest missing honor. But the approach tactics, now almost universally followed by every bidder, make it unwise to support at once a trump make upon only 3 small trumps, provided any other course is open. You may, however, at once support upon three trumps, provided these are headed by either A, K, or Q-J.

The way trumps are divided (as 7-2, 6-3, or 5-4) between declarer and dummy has no possible influence on the way adverse trumps lie. The contrary belief is merely an ancient superstition of unknown origin.

How to Train Your Child

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Calmness With Children

I think that one of the most important things we can discover about ourselves is the fact that we have a certain natural tempo, and the second important thing is to gear ourselves—usually down—to that tempo.

This is a quality that I believe children inevitably sense in their elders. The adult who goes calmly, never in fits and starts, will produce a behavior in his child which is harmonious and full of poise.

Memories of mothers who jerk a small child into his clothing; who snatch possessions from their children in fear of breakage; who wait until the last moment, then frantically call the child to "come right now"—mothers who, in short, build up an atmosphere of hurry and confusion—come to mind far more readily than pictures of unhurried, unruffled mothers.

How restful and soothing is the person who has discovered his tempo and plays his tune of life at that tempo! I don't mean a monotonous personality. There must be varied speeds, of course, but there need never be uncontrolled speeds which induce what is commonly termed "nervousness" in all persons in the vicinity of the one who goes in jerks.

A mother complains that her son is high-strung, tense, jerky and nervous, yet in a screech she orders him to be calm and quiet! Her every activity is done in gasps and rushes. Even her rest periods begin with a loud, explosive sigh of weariness. And the child takes it on quite naturally. The same boy, in the company of unhurried people, assumes their attitude and is a different child.

If you want calm, poised children look first at your own mannerisms, your own habits of behavior. Snatching and jerking and hurrying cannot, in the nature of things, produce a child of even tempo, or rythmic actions and calm bearing.

Household Hints

Peas placed in boiling water for eight minutes and then frozen in water will keep indefinitely, without any loss of flavor when thawed out and cooked.

Never add milk when thinning cream, as sometimes the addition of this will "sour" the milk. If cream is too thick for use, always thin down with a little water.

Before baking potatoes let them lie in hot water for 15 minutes, then dry them and brush with oil. They will cook in about a third of the usual time and be more mealy.

To bring out the natural brilliance of table glassware, give a quick polish to each piece while setting the table. Use a soft substance that won't scratch or leave a fuzz. There is a new type of hemstitched square tissue, about the size of a handkerchief, which is ideal for polishing glassware because of its soft but strong texture.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Neglecting a Way to Avoid Diphtheria Is Inexcusable

Dr. Copeland

Diphtheria is an acute, contagious disease, extremely fatal in young children between the ages of 1 year and 10 years. The bacillus of the disease is commonly found in a membrane in the throat, but the poison it produces quickly spreads throughout the system.

Children who have recently recovered from measles or scarlet fever are especially susceptible. The disease is very easily contracted when unhealthy conditions of the throat are present.

The attack of diphtheria usually begins with sore throat, headache and fever. Patches or a membrane may be seen in the throat. Very shortly this membrane may extend downward to the larynx, or through the Eustachian tubes to the ear, or upward into the nose. In spite of the gravity of the symptoms, the patient does not have a high temperature. This fact may often lead to a misconception of the seriousness of the attack.

The disease usually lasts from 10 days to two weeks in cases of moderate severity. The treatment consists of the administration of anti-toxin, which should be given very early in the attack. Early treatment is important, before the heart has become weakened.

It hardly seems possible that anyone throughout the length and breadth of the land could be ignorant of the great value of the preventive treatment of this dread disease. Boards of health stress it in public notices, and doctors and nurses in schools and in private practice talk, write and preach about it.

The procedure of protection is simple. There is no more pain than that of a pin prick. The treatment gives immunity for years or for life in 90 per cent of cases, and is rarely followed by unpleasant symptoms.

It is beyond my comprehension how anyone can possibly have a prejudice against the use of a preventive measure of this kind. Bear in mind the high rate of fatality of the disease, and the fearful complications of paralysis, impairment of sight, permanent loss of voice or other disabilities.

Diphtheria is communicated from the sick to the well by direct contact, by clothing soiled with secretions, or through the medium of "carriers." These carriers are usually children who are not ill themselves, but who carry in their throats virulent germs. These germs transmit the disease to those with whom the children are associated.

A rigid quarantine should be insisted upon where there is a case of the disease. All contact with other members of the family must be avoided. When the patient is recovering the quarantine must be maintained until three cultures from the throat and nose have been found to be free from the germ.

Answers to Health Queries

MRS. J. J. Q.—What will cure snoring?

A.—Snoring is usually due to mouth breathing; lying on the back is a very common cause of the trouble. Make sure that the nose and throat are clear. If there is a tendency to catarrh, clear it up first of all. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

A. M. Q.—What causes large brown spots on the skin?

A.—This is probably due to liver spots. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Using the Fork

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Which is the correct procedure in using a knife and fork? To cut the meat, lay down the knife, transfer the fork to the right hand and then put the fork to the mouth, or, to cut the food and put the fork in the mouth with the left hand?

We have had a good deal of discussion on this point and I would appreciate knowing which way is accepted as correct here.

M. H.

Either of these ways of eating is correct. The first one you describe is the so-called American way, the fork-shifting way. The other one is usually referred to as the European method of eating, the non-fork-shifting way. You rarely see a European shift the fork to the right hand after the knife has been placed on the plate. He or she eats with the fork in the left hand and the knife in the right. Personally, I prefer this way of eating, for to me the constant shifting of the fork to the right hand is too full of unnecessary motions . . . seems fussy. But as I say, in America, both ways are correct. However, I feel that your question would not be completely answered if I did not add that increasingly in this country, the non-fork-shifting method is finding favor, probably because of increased travel.

Ice Cream Service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you be kind enough to "set me right" as to the correct silver to use when serving molded ice cream and small cakes (soft cakes) on the same plate, individually?

2. As I have no ice cream forks, would it be correct to use salad forks? Assuming that I did have ice cream forks, would this fork be used for the cake and ice cream, or would I have to supply separate forks for the cake also?

3. Is a spoon or fork used for a fruit cocktail?

F. F.

1. Ideally, the correct service for this would be an ice cream fork and an ice cream spoon. For ideally a hostess places the double silver service for all kinds of desserts. Whether, as a matter of fact, the guest uses both or not . . . the guest is given the choice of using both or either one.

For this service, often we see the small tea fork (and a very convenient silverpiece it is, too) and the tea spoon.

2. If you haven't ice cream forks, or tea forks, I think that you might, as you suggest, place the salad fork, for the cake and the tea spoon, for the ice cream.

3. It is best form to place a tea spoon for a fruit cocktail. We usually want to eat the delicious juice of the fruit cocktail.

American Legion Job Plea, Prohibition Debate Rebuttal on WCAE

Rebuttals conclude the interest-rousing dry law debate between Mrs. William M. Hall, anti-prohibition exponent, and the Rev. Dr. J. E. Wagner, of the Mt. Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church, dry adherent, on WCAE tonight at 8:15 o'clock. Each speaker has been allotted seven minutes for rebuttal. Arguments pro and con by the same speakers were broadcast from the WCAE studios last night and details of the debate appear elsewhere in the Sun-Telegraph today.

Mr. McGinnis

Charles W. McGinnis, state vice chairman of the American Legion unemployment drive, makes an appeal in behalf of the [illegible] in a broadcast from the studios of WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock. In connection with the address a musical program is presented by the fife and drum corps of Homewood Post 351, prize winners in the gala Armistice Day parade in Pittsburgh last year. The corps this year is considered one of the finest in the state.

Two hours of continuous dance music by well-known radio dance bands is the fare for WCAE listeners tonight.

Charlie Agnew and his orchestra, Chicago, alternate with Vincent Lopez orchestra in the program with Louis Sobel, Broadway columnist, during the cigaret dance hour on WCAE from 10 to 11. Then follow Russ Columbo and his orchestra, the WCAE orchestra and Jack Pettis and his orchestra until midnight.

Program Pointers

Cardinal Richelieu and his intrigues are involved in the dramatic presentation during the First Nighter broadcast on KDKA tonight at 9:30. The dramatization, "Hearts and Coronets," is based on a true incident in the Court of Louis XIII and features June Meredith with Don Ameche and Jack Doty in the leading roles.

Miss Meredith

Frank I. Gollmar, Sheriff of Allegheny County, is guest speaker during the Magyar program directed by John G. Toth on KQV tonight at 8. The musical portion of the program is presented by Magdalene Weiss, violinist, and Joseph Geto, pianist.

Budding Pittsburgh radio stars on KDKA's "Radio Debuts" program today at 7:40 are Maxine Jacobs, elocutionist of the Pittsburgh School for the Blind; "The Macks," vocal trio of McKeesport, and Ukulele Bill Peterson, singing and playing the ukulele.

Dr. Samuel Harden Church gives the last of a series of talks on "Prohibition Uncovered" under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the National Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform on WJAS tonight at 6:05.

The blackface comedians, Henry and Bozo, are featured with the Miniature Minstrels, a complete minstrel show in 20 minutes, during the DX Revel on KQV at 1 a. m. The Three Musical Clowns, Dolores Pachera, George Tamara, tenor, and Jimmy Zummo's Orchestra also are heard.

Some unknown facts about the stars of the silver screen away from the studios are revealed when Cal York, ace movie reporter, appears on the "Screen Personalities" program on WJAS tonight at 8:30.

Sixty-five members of the Girls' Lyric Club and Soprano, Alto and Bass Chorus of the Norwin Union High School, of Irwin, Pa., present a half-hour concert from KDKA today at 4:30.

The McKeesport Male Chorus under the direction of Ben G. Williams presents a varied program of melodies from WCAE today at 4:45. Joseph Walsh, tenor, is soloist.

"A Russian Lament," by Teresa Del Riego, and Charles Marshall's "I Hear You Calling Me" are heard on KDKA tonight at 10, when Aden Lowther, well-known Pittsburgh tenor, presents a program of songs. He is accompanied by Ruth Ley.

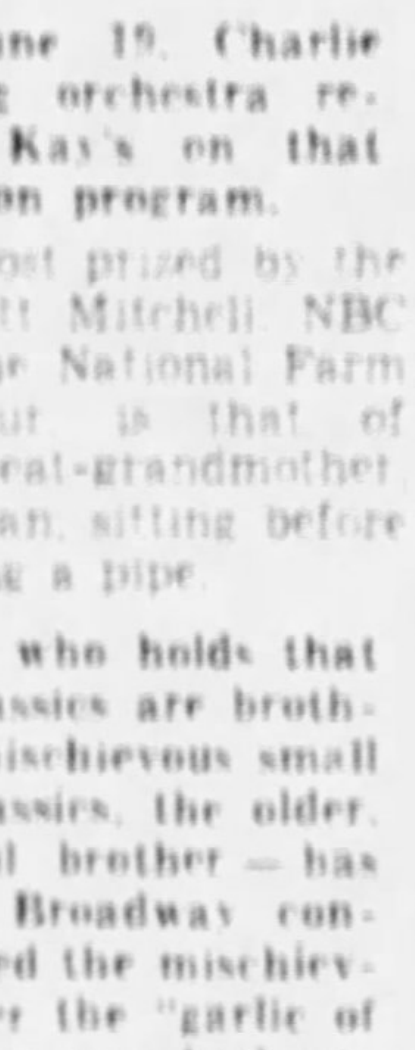
Fan Fare

Pat Barnes' latest book, "Sketches of Life," said to be something new in writings based on radio programs, comes off the press today. The material in it comprises a series of his most popular sketches in addition to his tributes to Edison and Rockne. As a preface he tells how his programs are devised, developed and rehearsed.



Mr. Barnes

A radio scribe comes forth with the news that Booth Tarkington, Zona Gale and many others equally famous are being mentioned as prospective writers for radio. Incidentally, those delightful "Tish" stories by Mary Roberts Rinehart are being prepared for air presentation.

Beginning June 19, Charlie Agnew's singing orchestra replaces Herbie Kay's on that Sunday afternoon program.

The picture most prized by the mother of Everett Mitchell, NBC announcer for the National Farm and Home Hour, is that of Everett's great-great-grandmother, a Penobscot Indian, sitting before her tepee smoking a pipe.

Leo Reisman, who holds that jazz and the classics are brothers—jazz, the mischievous small brother, and classics, the older, more thoughtful brother—has challenged the Broadway conductor who called the mischievous little brother the "garlic of music." Reisman says both are of the same origin.

George Rector was decorated once by President Loubet of France for his culinary skill.

Rudy Vallee's brother, Bill, works on a New York tabloid. Rudy's real name, by the way, is Hubert Vallee, and Rudy himself has a yen for writing but no time to indulge.

Question Box

How long have the Shindiggers been broadcasting from WWSW? How many of them are there? Who is their manager? E. R. H., Tarentum.

The Shindiggers have been broadcasting from WWSW for almost a year. There are usually 10 entertainers—sometimes 11. Bill Zemla, of Tarentum, wrestler of Allegheny Valley, is their manager. They all live in Natrona Heights, and are all members of the volunteer fire department there.

Official Pittsburgh 111

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on May 2, 1932, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz.:

BILL NO. 736.

AN ORDINANCE widening Bryant street in the Tenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Morningside avenue westwardly 66.37 feet more or less to the easterly line of Morningside road (now vacated) and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, that Bryant street in the Tenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh from Morningside avenue westwardly 66.37 feet more or less to the easterly line of Morningside road (now vacated) shall be and the same is hereby widened to a uniform width of 50 feet, so that the street as widened shall lie between the lines as hereinafter described, as follows:

The southerly line shall coincide with the present southerly line of the street.

The northerly line shall be parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 50 feet northwardly from the above described southerly line.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Bryant street in the Tenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Morningside avenue westwardly 66.37 feet more or less to the easterly line of Morningside road (now vacated) to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on May 2, 1932, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly, authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits, viz.:

BILL NO. 745.

AN ORDINANCE widening Sussex avenue in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh at Woodbourne avenue and from Norwich avenue to Dorchester way, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Sussex avenue in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh at Woodbourne avenue and from Norwich avenue to Dorchester way be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width by taking for public use for highway purposes the property hereinafter designated and described as Portions "A," "B" and "C," respectively, to wit:

PORTION "A"

Beginning at the intersection of the present easterly line of Sussex avenue and the southwesterly line of Woodbourne avenue; thence extending along the southwesterly line of Woodbourne avenue south 42 degrees 14 minutes east 40 feet to a point; thence south 89 degrees 51 minutes west [illegible] feet to the easterly line of Sussex avenue; thence along the present easterly line of Sussex avenue north 1 degree [illegible] minutes east 40 feet to the place of beginning.

PORTION "B"

Beginning at the intersection of the present easterly line of Sussex avenue and the southerly line of Norwich avenue; thence extending southwardly by a straight line for a distance of 121.56 feet to the dividing line between lots No. 496 and No. 497 in the Plan of the Fourth Ward, Brookline, at a point 11 feet eastwardly along the said dividing line from the present easterly line of Sussex avenue, said Plan being of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book, Vol. 23, pages 192 and 193; thence southwardly by a straight line for a distance of 61 feet to the easterly line of Sussex avenue at the dividing line between lots No. 496 and No. 497 in the said Plan of the Fourth Ward Brookline; thence northwardly along the present easterly line of Sussex avenue 60 feet to an angle in the same; thence northwardly along the same 123.32 feet to the place of beginning.

PORTION "C"

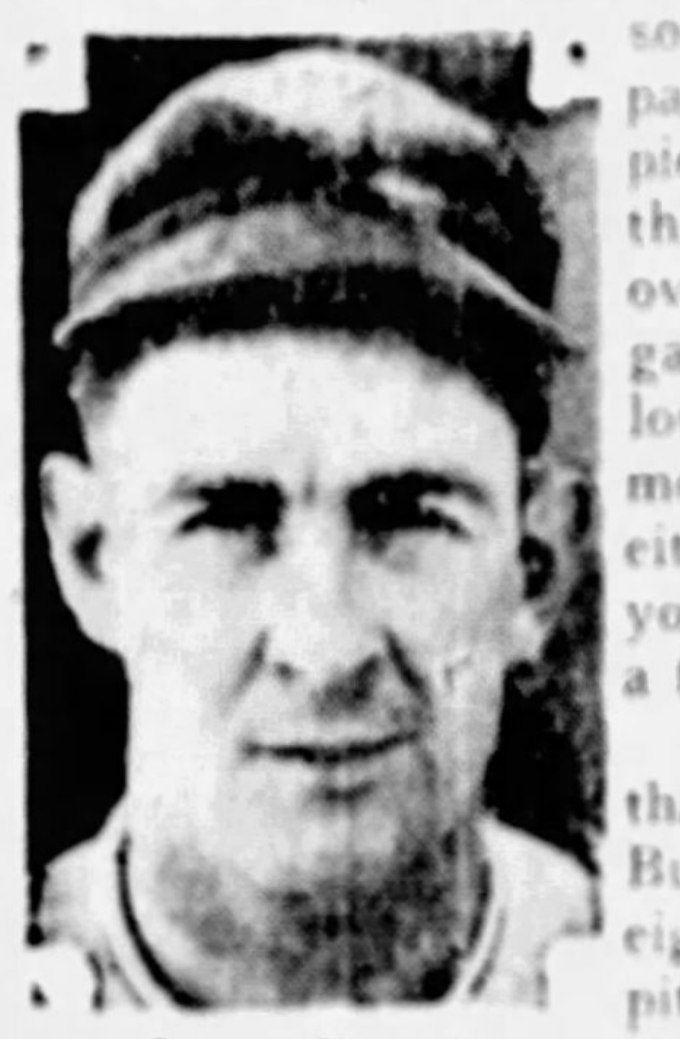
FRENCH IN 12 OF PIRATES' 28 GAMES

NEW EVIDENCE THAT you can't always judge a pitcher by his record of games won and lost sticks out in the case of Larry French. The two hit shutout, one of the season's classics, which the Pirate southpaw pitched against the World Champion Cardinals yesterday, was only his third victory of the season, all scored over the Redbirds. He hadn't won a game in exactly one month. He had lost six in a row and is charged with more defeats than any other hurler in either major league, eight all told. Yet you'd have to travel a long way to find a flinger more serviceable to his club.



Larry French

French has worked in no fewer than 12 of the 28 games played by the Bucs to date, or almost half, starting eight and relieving in four. He has pitched a total of 72 1-3 innings, or a shade better than eight full games, and his record of hits and earned runs shows not all of his numerous defeats were due to ineffective hurling. There isn't a harder worker in baseball, and chuckers with the same spirit would be welcome on any club. Incidentally, Larry yesterday showed up the dope that a southpaw can't beat right-hand hitters. Every man in the St. Louis lineup was swinging from the right side of the plate. A good pitcher is a good pitcher under any conditions, no matter which arm he uses.

BECAUSE HE HAD lost return bouts to King Tut and Jimmy McLarnin, it was said the Fargo Express couldn't make return trips, but Billy Petrolle spiked that theory by repeating against Battling Battalino via the decision route last night—only what was to have been expected in view of the lopsidedness of the first go.

Meanwhile Sammy Fuller was winning the verdict over Jack (Kid) Berg in their second clash. Last night's results would appear to eliminate Battalino and Berg from the lightweight title running, and narrow down Tony Canzoneri's contending field to Petrolle, Fuller and Kid Chocolate.

CHARLEY DEVENS, Harvard pitcher, who fanned 72 batters in six games, has a rival for Eastern college pitching honors in Ken Auer, of Fordham. Auer has won seven games in a row and piled up 54 strikeouts. In his first six games, one of them cut to five innings, he whiffed an even 50 in 50 innings.

Auer, only a sophomore, is adjudged to have big possibilities in the professional baseball loops after his college days. Fordham has contributed many good players to the pro ranks, including Jack Coffey, the present coach; Dick Rudolph, Frankie Frisch, Al Le Fevre, Johnny Murphy, Charley Sheerin, Hormidas Aube and Neil Andrews.

THE TWO-MILE triangular college boat race on the Ohio River at Marietta this afternoon, with Marietta competing against the varsity crews of Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, reflects great credit on the spirit of the home college and the enterprise and sportsmanship of Marietta's citizens. Crew racing is an expensive sport, with no financial returns, and Marietta is not a rich college, but where there's a will there's a way, and 160 citizens of the town made today's big event possible by subscribing $15 each to defray the expenses of the visiting eights. A train of 24 observation cars and a total of 10,000 spectators attest the popularity of the move to build up college rowing in a section where it was unknown until Marietta brought in Washington last year for the first race. The Ohio college has done very well from a competitive standpoint, too, despite an enrollment of only 203 male students and a crew averaging but 165 pounds. Last year Elias MacDonald's charges forced Washington to record time to win.

Rube Walberg

REALIZING THAT HE'LL have to get another first-class right-hand pitcher to put the A's in the American League pennant fight, Connie Mack admits that he hopes to put through a trade for one before the time limit expires June 15.

According to rumor, if such a deal is made, Rube Walberg will figure in it. Mack is said to have soured on the left-hander who lost his first four games, did not score a victory until yesterday and even then had to be relieved. The purchase of Lefty Freitas by the A's lends color to the rumor.

THOUGH THE CLEVELAND club has finally closed for a 25-year lease on the Municipal Stadium, it is not certain that the Indians will be able to move from their present park to the lake front for the June home stay. The shift may be postponed until July.

The explanation is that the infield at the Stadium, which is filled-in ground, has sunk, particularly the pitching mound, and some time will be required to build it up again.

IN THE EAST on business, Barney Oldfield again assures all listeners that he was not joking when he announced his intention of returning to the automobile speed game to try to break Sir Malcolm Campbell's world record. "I never was more serious in my life," Oldfield declared. "I am going to try for the world record at Daytona next February. This record breaking business is, after all, a matter of judgment and experience—and the car. I think that after 30 years in the game, my judgment and experience are adequate, and Harry Miller has the plans for the car."

IN SOME MAJOR league sectors the suspicion is being voiced that the transfer of unusually large quantities of Cardinal playing material to the Reds had a connection with the St. Louis owners' purchase of the Columbus franchise, formerly controlled by Cincinnati.

Since Columbus was made part of the Breadon-Rickey chain last year, the Cards have turned over to the Reds Chick Hafey, Taylor Douthit, Walter Roettger and Andy High, and recently sent back Benny Frey. It is now said that this material, at least in some part, was given up in payment for the A. A. farm.

THOUGH CARNEGIE TECH has never been exceptionally strong in track and field sports, now and then the Skibos come to the front with an outstanding individual performer. Such a man was John Kelly, of a decade ago, who was one of this district's leading sprinters and still holds the Tartan record for the century and the 220-yard dash.

Guy Halferty

Another was Howard Dykeman, whose marks of 4:29 for the mile and 9:53 for two miles are rarely surpassed around here. And the present varsity team boasts Tom Coulter, who can score points in the 220, the quarter mile, the broad jump and both hurdles.

NOW THERE COMES to Guy Halferty, Plaid track coach, Lawrence R. Burke, a plebe, who never had a track shoe on before entering Carnegie, but who shows exceptional promise as a half-miler. Burke is a New York boy who turned out for freshman cross-country last fall and at the end of the season lowered to 14:36 the Schenley Park course record of 14:47 2-5, set by Moore, of Pitt, in 1927. In the dual meet with the Pitt freshmen this week, Burke defeated Kiger, star Panther 880 man, who was timed at 2:01.4. This tied a Tech record that had stood for 18 years, since E. R. Hazleton set it in 1914. It is not exceptional time for a half mile, but it is remarkable for a boy in his first season at track. Burke's time has come down with each meet from 2:10 to his present mark, and Coach Halferty believes he will be around 1:55 next season, which will enable him to step in almost any company in the country.

PRYOR CHOICE TO CAPTURE CENTURY

By JESS CARVER

A less spectacular, individually, array of high school track and field stars than competed a year ago will invade the precincts of the Pitt Stadium today for the 'steenth annual W. P. I. A. L. championship meet, but the competition is expected to be just as keen and the outcome of the tussling for the team trophy as much in doubt as it has been in former years. A total of 41 schools are entered.

Competition will get under way at 10:30 this morning with trials in the dashes, high and low hurdles, broad jump and field events. Finals in all events will be run off in the afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock.

A year ago Washington crashed through with 20 points to carry off the honors. Uniontown was a very close second with 18. Connellsville finished third with 17. New Brighton a surprise fourth with 16 and Ford City and Ellwood City tied for fifth with 15. In all, 25 teams figured in the scoring.

NEW CASTLE STRONG

Washington is not rated any sort of an outstanding favorite to retain its honors, the crack New Castle squad, which two weeks ago won its third Pitt Interscholastic championship in four years, being considered powerful enough to usurp whatever favorite regard there is to be had. Connellsville and Uniontown both are expected to make strong showings, with Ford City and a surprisingly formidable Midland team not to be counted out.

Few of the 1931 individual champions will be back to defend their laurels, and those who are scheduled to return are conceded to be odds-on choices to land triumphs. O'Dile Pryor, crack Ford City Negro sprinter, who ran third last year in the century in a disappointing race, looks to be the class of the field in the century. Lash, of Beaver Falls, victor in '31 in the pole vault, has improved his form to such an extent in dual meets this year and in the Geneva Interscholastics that he is outstanding in the vaulting field in this section.

41 SCHOOLS ENTERED

Athletes representing Aliquippa, Ambridge, Beaver, Beaver Falls, Bellevue, Braddock, Burgettstown, Butler, Connellsville, Dormont, Dunbar, Duquesne, East Huntington, East Pike Run, Ellwood City, Ford City, Georges Township, Greensburg, Har-Brack, Homestead, Latrobe, McDonald, McKees Rocks, Midland, Monessen, Monongahela, Mt. Lebanon, Mt. Pleasant, New Brighton, New Castle, Norwin, Rankin, South Union, Swissvale, Tarentum, Turtle Creek, Uniontown, Verona, Washington, Waynesburg and Wilkinsburg will compete.

Among other 1931 victors back will be Grimm, New Brighton hurdle star, and Zuoney, Ford City half-miler. Donner, of Tarentum, who tied with Link, of Monessen, for the winner's medal in the high jump, also is entered.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE BELL OF THE MAIDEN—This bell was cast in the days of Emperor Young Lo, but the artisan failed in his mission, as the metal refused to flow. On the third attempt the beautiful daughter of the bellmaker darted forward to the brink of the roaring crucible and hurled herself amid the bronze and gold, which at that moment began to flow. Her fiance, who tried to check her, just barely succeeded in grabbing her slipper. To this day, when the great bell has been struck and its booming harmonies die away, there rises an after wail which is a perfect echo of the Chinese word "hsie" (slipper), and men know that Kuan Yu's daughter, whose virgin soul is dwelling in the metal of the bell, is calling for her lost shoe. JAPAN'S EMOTIONAL SAFETY VALVE—The Japanese language was singularly free of expletives until 1904. In that year the Russo-Japanese War caused the Japanese to feel this want very keenly. To provide an emotional safety valve, a committee of scientists met at the solicitation of the government and created the word "Banzai" (ten thousand years). The word is an equivalent of our "hurray" and the only Japanese swear word at the same time.

TOMORROW: THE GREAT WALL OF CHINA.

EIGHTS RACE AT MARIETTA

MARIETTA, O., May 21.—(AP.)—On a broad expanse of the Ohio River three cedar shells will slip gracefully into the water this afternoon and the mid-American crew race will be on.

Ellis MacDonald

Three crews, University of Pennsylvania, University of Wisconsin and Marietta College will be engaging in the first triangular race ever held in this section before an estimated crowd of some 10,000 persons.

Wisconsin and Penn arrived here late yesterday and went over the course before nightfall. It is doubtful if any of the shells will be on the river before race time.

Ellis MacDonald, coach of Marietta, alone is definitely decided on his starting lineup. Rusty Callow, of Penn, and Mike Murphy, of Wisconsin, expect to make last minute shifts.

Although outweighed several pounds per man and lacking in experience, the Ohio crew is not considered out of the race. Earlier in the week the Mariettaians swept the two-mile course in 9 minutes and 3 seconds, comparatively good time on flat water.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 21.—(AP.)—Yale's hopes of winning the mythical Eastern sprint rowing title were in the balance as the Elis faced Cornell's highly touted eight and a vastly improved Princeton boatload in the two-mile Carnegie Cup race on Lake Cayuga today.

PIE TRAYNOR . . . REACHES MILESTONE IN CAREER

Capt. Traynor, of the Pirates, who will be playing in his 1500th game as a major leaguer when the Pirates battle the Cardinals in St. Louis this afternoon. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

BUC-DODGER DEAL OFF

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The much discussed Pirate-Dodger deal, involving Pitcher Heinie Meine, the Bucs' celebrated holdout, and unnamed Brooklyn players is off. Manager Scoops Carey, of the Dodgers, called President William E. Benswanger, of the Pittsburgh club, by long distance phone this morning to report that the Brooklyn club owners had refused to put their O. K. on the arrangements which had been completed between Carey and the Pirate officials.

When the Dodgers left here Thursday after their series at Forbes Field, Manager Carey and President Benswanger had come to a complete agreement, subject to the ratification of the powers-that-be at Brooklyn. This ratification failed to materialize and the deal fell through.

The Pirate management this morning announced that Outfielder Forrest (Woody) Jensen had been sold under option to the Newark Bears of the International League. He is subject to immediate recall.

CARDS BLANKE BY FRENCH IN OPENER

ST. LOUIS, May 21.—Cheer by Larry French's victory maste piece of yesterday, George Gi son's Pirates today were eager more action against the Wo Champion Cardinals. The Bucc all but pulled themselves out of the cellar in the first brush w the Redbirds and they reali this morning that despite th eighth-place location they a actually only a step or two bel the fourth-place home team.

The standings disclose that th Cardinals, an occupant of the fi tier, have lost just as many gam as the Pittsburghers ha dropped; moreover, the Phill and Dodgers, who are slightly ahead of the Freebooters, hav each lost one more battle th have been charged against Gibb crew. So it will be seen that a little spurt is all that separat the Pirates from the leaders.

PIE HERO TODAY

Capt. Harold (Pie) Traynor wi enter today's game as a sort o hero. The gallant field leader a thirdbaseman of the Pirates, develops, will be taking part in h fifteen hundredth contest as Buccaneer. Naturally he is r ceiving the congratulations of h mates as well as of the rival pla ers. President W. E. Benswang of the Pirates also wired be wishes. Pie first played for t Pirates in the late weeks of t 1920 season. In 1921 he w farmed out to Birmingham whe he starred for the entire seas before returning to the Pittsbur Club. Traynor became the regu lar third-sacker in 1922 and th is playing his eleventh full seas with the club. His batting avera for his entire major career up t the beginning of the present se son is .323.

The second game of the se slated for this afternoon, m bring a slab duel between B Harris and Jerome Dean, two b righthanders from the Tex League. The series will be woun up tomorrow with the playing o a doubleheader. The game originally slated for Monday has bee moved up to provide one of tho St. Louis dual bills. The Pirates, therefore, will leave tomorrow night for Cincinnati, where on Tuesday they will begin a three-game series.

WANER HITS HARD

Paul Waner, equalling the major league record for two-base hits in a single game, shared the honors of yesterday's 5 to 0 succe with Larry French. The gre hitter treated himself and h mates to four doubles.

French yielded only two hits a he broke his sustained losin streak. Larry had dropped s games in a row through one cau or another; apparently he was in a fighting mood when he faced th local flock. In any event he did n allow a hit through six round Jim Collins, former Johnstown Mid-Atlantic star, breaking th spell in the seventh with a doubl French registered his third vic tory of the season, and, curiousl enough, all three of his triumph have been at the expense of th champions.

Paul Derringer opposed Frenc through eight innings. The Bucc bunched three blows in the second round to make a run, and then the battle proceeded in runless way until the sevent when Grace tallied. P. Waner third double came with two ou to score Earl.

Barbee's double and Grace' two-out single gave the invader their third marker in the eighth and they put the game on ice in the ninth when Pie Traynor' third hit scored the Waner boys.

A'S BUY FREITAS

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—(AP.)—Manager Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, late yesterday announced the purchase of Tony Freitas, left-handed pitcher, from Sacramento, of the Pacific Coast League, in a deal by which Jimmy Deshong goes to Sacramento. Freitas will report immediately and will be used as a regular starting pitcher.

U. S. WOMEN GAIN GOLF LEAD

ALL FOURSOME MATCHES LOST BY BRITONS

WENTWORTH, SURREY, England, May 21.—(AP)—The United States team of women golfers today swept the three foursome matches with a British side to take a commanding lead in the team series. Six singles matches will be played this afternoon.

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare and Mrs. Opal Hill defeated Miss Wethered and Wanda Morgan by one hole. Helen Hicks and Virginia Van Wie won from Enid Wilson and Mrs. J. B. Walker, 2 and 1, and Maureen Orcutt and Mrs. Leona Cheney defeated Molly Gourlay and Doris Park by one hole.

HICKS, VAN WIE STAR

The Misses Hicks and Van Wie had the easiest sailing and played the best golf of the three matches. They were never behind in their match with the British champion and her partner and had a medal score of 64 for the 17 holes they had to play. The cards:

[illegible]

Mrs. Vare and Mrs. Hill adopted the strategy of sticking to Miss Wethered and waiting for the famous English star to make errors. Miss Wethered's first serious lapse was at the eighth, where she missed an 18-inch dutch putt and Mrs. Vare squared the match.

MISS WETHERED ERRS

Miss Wethered's tee shot was bunkered at the twelfth and again the English pair lost the hole. Wethered topped her brassie shot at the thirteenth and Mrs. Vare got away a beautiful shot. The hole was won by the Americans and the match squared again.

The foursomes were played on the Scotch plan, the players taking alternate strokes. The cards:

[illegible]

The third match was a see-saw affair all the way, with Miss Orcutt and Mrs. Cheney playing good and bad golf in spurts, first winning three straight holes, then losing two. Miss Park drove into a deep ditch on the eighteenth hole to present the Americans with the match. The cards:

PROCTOR HURLS NO-HIT WIN

Red Proctor, star moundsman of the Clarksburg Generals, turned in a no-hit, no-run game at Clarksburg last night, the Generals defeating Johnstown, 8 to 0, in a Middle Atlantic League fray. Only 28 men faced the Clarksburg hurler, who scored two runs and secured two hits to aid his team's cause.

Only two Johnnies reached first base, one on a walk and the other on an infield error. Seven were struck out.

At Beckley, the Knights staged a seven-run rally in the eighth inning and defeated Cumberland, 12 to 7.

Charleston slipped back into a tie for third place by defeating Huntington, 11 to 5, at Huntington.

Sport Vignettes

The hottest thing right now as a fistic prospect in the Pittsburgh district is [illegible] Kane's Marty Gornick, the [illegible] boy of Old St. Patrick's [illegible]. Marty put himself in the spotlight by the manner in which he completely knocked out Marty Oldach of Erie in the second round of the semi-final battle at Hickey Park a few nights ago. A little more than a month ago, on April 7, the same Oldach had beaten Marty in a 10-round bout in McKeesport, flooring him in the first round. Marty hadn't had a bout in between. Five weeks ago he went under the management of [illegible] and his improved form in the return battle was of the eye-opener variety. He was transformed from a boxing [illegible] puncher into an aggressive [illegible] with dynamite in both fists, flooring Oldach three times in the first round and knocking him out for several counts when he finally nailed him properly in the second.

Marty Gornick

Buck McTiernan surprised the talent by his fine condition in his comeback bout against Jack Wilson in the main bout of the show in which Gornick showed to such good advantage. . . . He set the hot pace all of the way and was fresh at the finish. . . . He gives full credit to Peaches Gallagher for getting him in trim. . . . Peaches, a former boxer, is his pal and severest critic. . . . Buck's next start likely will be in Erie, where he recently defeated Joe Trippe, the bout being planned within the next two weeks.

A return bout between McTiernan and Wilson already is in the making. Wilson wants it, the fans are keen for it and Hickey Park is anxious to stage it. Wilson feels he did not fight to the best of his ability in losing to Buck, and Buck is found in his praise of the beaten man.

"Contrary to the opinion of many of the fans, Wilson is a smart boxer," Buck said yesterday as he nursed facial bruises and two puffed eyes. "Perhaps it didn't seem so from outside the ring, but he gave me plenty of opposition. He knows how to ride with a punch and he was constantly scoring to the head and face as I kept digging away at his body. I'd say that he's about as keen a boxer as any I've met."

The real name of Herman Folins, who meets Johnny Jadich, the world junior-welterweight champion, in the main bout at Hickey Park next Thursday night, is Armando Folino. . . . He was born in Italy, and his folks now reside in Newark, N. J. . . . Herman got into the boxing game as an amateur, following in the footsteps of an older brother, Joe, and was one of the best flyweights ever developed around here. . . . He turned professional in 1928, and with the exception of one bout at the Meyers Bowl a few summers ago, has done all of his money boxing in the East. . . . Tony Canzoneri, the lightweight champion, will not arrive until some time tomorrow for his non-title bout with Battling Gizzy at the Meyers Bowl, Monday night.

There no longer is any mystery about what happened to the faint-tinkling bell used for the Dempsey-Willard fight at Toledo. It or its brother was in use at Hickey Park the other night. Unless a louder gong is produced there's a good chance for a lot of after-the-bell free-for-alls in that arena.—HARRY KECK.

PETROLLE AGAIN WHIPS BAT

CHICAGO, May 21.—(AP.)—Bat Battalino ought to be about ready to admit that Billy Petrolle can beat him.

The former world featherweight champion, fortified with rare courage, stood in there in the Chicago Stadium ring last night and traded slugs with the old Fargo Express, and even knocked him down for a count of nine in the first round.

But after it was all over, Petrolle had earned a 10-round decision. And except for the first and the tenth rounds, Battalino took a decisive beating.

In the middle of the first round a whistling left hook landed squarely on Petrolle's chin and he went down to remain as long as he dared. But at the end of the round, he was popping the Hartford youth with vicious lefts to the body and rights to the head.

Tartan Net Team Loses to Hoyas

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP.)—The Georgetown University net team yesterday walloped the Carnegie Tech players from Pittsburgh, 9 to 0, by winning six singles and three doubles matches. The summary:

[illegible] Mitchell and Crowley, Georgetown, defeated Jacobs and Martin, Carnegie, 6-2, 6-2; [illegible] Georgetown, defeated Groves and Gealing, Carnegie, 6-0, 6-3; McBride and [illegible], Georgetown, defeated Jacnack and Gorshenhausen, Carnegie, 6-0, 6-1.

BUCKEYES LEAD CONFERENCE CARNIVAL

EVANSTON, Ill., May 21.—(AP)—Ohio State University today stood at the threshold of a first Western Conference track and field championship with 16 qualifying places already marked up on the Buckeye ticket.

Heading Ohio into a commanding position yesterday were Don Bennett and Jess Fazekas, who qualified in both dashes; Jack Keller, who planted himself in both hurdles events, and Homer Smith, who led the qualifiers in the javelin. Michigan, one of the favorites, and Indiana, winner of the indoor title, were left with a real task to overcome that Buckeye edge.

Michigan, however, displayed all-around strength and made a sensational showing in the quarter-mile. Four Michigan athletes competed and all of them won their heats.

George Saling, of Iowa, making a comeback after a year out of competition, performed sensationally in the hurdles and ranked as an even choice in both timber-topping events.

Michigan qualified for 15 places in the finals, followed by Indiana, Iowa and Illinois with 12 each. Minnesota had 11, Wisconsin 7, Purdue 5 and Chicago and Northwestern trailed with 2 each.

Titans to Drop Sport Scholarships

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., May 21.—President Robert F. Galbreath, of Westminster College, who attended the meeting of the Association of Colleges of the Middle Atlantic States and Maryland, held in New York two weeks ago, announces that Westminster, a member of the Middle Atlantic Association, will not offer athletic scholarships to students entering on or after September, 1933.

Westminster will probably drop many from the athletic scholarship list this year, it was indicated. Other schools in the district members of the association who will probably do the same are Allegheny, Grove City, Thiel and Geneva.

REDS REDUCE CUBS' LEAD

Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds, fighting to maintain a foothold in the National League's first division, are giving the pace-setting Chicago Cubs one of the grandest battles of the young season in their series at Redland Field.

For two days the students of Howley and Hornsby have gone into extra innings to settle their bitter dispute, and neither side could claim an advantage today. The Reds pulled a 3-to-2 decision out of the fire in 11 rounds yesterday after losing in 12 the previous afternoon.

HIGH'S HIT WINS

Andy High was the hero of the latest thriller. Two were out, two on base and Chicago one run ahead when High was inserted as a pinchhitter in the eleventh. Lonnie Warneke, Cubs' sensational young pitcher, breezed two strikes past Andy, and then the explosion. Two runs and victory rode in on High's smashing triple.

The loss cut Chicago's advantage to two games over the Boston Braves, who were achieving a 10-to-0 triumph over the Phillies. Huck Betts, 33-year-old rookie, won his fifth straight.

Larry French, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, blanked the Cardinals, 5 to 0, on two hits.

The New York Giants climbed into fifth place as they battered Vance from the box in the eighth and defeated Brooklyn, 9 to 4.

YANKS BEAT NATS

Lefty Gomez pitched deadly ball in the pinches to beat Washington, 6 to 3, and keep the Yankees on top in the hot American League race. The Yanks sewed it up in the third round when they tagged young Monte Weaver for four hits and as many runs.

The Athletics ran up their fourth straight victory, and Rube Walberg his first of the season at Boston's expense, 6 to 1.

Wesley Ferrell shook off the hoodoo that trailed him through the East as the Cleveland Indians outslugged St. Louis, 11 to 7.

Detroit got to Vic Frasier for two singles and Jonathan Stone's home run in the eleventh to score three runs and beat the White Sox, 8 to 5.

Clements Suspended By State Comish

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.—(AP.)—Seven suspensions for various offenses have been announced by the State Athletic Commission.

Among them were five wrestlers—Howard Cantonwine, of Webster City, Ia.; William Davis, of St. Louis; Hans Steinke, of New York; Jack McCarthy, of Chicago, and Rudy Dusek, of New York. The others suspended were Lewis Krohn, promoter of Erie, Pa., and Leo Clements, boxer of Jeannette, Pa.

Fields to Defend Title on Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—(AP.)—Jackie Fields will defend his welterweight boxing title against Young Corbett, of Fresno, in a 10-round bout here next month, Promoter George A. Putnam has announced.

The bout will be held in Seals Stadium on a Saturday night, probably June 25.

Maintaining their own bass and trout rearing ponds, rearing and distributing game birds and animals and other activities of the Monaca Chapter, Izaak Walton League of America, will be the topic of Glen F. P. T. A. OPENS CONTESTING IN SEC. I TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The annual title chase of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League gets under way on the rectangles of four local sport organizations this afternoon. Opening day competition will be limited to outfits entered in the Section I chase for the coveted Davis Keg, at present in the possession of Frank Smith's crack Edgewood array, which has held it since it was placed up for action at the close of the 1930 campaign.

Section II combines will inaugurate hostilities a fortnight hence, the secondary lid-lifter having been postponed because of bad weather prevalent until the current week and likewise because of indecision on the part of several clubs now debating whether or not to fall in with the parade.

Today's bill, as intimated above, calls for a quartet of contests. The champion Edgewoodmen hop off in company with the South Hills troupe of Jimmy Creighton in tussle billed as a Hill-topper home debate, but actually to be reeled off on the Suburbanite lot, as the Creightonites have lost their courts to the Buhl Foundation Building plan.

TEAMS MINUS STARS

Shannopin Country Club, latest addition to the upper division roster, meets Dr. Dave O'Loughlin's P. A. A. delegation at Shannopin. Both squads will do battle minus a regular performer, Billy O'Loughlin of the Winged Head and Irvin Goodman, of the North Boroughs contingent, being in the East with the Pitt Panther net squad.

Vin Glidden's Stanton Heights host is at home to Don Mattern and his University Club aggregation. Westinghouse rounds out the bill by invading Mount Lebanon, the latter crew having finally arranged with borough authorities for the use of the Lebanon public courts for home fracases.

SPECIAL MATCH CARDED

According to announcement by P. T. A. President J. Phillips Davis yesterday, the Vandergrift, Pa., racqueters, led by Capt. John Magaro, will visit Stanton Heights for a special fray with Vin Glidden and company tomorrow afternoon. Davis has been working for the past week on a proposition to establish a Kiski Valley tennis loop to include Vandergrift, Apollo, Leechburg, Ford City and the Tarentum Y. M. C. A.

Next Saturday, a selected Pittsburgh court legation, headed by Drs. John and Dave O'Loughlin, ranking singles aces of the district, will journey to Vandergrift for exhibition tilts on the new municipal rectangles there.

BLACK YANKEES PLAY DORMONT

With the City League champions from Dormont scheduled for a double header with the Black Yankees at Greenlee Field, and the Homestead Grays clashing with Hilldale in an East-West League game at Forbes Field, fans in the district have a high class sandlot card offered them today.

Hilldale makes its first appearance of the season at Forbes Field. Smoky Joe Williams is carded to oppose the Philadelphian. The dual bill at Greenlee Field will find the Dormont aggregation in its toughest battle of the season. The first game will get under way at 3:15 o'clock.

The Grays were defeated by Hilldale last evening at Bellevue, 9 to 4, the visitors getting away to a six-run lead and remaining out in front.

In the City League, Books defeated Reliance Life, 6-0; Dormont tied with the Geislers, 6-6, and the North Siders nosed out Homewood, 6-5.

The Homestead Aces defeated the Martins, 2-1, in the West Penn loop, and the McKnights downed the St. Clair Frogs, 7 to 2. Edgewood downed the Jenkins, 2-1; Murs defeated Swissvale, 6-2, and Immaculate Heart defeated Springdale, 6-5, in Greater Pittsburgh League frays.

It may sound like a market letter, but you can put the A's away in your wastebasket and forget 'em. This year they aren't going to repeat and the Mayor of Philadelphia won't have to practice throwing out first balls for any world series.

When you size up the Yanks and our club for power, we're just a couple of public utilities. Watch us fight it out from now to September and Uncle Nicholas is not talking through the airholes of his new straw hat.

SCHOOL TEAMS COP TITLES

Baseball and golf titles were clinched in yesterday's scholastic diamond and links competition and the Turtle Creek Union High School track teams, boys' and girls', won top honors in the annual Allegheny County championship meet at Schenley Oval.

In the W. P. I. A. L. baseball chase, the 1931 champion, McKeesport, defeated Turtle Creek, 12 to 2, and retained the honors. Gladstone's crack nine sewed up the title in the junior high school division.

Allegheny walloped Carrick, 14-3; Allderdice nosed out Schenley, 5-4; Oliver blanked South Hills, 4-0, and Westinghouse won over Peabody, 17-13, in City League tussles.

In the W. P. I. A. L., Beaver defeated Ambridge, 6-2; Aliquippa downed Monaca, 8-2, and Carnegie took Crafton, 6-1.

Turtle Creek's boys' team scored 55 points to win in the county track meet. Har-Brack was second and Pitcairn third. The Turtle Creek girls piled up 35 points for top honors, with Elizabeth second.

East Deer Township won in the junior division in the boys' competition, and Neville finished first in the girls' meet.

Shady Side golfers, defeating Sewickley, $11\frac{1}{2}$ to $6\frac{1}{2}$, clinched the title in the first division of the Interscholastic Golf Conference with six victories and no defeats. In other matches yesterday, Oliver downed Bellevue, $14\frac{1}{2}$ to $3\frac{1}{2}$, and McKeesport defeated Carrick, $12\frac{1}{2}$ to $5\frac{1}{2}$.

Mt. Lebanon's crack tennis team won over Kiski, 4 to 2, in a non-league net duel.

The Shady Side Academy baseball and tennis teams are in Buffalo today for engagements with Nichols School teams.

LEAD TAKEN BY ALLEGHENY

By TOM BIRKS

Defeating Fox Chapel's entry, 8 to 1, with a brilliant display of all-round strength, Allegheny Country Club's women golfers took undisputed possession of first place in Section I of the Women's Golf Association team league yesterday.

Yesterday's Section I matches were played over the Pittsburgh Field Club course. The home team defeated Butler, 7 to 1, and Oakmont downed Edgewood, 8 to 0, in other Section I matches. Oakmont is the defending champion.

In Section II, playing at Westmoreland, St. Clair tied Longue Vue, 4 to 4; Westmoreland walloped Youghiogheny, 9 to 0, and the Pittsburgh Country Club team nosed out Shannopin, 5 to 3.

The standings follow:

Fuller Scores Win Over Jack Berg

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—A cool, calculating little puncher from Boston, scrappy Sammy Fuller, settled any question last night as to his ability to lick Jack (Kid) Berg, the British Whirlwind, and his right to battle Tony Canzoneri for the lightweight title.

Disdaining the storm of leather the Briton tossed his way for 12 solid rounds, Fuller marched through the fire, made every solid shot to the body count, and easily hammered his way to the decision. A few weeks ago, their first 10-round match here was called a draw.

Fight Results

At Chicago—Billy Petrolle defeated Bat Battalino, 10 rounds. Barney Ross won by a technical knockout over Dick Sisk, 6 rounds. Tony Canzeia defeated Pete Wistort, 6 rounds. Mickey Patrick knocked out Larry Udell, 3 rounds. Paul Dazzo defeated Sammy Levine, 6 rounds.

At New York—Sammy Fuller defeated Jack (Kid) Berg, 12 rounds. Wildcat O'Connor defeated Paolo Villa, 6 rounds. Sammy Dorfman and Joey Costa drew, 8 rounds. Baby Joe Gans won by a technical knockout over Hy Diamond, 7 rounds.

At Minneapolis—Eddie Shea defeated Johnny Farr, 10 rounds. Nick Palmer defeated Mickey Taylor, 10 rounds.

At San Diego, Cal.—Dutch Weimer knocked out Larry Navarro, 5 rounds. Husky Velasco won by technical knockout over Maurie Baeri, 4 rounds.

At Hollywood—Tom Patrick defeated Jimmy Hannah, 10 rounds.

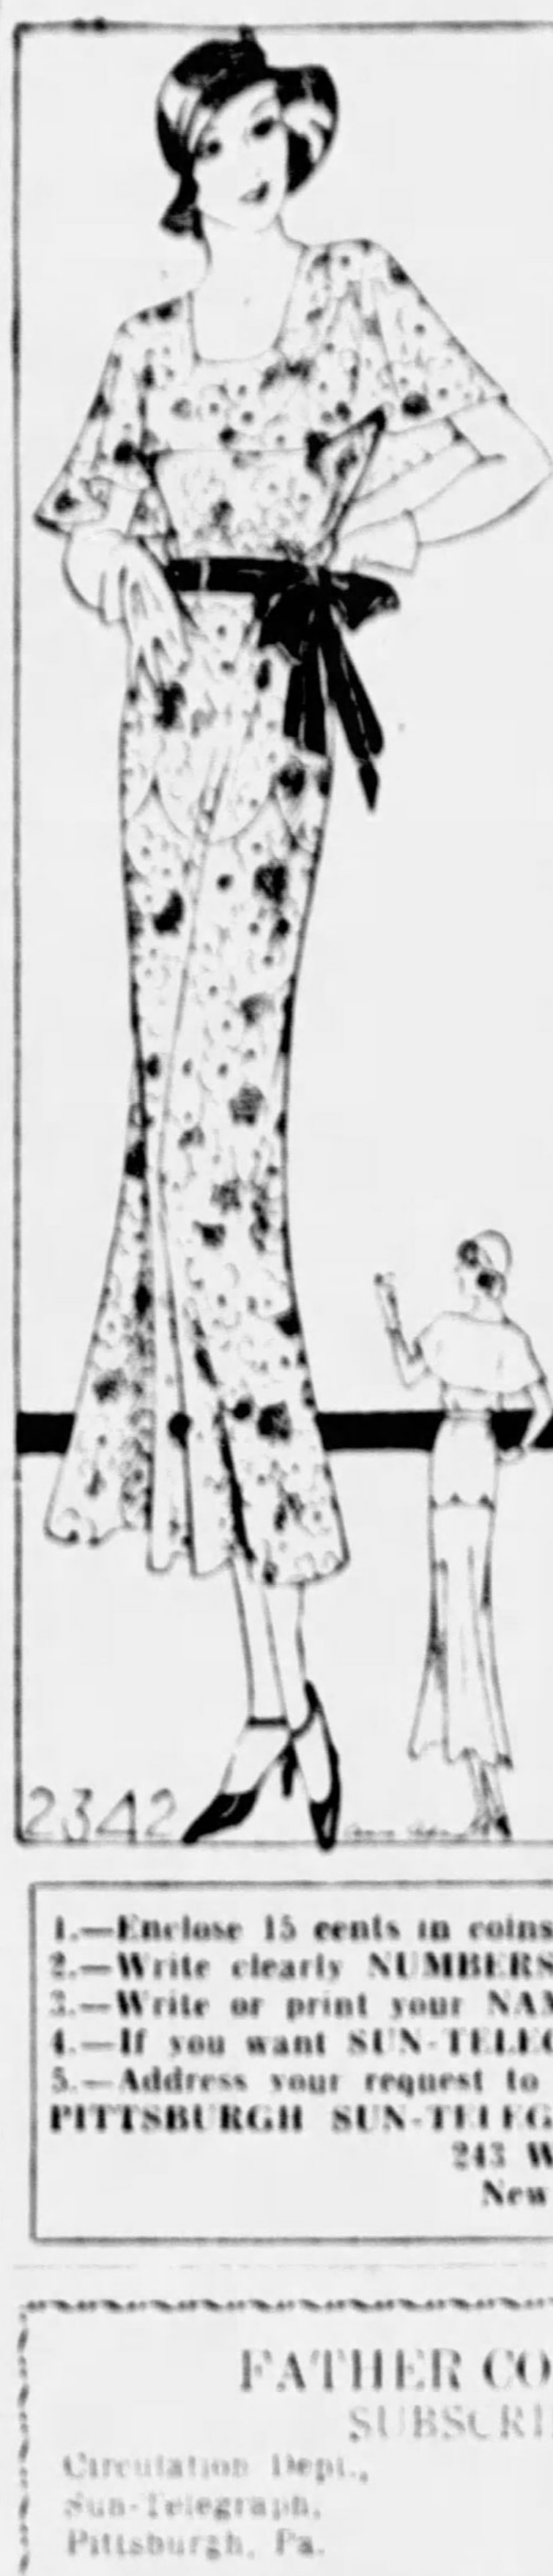
Stripes Are Very Smart
Pattern 2345
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern



STEP-BY-STEP INSTRUCTION DIAGRAM GIVEN WITH THIS PATTERN

By ANNE ADAMS

Smart, and mighty slender when they run up and down! This is one of the loveliest cotton frocks we've seen this season, and it uses the stripes so well that no matter how much weight you've put on, this frock will hide it. That upward point of the bodice gives the popular higher waistline effect so difficult on most figures; but this is perfect. Aren't the flared sleevelets adorable?

Pattern 2345 is obtainable only in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 44. Size 16 requires $3\frac{1}{4}$ yards of 36-inch fabric.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

Your summer wardrobe can be planned easily and inexpensively with the assistance of our current 32-page FASHION CATALOG. The best of the season's afternoon, sports and evening frocks, lingerie, house dresses and kiddies' models all personally chosen by Anne Adams are made available through this beautiful book. OBITUARY

Leonard Funeral.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning for Edward Leonard, 43, of 10 Parkhurst street, who died Thursday in the Allegheny General Hospital. Services will be held in St. Peter's Catholic Church, North Side, and burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. Mr. Leonard was a life long resident of Pittsburgh. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Rachel Leonard; a brother, H. J. Leonard, and three sisters, Mrs. T. M. Conley, Mrs. E. Graham and Mrs. W. Monter, all of Pittsburgh.

Father of 8 Hangs Self on Farm Tree

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 21.—Reuben E. Trimble, 45, father of eight, Shenango Township, a tinworker, ended his life last night by hanging himself on a tree on his farm. He is said to have been worried over financial matters.

New Castle Boy Hurt In Fall Off Cliff

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 21.—Alvin Kulkin, 8, is in the Jameson Memorial Hospital with a fracture of the skull, received when fell from a cliff along Neshannock Narrows.

SPEEDS RELIEF ACTIVITIES

Father Cox is working overtime getting all of his relief activities whipped into shape so that he can get away with his Pittsburgh party for the Pilgrimage to the Eucharistic Congress to be held at Dublin, Ireland. This party will leave Pittsburgh Friday, June 10, sailing Saturday, June 11, on the Doric.

Father Cox

Father Cox says that he regrets leaving his work behind him at this time, although he knows that his local organization will function perfectly, but he needs the rest and the trip costs him nothing. Considering economic conditions he is satisfied with the number of residents of Pittsburgh and vicinity who will participate in the pilgrimage and he expects many others to join before the sailing date.

In the meantime the Home Delivery Drive is showing satisfactory results, the funds from this activity going a long way to feed the length breadline that congregates every day at Old St. Patricks.

If you want to help the "father of the jobless" at a time when he most needs help, at a time when the problem of feeding thousands of hungry men, women and children is more serious than ever, clip the order blank on this page and send it in today. You'll not only get a GOOD newspaper, but you'll have the personal satisfaction of giving your personal aid to a worthy cause. Send the subscription blank to Father Cox if you wish.

If you are living in a city or town where there is no home delivery of the Sun-Telegraph, write to the subscription department, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., for mail subscription rates and state in your letter you are interested in the Father Cox fund.

SLIGHT GAIN IN STEEL OUTPUT

Increase Due to Heavier Buying by Ford Company; Price Structure Steady

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel ingot production this week has been at about 23 per cent of capacity, against 22 per cent two weeks ago and an April average of 21½ per cent.

The recent increase has been due entirely to heavier requirements of the Ford Motor Company as production of the new eight engine is speeded up. Recently Ford bought additional steel to round out May and next week will buy for June more than was ordered for May.

Finished steel prices remain very steady all along the line, and each week adds to the impressiveness of the stabilization movement. Advances in some products for third quarter deliveries have been discussed lately, and if decided upon should be announced within the next fortnight. Advances of about $2 a ton on semi-finished steel have just been named.

Little change in steel demand outside the automobile industry is expected for the next three months. General financial conditions are held to be decidedly improved, but the time of year is unpropitious for steel demand in general to increase.

CONFIDENT OF FUTURE

Having set its house in order by drastic economies and by stabilizing prices, the steel trade views the future with quiet confidence. More attention is being paid to the experience of depressions before the war, when it was said that "steel demand grows while it sleeps," new production records being made by wide margins after each depression. While no new record is expected within the next few years, it is felt that actual requirements have been banking up for months past.

Federal loans amounting to a billion dollars for productive or self-liquidating enterprises being considered at Washington would involve a half million to a million tons of steel, in bridges, subways, tunnels, water works and hydro-electrification. Some of the projects mentioned were fully matured but could not be financed privately. Gasoline and natural gas pipe lines are not mentioned, presumably on account of their possible influence on railroad traffic.

Since April 1 fabricated structural steel lettings have averaged distinctly lighter than in the first three months of the year, perhaps reflecting some delays to test the stability of advanced prices.

SCRAP MOVING

Rail releases of moderate tonnages are coming out from time to time. Tin plate mill operations are now stationary at about 45 per cent, against close to 50 per cent last month. Tubular goods are among the dullest in the whole steel category, reflecting the lightness of gas and oil drilling and the very small amount of building.

While the automobile industry is taking nearly its usual percentage of the steel made, for the time of year, it is notable that nearly all the demand is from makers of the low-priced cars. There was overproduction of some of the fancier cars in the first three months of the year.

The Pittsburgh district scrap market has been a trifle less stagnant in the past week, there being a little movement of heavy melting at $10 and some purchases of blast furnace borings and turnings at $6.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, May 21—(AP.)—Bank clearings show some further recession this week, the total at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review of $4,451,305,000 being 48.4 per cent smaller than last year. At New York City, clearings were $2,910,404,000, a reduction of 51.7 per cent, while the total for the cities outside of New York of $1,540,901,000 was 40.5 per cent less.

The decline was mainly at New York City, where financial settlements are greatly reduced. Some of the larger eastern and western centers also show considerable losses. Furthermore, clearings this week were $131,552,000 below those of last week, whereas a year ago there was a gain of $650,147,000 over the preceding week.

Clearings at leading cities, as compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., showing decreases as compared with same period a year ago follow (totals in thousands):

Wall Street Spectator

Sentiment Against Short Position Still Growing

NEW YORK, May 21—(INS.)—Wall street was surprised and interested in the Young coalition plan to turn the business tide, but the action of the market yesterday indicated that it was still in a waiting mood. The fact remains that Washington so far has contributed nothing to cheer about and the Senate is still battling away on taxes and balancing the budget. While this situation remains there is little reason for doing things.

The market in the last two weeks is very apt to go down as the great Chinese puzzle of 1932. Some well-posted people have been looking for a real rally. And about all they have received so far is eyestrain.

Yet the fact remains that the feeling is growing the short side should be avoided. That is, in a general sense. Even the new-born bull of the last week or so would not be averse to taking a fling on the short side if he knew of a situation that was turning out to be sour.

Selling in Commercial Solvents followed reports the company was curtailing operations and had shut down some of its plants. Looks as though someone were badly hurt in Loew's. Reports are that most of the selling has been coming from out-of-town. No other explanation for the weakness in the amusement stocks is needed, however, than the bond market where their senior obligations have been dropping steadily.

U. S. ECONOMIC IMPERIALISM CHALLENGED

Search for Foreign Marts And Placing of Surplus Funds Abroad Questioned

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 21.—American economic imperialism—the clamor for foreign markets and alien fields for investment of surplus capital—has been challenged to an increasing extent in recent months by the growing isolationist bloc.

Mr. Rukeyser

Dean Wallace Brett Donham, of the Harvard graduate school of business administration, gave intellectual expression to the new exclusive home market philosophy in his latest book, and not a few industrialists have been flirting with the idea.

James S. Carson, vice president of the American and Foreign Power Company, which has taken the American incandescent light around the world, has attempted to give an answer to the isolationists. Referring to proposals to close the American frontiers to foreign trade, Mr. Carson, speaking at the twentieth annual convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at San Francisco, said:

"This is the philosophy of economic 'defeatism.' It is 'isolation gone mad.' It has no more justification economically than advocacy of a return to the era of the kerosene lamp and the four-wheel buggy. It is a retreat which would leave our American chambers of commerce abroad in the position of outposts deserted by the main army. Despite the attractiveness of our domestic market, it must be remembered that 92 per cent of the world's population lives outside the United States and is poorly supplied with the things we best produce. Our international position today demands more analysis, more careful consideration and greater dependence upon facts than ever before in the history of our commerce."

OPTIMISM NEWS

Optimism nowadays is unusual enough to constitute news. It has become habitual to regard the oil industry as one of the principal sorespots. Now W. S. Farish, president of the Humble Oil and Refining Company, comes along with the assertion that the oil industry is in a sounder economic position than any other. Apparently, outsiders have been undervaluing the curative effect of the drastic readjustment through which the industry has been passing. Said Farish:

"It is my deliberate judgment that the oil industry currently is in sounder economic position than any other large industry in America. Moreover, in its most important aspects oil is in sounder position today, in the face of the current depression, than it has ever been previously since it became an industry of the first magnitude. Consider for a moment the fact that oil has come through the depression so far with practically 100 per cent of the demand for its principal products which it enjoyed immediately before the depression struck us, whereas other large industries, generally, have lost from 40 to 60 per cent of their pre-depression demand.

SUPPLIES CUT

"Consider, further, that over the past two years, in the face of the greatest potential oversupply of its raw material, crude oil, which it has ever been obliged to contend with, the oil industry has succeeded in controlling production to the point that it has actually reduced its burdensome, above-ground stocks. Compare this achievement with its record for the preceding 10 years during which, with a relatively much smaller potential supply, the industry, despite its best efforts to avoid it, built up a staggering load of excess crude and products in storage.

"The outstanding present need of the oil industry in the United States is to be able to balance supply with demand; to control its output of crude oil so that excessive volumes of its raw material will not be taken wastefully from the ground and forced on to an already glutted market."

INTERNATIONAL SHOE OUTPUT RECEDES

Recent Daily Production 145,000 Pairs as Against 160,000 Month of March

ST. LOUIS, May 21.—Operations of International Shoe Company have been tapering off since Easter, following a period of considerable activity in the early months of the year. The decline is chiefly seasonal, although more pronounced than last year. The heaviest demand for summer shoes has been met while production of the fall lines does not reach quantity volume until late in June.

Orders on hand are smaller than those booked a year ago, but sufficient to maintain operation of factories at a profitable level, particularly units making medium-priced footwear.

BUSINESS FAIR

Recently the company has been producing an average of 145,000 pairs daily, compared with 160,000 in March and 175,000 at this time last year. Factories have a maximum capacity of 200,000 pairs.

Business has been relatively good since the start of the company's fiscal year on December 1. Orders booked in December, usually regarded as an out-of-season month, were good. An early Easter gave stimulus to business in January, which continued through February and March. However, both unit volume and dollar sales for the half year ending May 31 are not likely to exceed those for the corresponding period of last year.

NET $2.60 LAST YEAR

Net sales for the six months ended May 31, 1931, were $42,409,268. Net income for the period was $4,513,832, or $1.12 a share on the 3,760,000 no-par shares of common stock outstanding at that time.

International's sales for the fiscal year ended November 30, 1931, amounted to $86,802,294 and net income after charges and taxes was $9,744,815, equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.60 a share on 3,510,000 common shares outstanding at end of year. Company was in a liquid condition with cash and call loans totaling $21,382,687 and a current ratio of about 20 to 1, similar to that of a year ago.

TRI-UTILITIES STOCKS SOLD

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP.)—Further sales at auction of three lots of securities of the Tri-Utilities Corporation and subsidiaries were announced yesterday. The securities sold for $440,000, and the buyer was reported to be the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company. Fletcher Predicts Further Rubber Cut

HONOLULU, May 21.—(AP.)—Walter Fletcher, vice chairman of the London Rubber Trade Association, said rubber plantations must be reorganized with restricted output before the industry can return to prosperity. En route home after a visit to plantations in Malaya, Fletcher predicted the present low prices would continue for some time as the much longed-for trade revival still is only a mirage. He said the industry had the largest surplus rubber stocks in its history.

Ruling on Insull Auction Delayed

CHICAGO, May 21.—Ruling on the motion of four New York banks for dissolution of the restraining order issued by Federal Judge Lindley on May 4 against the proposed auction sale of collateral held by them against defaulted loans to Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities Company, will not be made until next week. Attorneys for receivers were given permission today to file additional memoranda which must be submitted by Monday.

GOLD EXPORTS CAUSED BY RUMORS

Federal Reserve Board Says Stories Circulated In Paris Started Drain

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(INS.)—Disturbing rumors concerning American banking conditions, circulated in Paris during the second week in April were chiefly responsible for the withdrawal of about $24,000,000 in French gold.

Legislative uncertainties involving the revenue bill and balancing the budget started these reports. As a result France imported on private account considerable quantities of gold.

FRANCE GAINS

The international gold situation during the March 18-April 22 period was marked by an increase of $38,000,000 in the French holding of gold. The Bank of France acquired it chiefly from this country and from the London market, where bullion from India and South Africa continued to be sold in large volume.

The French repatriation of gold nevertheless was the smallest for any similar period since the movement started with the European collapse last September.

Financial conditions in England were held to have improved in recent weeks with a material easing of the money situation. Germany lost about $7,000,000 in gold in the month ending April 23, resulting from interest and sinking fund payments made outside of the country.

FAILURES SMALL

Uncertainties developed in the American banking situation during April, chiefly in the Pacific Northwest, Illinois, Boston and Michigan failures, however, numbering six national, four state member and 58 non-member banks with deposits of $35,496,000 were the lowest in any month since April 1931, with the exception of March, when 45 institutions closed. March figures for reopened banks were revised to show that 37 resumed business with deposits of $18,435,000 compared with the $14,316,000 deposits of the closed institutions.

The biggest failure in April was that of a member trust company in Boston accounting for $10,258,000 of the total deposits involved for the entire country. Twenty banks failed in the Chicago district with deposits of $8,371,000, 13 in Kansas City district with deposits of $2,521,000 and 13 in the San Francisco district with deposits of $9,910,000.

San Paulo Coffee Loan Needs Are Met

NEW YORK, May 21.—Speyer & Co., and J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, fiscal agents for the State of San Paulo 7 per cent coffee realization loan of 1930, report that while 10 months' interest and sinking fund on outstanding bonds require $12,935,000 the total amount receivable for 10 months ended April 30, 1932, of the second year of the coffee realization plans, operation from the sale of pledged coffee and from the special tax, was equal to $15,643,928. Of this amount, there has been received, or is in transit, $14,998,928, including the equivalent of 574,641 pounds at $3.66 per pound. The balance of $645,000 has been deposited with the bankers' agents in San Paulo in Milreis and its remittance is expected in the near future.

Virginian Protests Recapture Finding

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Virginian Railway has filed a formal protest with the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Commission's determinations in its tentative recapture report finding that the road had $4,825,241 in excess net railway operating income. Motion was made to vacate the tentative recapture report and order and o dismiss the proceedings.

Progress of Texas Cotton Crop Slow

DALLAS, May 21.—Progress of the Texas cotton crop, while still low, owing to unseasonably cool weather, is not necessarily unfavorable, the Dallas News Friday cotton report indicates. With generally excellent seeds in the ground in virtually all parts of the cotton belt, the plant can quickly get its stride wihth the advent of warm, dry weather now overdue.

GREAT WESTERN NET GAINS

CHICAGO, May 21.—Preliminary figures indicate that the Chicago Great Western Railroad earned its interest charges in April with a small surplus, according to Patrick H. Joyce, president. The road also showed a surplus over fixed charges in March, reducing the deficit after charges for the first quarter of 1932 to $200,431, which compared with net income of $27[illegible],804 in the like 1931 quarter.

Mr. Joyce stated that carloadings are still below last year but showed a slight improvement last week over the previous week this year. Crop conditions in territory along the road are excellent, he added. "The banking situation is improved and there is a better feeling generally in our territory," he concluded.

Outflow of Gold $37,829,000 for Day

NEW YORK, May 21.—(AP)—Yesterday's exports of gold constituted one of the largest outward movements for a single day this year, amounting to $37,829,000.

Holland headed the list with a withdrawal of $21,075,300. France drew $12,631,100, Belgium $4,084,600, and Switzerland $38,000.

The net loss to the country's gold stock was reduced to $16,274,200, due to imports and a decrease in earmark account. The latter was down $17,010,900.

There were imports of $906,000 from Canada and $19,000 from Mexico. At San Francisco $2,437,000 gold was received from Japan and $1,082,000 from China.

Finance Leaders Face Big Task Finding Outlet For Credit.

There isn't any question but that bankers and industrialists who have been chosen to undertake the task of finding employment for surplus bank funds made available by the reserve realize the difficult nature of the job that has been handed them. The reserve by its open market policy has succeeded in getting some $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 excess funds into the hands of the banks, but it has not been able to force these credits into active employment due to lack of demand for accommodation on the one hand, and lack of willingness of bankers to accept risks on the other. Well-informed circles are of the opinion that it is difficult to see much in the way of result for the new venture at least until Congress balances the budget and the banking world can figure fairly accurately just how much more money the government's financial needs will require.

Several of the outstanding railroad liens which had been under exceptional pressure for the last few days, including Atchison General 4s, displayed good powers of recovery. The action of these issues, particularly the abrupt lifting of recent pressure, much of which was of foreign origin, led close market observers to revise their views relative to the meaning of the latter class of selling. It had been assumed heretofore that the selling represented liquidation by nervous holders of foreign securities. But the fact that the selling apparently has dried up with the extension of relief to a London bank was accepted as denoting that recent selling was of special character.

Officials of Standard Oil Company of New York refuse to comment on the reduction in gasoline prices announced this morning. However, in other sections, it is learned that the retail price structure in the metropolitan district has been disturbed for some time by price cutting tactics on the part of independent service stations. These dealers have for some time been operating on a 5-cent margin and hence have been able to undersell Standard companies. The action of Standard of New York in reducing quotations will have beneficial effect on the market in that it will reduce the differential of the independent dealers to 3 cents. Hence, it is believed the step will go far towards eliminating the present unsettled situation in this market.

Gold continues to move in some bulk to Europe. These shipments have recently represented largely the transfer of metal already under earmark, which central banks are bringing home to build up their reserves. It has been notable that the shipments have had virtually no exchange rates, which remain stubbornly above gold points. It is apparent, nevertheless, that foreign balances here have been reduced to the lowest levels in years.

Advices from Paris that retirement of possibly up to $50,000,000 of 6 per cent and 7 per cent dollar bonds of Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean Railway Company in the American market may be effected through use of the dollar balances of the Bank of France indicate a coming reduction by that amount in possible foreign claims against this country's gold. In responsible banking quarters it is stated that the amounts which Europe holds in New York have been reduced so drastically in the past several months that the total now remaining can play little part in determining American monetary policy.

The Niagara Share Corporation old preferred stock is to be exchanged for Class "A" preferred, share for share. Five old common shares are to be exchanged for one Class "B" common. The company declared dividends aggregating $3 on the preferred, payable in cash on July 1 to stock of record of June 17. This includes unpaid accumulated dividend of $1.50 on the old preferred for the first quarter of 1932. A semi-annual stock dividend of 2½ per cent on the new "B" common stock was declared, payable in "B" common on July 15 to stock of record of June 24.

Recovery of Business Important Consideration For Otis Steel Company

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

RECOVERY IN BUSINESS volume as well as in the market for securities will be matters of extreme importance for the Otis Steel Company in the present year. This is due to the fact that the company recently completed an extensive improvement program while conditions have not been suitable for the organization to arrange for permanent financing.

Otis Steel's working capital was materially reduced during 1931 as a result of expenditures for plant improvements and the loss shown during the year.

* * *

Otis Plant Account Shows Big Increase

THE ORGANIZATION'S plant account increased from $27,173,456 at the close of 1930 to $30,166,360 at the end of 1931, after charging off total reserves for depreciation. During the year a net loss after all charges was shown of $1,571,342. Of this loss $865,828 represented charges for depreciation.

Under such conditions it was natural that working capital should be reduced. This figure dropped from $8,833,182 at the end of 1930 to $3,174,481 at the close of 1931.

The present year was started with current assets of $6,099,317, against current liabilities of $2,924,836, a ratio of slightly better than two for one. A preponderant amount of current assets consisted of inventories which stood at $4,962,265. Cash amounted to $210,270 and certificates of deposit to $200,261, while the company had notes payable of $1,222,034. Funded debt of $10,860,000 would not be considered excessive under ordinary conditions. The maturity will be in 1941.

Gulf States Improves Current Income Account

ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING examples of the possibilities for cutting expenses in the face of unfavorable operating conditions can be seen in Gulf States Steel. This organization reported a loss of $144,196 for the first quarter of the present year, but this was substantially less than in the corresponding period of 1930, when the loss amounted to $217,041.

While Gulf States lost $144,196 in the first quarter, charges for depreciation and taxes of $276,586 exceeded this amount. While the company does not state how much of this charge consisted of taxes, so that it is impossible to compute the effect of operations for the three months on working capital, it appears likely that there was no actual drain on resources.

Gulf's annual report for 1931 showed that it came to the end of the year in a much stronger position than Otis, but its current resources are not proportionately as great as those of some of the leading producers in the industry. Current assets amounted to $3,906,252 against current liabilities of $1,516,754. Cash stood at $432,675, but notes payable amounted to $1,242,000.

The depression is not likely to seriously embarrass Gulf States Steel if its income accounts during 1932 show no poorer results than those of the first quarter.

LOCAL MARKET ENDS WEEK QUIETLY

Trading Volume Shrinks To Week's Lowest Rate; Fuel Issues Unchanged

Trading dwindled to the smallest volume of the week in the short session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. The dullness here reflected the extremely quiet market in New York, where prices remained within fractional scope of last night's closings and the pace of the dealings showed a decided letdown from yesterday's rate.

A few scattered trades in the local market brought no changes in quotations. The fuels were steady, but remained at the levels prevailing on the close yesterday. Industrial issues were dull. Nominal quotations indicated no change in the general market sentiment.

Bradstreet's Food Index Declines

NEW YORK, May 21.—For the eighth successive week, Bradstreet's weekly index of wholesale prices registered another new low, falling to $1.65 during the week ended May 17. Since the normal expectation is that prices should remain stable at this time, this decline of 1.2 per cent from previous week brings Bradstreet's adjusted index of food prices down to 52.7 per cent of the 1928-30 average, as compared with 53.3 last week, 53.4 two weeks ago and 70.6 for the same week a year ago. The decline from the corresponding week of last year is 24.7 per cent. The index is the sum total of the prices per pound of 31 food articles in common use.

Say Kreuger-Toll Books Falsified

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 21.—(AP)—A Swedish investigating committee yesterday revealed Ivar Kreuger had $168,300,000 in personal debts and indirect liability against his name when he fired a bullet into his brain in Paris March 12.

Pointing also to "deliberate falsification" of the books of Kreuger & Toll, the match king's main company, over a period of at least eight years, the committee recommended bankruptcy. The report said:

"There will be little, if anything, left over for distribution to unsecured creditors."

Chain Store Tax Hearing Called

ST. LOUIS, May 21.—At a preliminary hearing on a bill which would tax units of chain stores in this district, the legislative committee of the board of aldermen set May 28 for hearing of further opinions. The measure proposes a graduated tax of $25 a store for chains owning up to five units and ranges as high as $250 a store for chains owning more than 25 stores.

BIG OIL DEAL UNDER FIRE

CHICAGO, May 21.—(AP)—A suit to dissolve the $500,000,000 Consolidated Oil Corporation, formed in a merger of several oil and pipe line companies March 1, has been filed in Federal Court here on behalf of Roy Carney of Chicago, a stockholder of one of the merged concerns.

The Carney action, entered yesterday, also asked appointment of a receiver and charged the merger was fraudulent, illegal and against the best interests of the stockholders of the individual companies involved.

The suit was directed not only against the merged companies collectively, but named most of the individual concerns as defendants, among them the Commonwealth Transportation Company, the Commonwealth Oil and Gas Company, and the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation.

Allegations were made that the Bancamerica Blair Corporation was paid $700,000 in fees for assisting in the several months' negotiations for the consolidation and that, due to the merger, stockholders of the Prairie Pipe Line and the Prairie Oil and Gas companies were burdened with $100,000,000 in debts of other companies.

Indiana Cuts Down Stripper Purchases

CHICAGO, May 21—(AP)—The Standard Oil Company of Indiana will discontinue about May 23 its purchasing of 2,000 barrels a day of stripper oil in Kansas from the Sinclair-Prairie Oil Company. It will continue taking about 6,000 barrels a day from stripper wells in Kansas and Oklahoma to which the gathering lines of its subsidiary have been directly connected since they were abandoned by the Prairie company.

Standard explained the curtailment was ordered because oil it has bought from the wells affected has cost "approximately $400,000 more than the same amount of oil would have cost if gathered and run" by its own pipe line system.

Gasoline Slashed 4 Cents in New York

NEW YORK, May 21—The Standard Oil Company of New York has reduced the service station gasoline price 4 cents a gallon and tank wagon price 2 cents a gallon to 9½ cents in the metropolitan district, not including the 3 cents state tax.

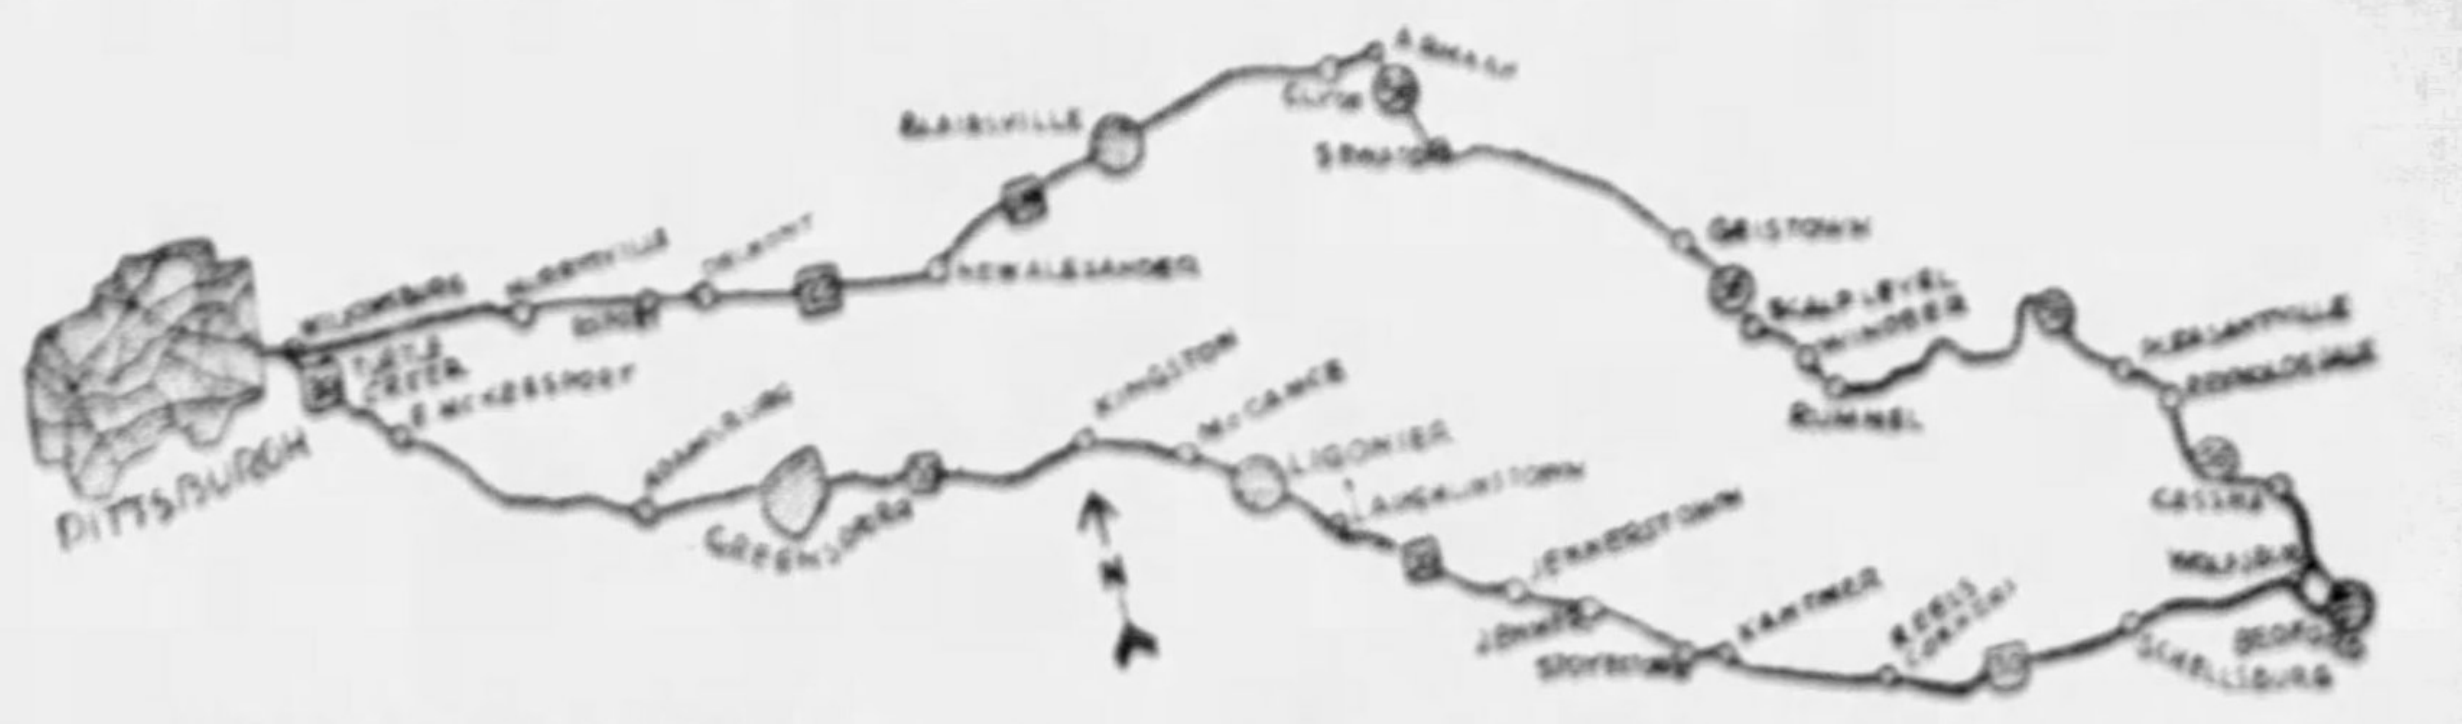
YOUR WEEK-END TRIP



ROAD CONDITIONS IN W. PENNA., OHIO AND W. VA.

Western Penna. district practically clear of detours with the exception of a short impassable stretch on Route No. 18 between Moravia and New Castle. The detour around this stretch, however, is in good condition.

MOTORING SUGGESTIONS—CARE OF YOUR CAR

A valve to function properly must be true with its seat. That is the head must be in exactly the same plane as the seat and both valve head and seat must be at right angles to the valve stem and guide. You or an inexperienced mechanic can grind away all day and get nowhere at all unless the reseating is in accordance with these rules.

That is why the modern shops utilize special equipment for checking valve alignment.

Don't let spring pass without one of the new-day valve jobs.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

Report Says Lola's Admirer Stole Money From Bank, Ended His Life

CHAPTER XXXIX

"Then Basil Boucher met Lola Carewe. That was eight years ago. The meeting came about on the terrace of the Cafe Royale, just down from the Madeleine. Lola was at that time dancing in the Theater Sans Souci. She stopped at the Cafe Royale with an elderly admirer, said to be a Belgian who had made millions out of rubber in the Congo. Like Musetta in La Boheme, Lola sent the old gentleman off on some pretended errand, because her eyes had met those of the earnest young man beside her. Basil and she began to talk. He came directly to the point and told her that he loved her. He had recognized her instantly and for weeks had he not been haunting the Sans-Souci merely to see the dancing Lola? They agreed that fate had brought them together. In Lola's car they drove to her apartment, where she lived entirely alone. It was the beginning of what seemed to be a high passion.

"It lasted for only a very few weeks. All observers are agreed that Lola seemed quite as fascinated with Basil as he was with his enchantress. They were seen constantly together. She neglected her rehearsals and he made mistakes at the bank. His mother wrote Lola a letter asking her to send the boy off as she was turning his head. But Basil had promised Lola a ruby.

A SUICIDE

"Then came the crash. The body of Basil Boucher was found in the Seine. He had left a suicide note. He had stolen from the bank and used half of it for the ruby and half to speculate on the Bourse—to get the money to pay back. The stock went down and all was over. In one desperate play he had lost. At the time Lola told friends at the Theater Sans-Souci that Basil had refused to allow her to provide for him. She had been eager to do that. She also declared he was the only man she had ever loved. After his death Lola told one girl who danced with her that she would always keep near her the furniture and other appurtenances of the room in which they first loved each other. It was a sentimental idea. I wonder if she really carried it out? I very much do not believe that she did. Women seldom die from sentiment. However, I may be unjust. The Paris police have lost sign of Lola Carewe. She left for America and we do not know what happened after that. All who remember her here still will tell you, however, that Lola seemed to be desperately in love with Basil Boucher. There is absolutely no reason to suppose that she killed the young man. The suicide seems absolutely proved. There was, however, some difficulty in identifying the body—but by certain faint birthmarks. Mrs. Boucher, the mother of the young man, was able to make a positive identification. Please feel free, my esteemed Mr. Thatcher Colt, to call upon me for any further help, if that is possible. And I shall be glad to hear the outcome of your astute researches.

"Yours fraternally,
"DUPONT."

Synopsis

Lola Carewe and her guest, Christine Quires, are mysteriously murdered in the former's apartment. Scorpions were the instruments of death. The police suspect Guy Everett, the last person to see Christine alive. Lola had blackmailed Everett. He, however, claims that Christine discovered a plot to kill Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt learns that a young Paris bank clerk, named Basil Boucher, loved Lola. After robbing a bank to buy her a ruby, Basil disappeared. His parents sold medical laboratory specimens. Edward Quires, Christine's brother, left his Rochester home for New York following the receipt of a telegram the day of the murders. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Suspicion also points to Dr. Hugh Baldwin when it is disclosed that he purchased scorpions. He had stated heart failure caused the deaths. Colt, calling to question Baldwin, finds him dead—from a scorpion bite! Colt wonders if Baldwin was the victim of a trick or deliberately released the scorpion. In Baldwin's desk Colt finds a statement in which the doctor says he accidentally poisoned Gaylord Gifford, Lola's husband. Lola's knowledge of this placed Baldwin in her power. She forced him to supply narcotics which she used to victimize her friends and later blackmail them. Then she ordered him to obtain a scorpion to commit a murder. Baldwin learned that Vincent Rowland was behind Lola's activities. Realizing he would be exposed, Baldwin secured another scorpion and committed suicide. Because of the lack of evidence against Rowland, Colt objects to his immediate arrest.

Now Go On

A SLENDER CLUE

Colt looked at me with a mysterious smile.

"The clue is there!" he exclaimed, his voice low, but tense with the exultant ring of discovery. "I felt sure it would be. A very slender clue—but it's there. Go home and get some sleep, Tony. My apologies to Betty. And be back at 8."

When I returned to Center street at 8 o'clock that night, I found District Attorney Dougherty seated opposite Colt, in the private office of the Commissioner. They were talking in low tones, with a sheaf of notes lying on the desk between them. The Commissioner was in dinner clothes and looked as fresh and keen as if he had just arisen. Yet, as I learned later, he had not left the office all day; he had sent out for his dinner and changed in the dressing room that adjoins his consultation room.

Dougherty waved at me lugubriously as I drew up a chair.

"I understand the jewel-ring idea is all blown to hell," was his heavy greeting. "And yet—"

"And yet your investigation led us directly to the scene," Colt reminded him.

"A hell of a lot of good that did too," returned Dougherty with an Olympian wink around the room. "Did you go through that dossier I sent down from my office?"

"I did," replied Thatcher Colt. "It did connect Lola with some of the principal jewel operators. But she was not acting as stool pigeon for them. She was jacking them up for blackmail tribute."

"There is still reason to believe they might have ordered her death, then," said Dougherty.

INSIDE JOB

But to this Colt shook his head decidedly.

"That is impossible. This is what we know. It must be from the very beginning, Dougherty—an inside job. It lies between the family and some of the intimates who frequented the apartment, Rowland, Guy Everett—or the mother, the servants—it had to be someone who had access to those rooms."

"But you haven't settled on the one you think is the most likely?"

"I am beginning to. But it is too early still to try to theorize, too many facts yet to be obtained. We have as yet found no trace of the missing Edgar Quires, brother of one of the dead girls. But our airplane police, whom I shot up to Rochester early this morning, have made one interesting discovery. The telegram which was received by Edgar Quires was from Christine, as we suspected. Immediately thereafter Quires and his wife hurried to the railroad station and left Rochester without taking any baggage. From that moment on, all trace of them seems to have been lost."

"If we could only see that telegram!" mourned Dougherty.

Colt smiled whimsically as he packed down the brown flakes of tobacco in the bowl of his pipe.

"Court processes are so slow," he complained. "But we did manage to see the telegram!"

"Good!" chuckled Dougherty. "What did it say?"

Colt produced a blank form for carbons of official reports and read aloud:

"All my worst suspicions confirmed. I know I am in danger. Come and rescue me.
"CHRISTINE."

On hearing this development, I confess that a sense of almost hopeless bewilderment settled over me. The riddle seemed to grow darker with every hour. Would it ever be solved? This telegram raised singular questions indeed. If Christine Quires knew that she was in danger, was it a danger from Lola, who was herself murdered? Or from someone else? If that were so, why did not Lola and Christine cling together, act together, against their common enemy? Moreover, if Edgar Quires had started for New York in answer to that summons, where was he now? Why had he not appeared at the pent-house and demanded his sister? Did he know what had happened to Christine? Or was it possible that the same unseen assassin had also been able to strike at the brother too? Would his poisoned body be the next to be discovered?

The even voice of Thatcher Colt dispelled my momentary preoccupation with these riddles.

"We are still searching diligently for Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Quires," he stated. "Perhaps before the night is over we shall have some information. Meanwhile we have been going forward on other lines of investigation. One of these was the story told us by Mr. Guy Everett."

"The guy with an accent," rumbled Dougherty vengefully. In common with Inspector Flynn, the District Attorney harbored a deep resentment against the debonair and apparently harmless theater man.

"I am very sorry to say," returned Thatcher Colt, "that the second alibi furnished by Mr. Everett proved to be no more reliable than the first. We have now been able to check, not only the employes but also last night's cash customers. No one at the club remembers seeing him there last night. Yet Guy Everett persists in his story that he did go to the North Star Club and drank puncheons of ale between the time he left Christine and his return to the Axton Club."

"Can he call the name of any person that he saw in the North Star Club last night?" asked Dougherty shrewdly.

"Yes," replied Thatcher Colt promptly. "We tried that dodge on him, and he called the names of three men and two women. Now it is fact that those three men and two women were in the North Star Club last night, and at the hour that Guy Everett named."

"Were they regular patrons?"

"Not all of them. The situation does have its puzzling aspects. We all saw Everett when he came to the pent-house. He may have been drinking. But he was certainly not intoxicated. His memory is perfectly clear as to his movements. He sets that forward as his alibi. But there is no one to substantiate it."

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Stakes All, Refuses Drama Role

I did not wait a second to answer Philip Veritzen's suggestion that I should talk over with my husband his proposal to give me a year's intensive training for theatrical work. There was no use carrying the discussion farther. There was no inducement in the world big enough to lead me even to consider his offer. Besides, I was anxious to get back to the discussion of my play. The dictum which Mr. Veritzen had just finished pronouncing that my fourth act stood up with the others and that the whole thing in his opinion, would be a "knockout," was such a heady draught that I wanted to quaff it further. I felt as if it had just been put to my lips and snatched away again by his substitution of an enthusiastic comment concerning my acting ability.

"I am sorry to be obdurate," I said. "But I must tell you that this is not a matter upon which I could take my husband's advice. I have decided myself that it is out of the question for me even to think of it. But I do wish you to know that I fully appreciate the wonderful opportunity you have offered me. It shall always be one of my most cherished memories."

But Philip Veritzen did not smile. His lips set in a thin, straight line and I realized that my obstinacy had only whetted his determination to have his own way.

MADGE IS DETERMINED

"I can't believe that you realize what you are doing," he said. "It is not every day that I make an offer like this."

I winced as I realized the dilemma which confronted me. If I persisted in thwarting him I knew that he was extremely likely to substitute for the "kicking and screaming act" a curt rejection of the play which meant the gratification of my life's ambition, so long suppressed.

I dallied for a moment with the picture of what accepting his offer would mean to me. Philip Veritzen never does anything by halves. I would have the leading role in the drama I, myself, had written, with the sumptuous settings for which Philip Veritzen is famous. It was a picture calculated to turn the head—of almost any woman.

Then I held up the obverse side of the picture. Accepting his offer would mean a year's absence from my husband and children, for I knew from many tales that Philip Veritzen's intensive training meant giving up every bit of one's time, one's strength and one's individuality to his discipline. It would also mean a permanent estrangement from Dicky. I was sure of that. Such a drastic step upon the part of a wife would probably be resented by any husband except an unusually broad-minded or a superlatively spineless one.

"No!" I came out of my reverie with my determination strengthened. No matter what happens, even if Philip Veritzen threw my play into the wastebasket, and refused to consider it, I must stick to my negative.

"I realize it fully," I told him finally, "and I also realize what an unprecedented honor and opportunity you are offering me. But—I cannot do it."

STANDS BY DECISION

His eyes were suddenly steely, cruel—and I felt a little premonitory shiver go over me at what I was about to hear.

"Suppose," he said slowly, "that I said your play was useless to me unless you, yourself, were in the leading role. Would your answer be the same?"

I was ashamed of the little choke which came in my throat, but which I managed to swallow before I answered him.

"Absolutely the same," I said, steadily.

"And you realize," the steely tones went on relentlessly, "that without personal contract—acquaintance—influence—it is one of the most difficult things in the world to get a Broadway hearing?"

"I am perfectly aware of that fact," I said, steadily.

"And in the face of all this your answer is still No?"

"My answer is still 'No,'" I repeated slowly. "But I cannot believe, Mr. Veritzen, that you would be guilty of applying indirect coercion like that. You are too big a man to stoop to anything so petty."

I looked squarely into his eyes, not troubling to conceal the little gleam of contempt that had come into them. In Katie's parlance, I might as well be "hoong for a beeg sheep as for a leetle lamb," but I felt that my heart was beating in double-quick time as I waited for his answer to my indictment.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

There has been so much corking good talent found and developed among the members of the Junior Komic Club that we should be well represented in the "Pittsburgh on Parade" revue sponsored by the Warner Theaters. Members were notified today about this opportunity and there wasn't a chapter that didn't get from five to 10 applications from members for consideration in the tryouts. Junior Komic Club entertainers should easily walk away with "Pittsburgh on Parade" when it is presented at the Stanley Theater. Now, boys and girls, don't hesitate. If you can sing, dance, play a musical instrument or do impersonations, get your application in right away for the tryouts with the manager of the theater where your chapter meets. Let 'em know that the Junior Komic Club can do big things and do them well.

And speaking of big things, the Junior Komic Club Minstrel show put on at the Etna-Harris Theater today, was the biggest thing that any of the Junior Komic Clubs have offered in the way of special entertainment for the boys and girls. Morty Henderson, manager of the Etna-Harris, who directed the entertainment must have spent long hours with the youngsters teaching them their lines, songs, dances and other bits of acting that these talented youngsters displayed.

IN SHOW CAST

Those children having the principal parts in the Etna-Harris Minstrel Show are:—Bobby Webber, Ruth Leiseder, Babe Zoth, Sis Heffler, Jane Neff, Mary Louise Shields, Dorothy Laeng, Sam Wahres, Dorothy Carrier, Coletta Kinz, Dorothy Hundermank, Florence Holden, Mildred Levack, Jaqueline Carrier, Jerry Weidel, Hugo Puntureri, Jean Guentner, Margaret Cappell, Loretta Elliott, Nelda Hartz, Florence Schor, Ruth Ruff, Margaret Spalick, Dorothy Ann Carrier, Irene Barach, Marie Light, Virginia Swick.

All in all, the children of Millvale, Sharpsburg, Aspinwall and Etna who attended the regular meeting today, saw a great show.

If you are not a member of this club, send your name and address, name of your parents, school you attend, date and year of your birth, to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you.

"Be Kind to Policemen" is the slogan just adopted by Evanston, Ill., in an effort to restore good natured conduct on the part of arresting officers.

Scenes like this will soon be a daily occurrence—

Motor Cop—"Ah, there! Not so fast. Curb, please—if you don't mind!"

Motorist—"You've caught me now. It reminds me of a story...."

(They whisper and laugh.)

Cop—"Seriously, you were going rapidly. That old lady you knocked down is as mad as a wet hen."

Motorist—"Tell her to forget about it."

Cop—"I told her not to be a fuss-cat."

Motorist—"By the way, what is your name?"

Cop—"Just call me Pal."

Motorist—"And you call me 'J. D.' That's what everybody calls me."

Cop—"By the way, 'J. D.,' where did you get that tie? It's becoming."

Motorist—"Here, take it. (Rips off tie.) And can you and the wife and kiddies come over for dinner tonight?"

Cop—"I suppose we can. But I haven't got a thing to wear."

Motorist—"Oh, don't be silly. You look stunning just the way you are."

Cop—"Flatterer."

Motorist—"Six-thirty. Here's the address. We'll sit around and talk over the charge and perhaps make some popcorn."

Cop—"Bye-bye."

Motorist—"Don't forget."

Tax Collections Off

The Chamber of Commerce Is Making a Wise Move—Brief Comment on Local News

Notwithstanding the cut in the city tax rate the burden is still greater than many of the citizens can bear. Tax collections so far this year are $2,266,622 below what they would have been if payments had been made in the same ratio as obtained during the corresponding period last year. A $4,000,000 deficit is foreseen before the end of the year. This critical situation cannot be ignored.

The Chamber of Commerce has made a wise move in calling on civic and business leaders to consider the decline in the city's revenues. It is to be hoped the city administration will be represented at the meeting, and that all elements will co-operate unselfishly in an effort to balance the municipal budget.

That the city should undertake to meet the deficit by increasing the tax rate next year is unthinkable. Real estate cannot endure a heavier load; the current delinquencies prove that. It would be encouraging if other sources of revenue were open, but they are not. Hence there remains no alternative but to reduce municipal expenses.

One way in which municipal expenses may be reduced is by having the state take over welfare work now carried by the city. The state, with other sources of revenue besides the tax on real estate, might well assume part of the unemployment relief activities now conducted locally. The state should at least relieve Pittsburgh of the necessity of issuing the $3,000,000 of bonds authorized at the recent election for the purchase of food, clothing and shelter for the destitute.

The crisis is a fresh reminder of the importance of another special session of the Legislature to deal with economic conditions. Gov. Pinchot's strange silence is disheartening. Is he, or is he not, going to call another session? He half promised that he would. The primary is over. The Supreme Court has upheld the Talbot bill. The need is urgent. Why does he delay?

The crisis revealed by city tax delinquencies emphasizes anew the desirability that the Federal Government move energetically to revive business and put idle men back to work. No better way of accomplishing this can be found than through the issue of $5,000,000,000 of United States Government bonds, the proceeds of which shall be devoted to the construction of public works.

The Variety Club, an organization of theater men, has indorsed the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan plan and asked Pennsylvania senators and congressmen to work for its adoption. Many organizations have thus memorialized Congress; but there are many others that have not yet done so. It is to be hoped that every professional, trade, civic, fraternal, educational and religious body will give its support to this movement.

The Civil Service Commission reports that 15,000 persons have applied to it for jobs as laborers on city projects. There are no jobs available, and none in sight. The Allegheny County Emergency Association and the Allegheny County Agricultural Extension Association have asked farmers in the county if they cannot furnish work to some of the city's unemployed. There is a great deal of idle farm land in the county that might repay tillage.

Idle men who are unable to obtain work as farm hands should at any rate cultivate a garden. Even a plot no larger than 40x40 feet can be made to yield a rich return. Many people in the vicinity of Pittsburgh are already eating lettuce and radishes from their gardens. Fresh vegetables, home grown, will go a long way toward solution of the food problem.

Pittsburgh would be in better position to extricate itself from its perplexities if it had able leadership. With Mayor Charles H. Kline convicted of malfeasance in office and facing the possibility of a prison sentence, nothing can be expected of him. He is too much absorbed in his own troubles to give much thought to Pittsburgh's affairs. Kline should resign.

Under the leadership of Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit, 18 Michigan mayors met in Detroit Wednesday to protest against the inaction of state and federal governments on unemployment relief. They called for the immediate passage by Congress of the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan legislation. These Michigan municipal executives have set a good example for Pennsylvania mayors.

The mayors of 66 of the largest cities have been invited to attend a national conference to demand congressional action on the $5,000,000,000 loan plan. The invitation was scarcely issued before Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago, had eagerly accepted it. We trust Pittsburgh will be represented at the conference. We doubt if any city needs government help much more badly than Pittsburgh.

Prohibition is second only to business conditions as a topic of public interest. The Eighteenth Amendment was dealt a few blows in Pittsburgh this week by the women who are crusading for its repeal. The decision of the Chamber of Commerce to conduct a referendum of its members on the prohibition question is also significant. It bodes ill for the mischief-making amendment.

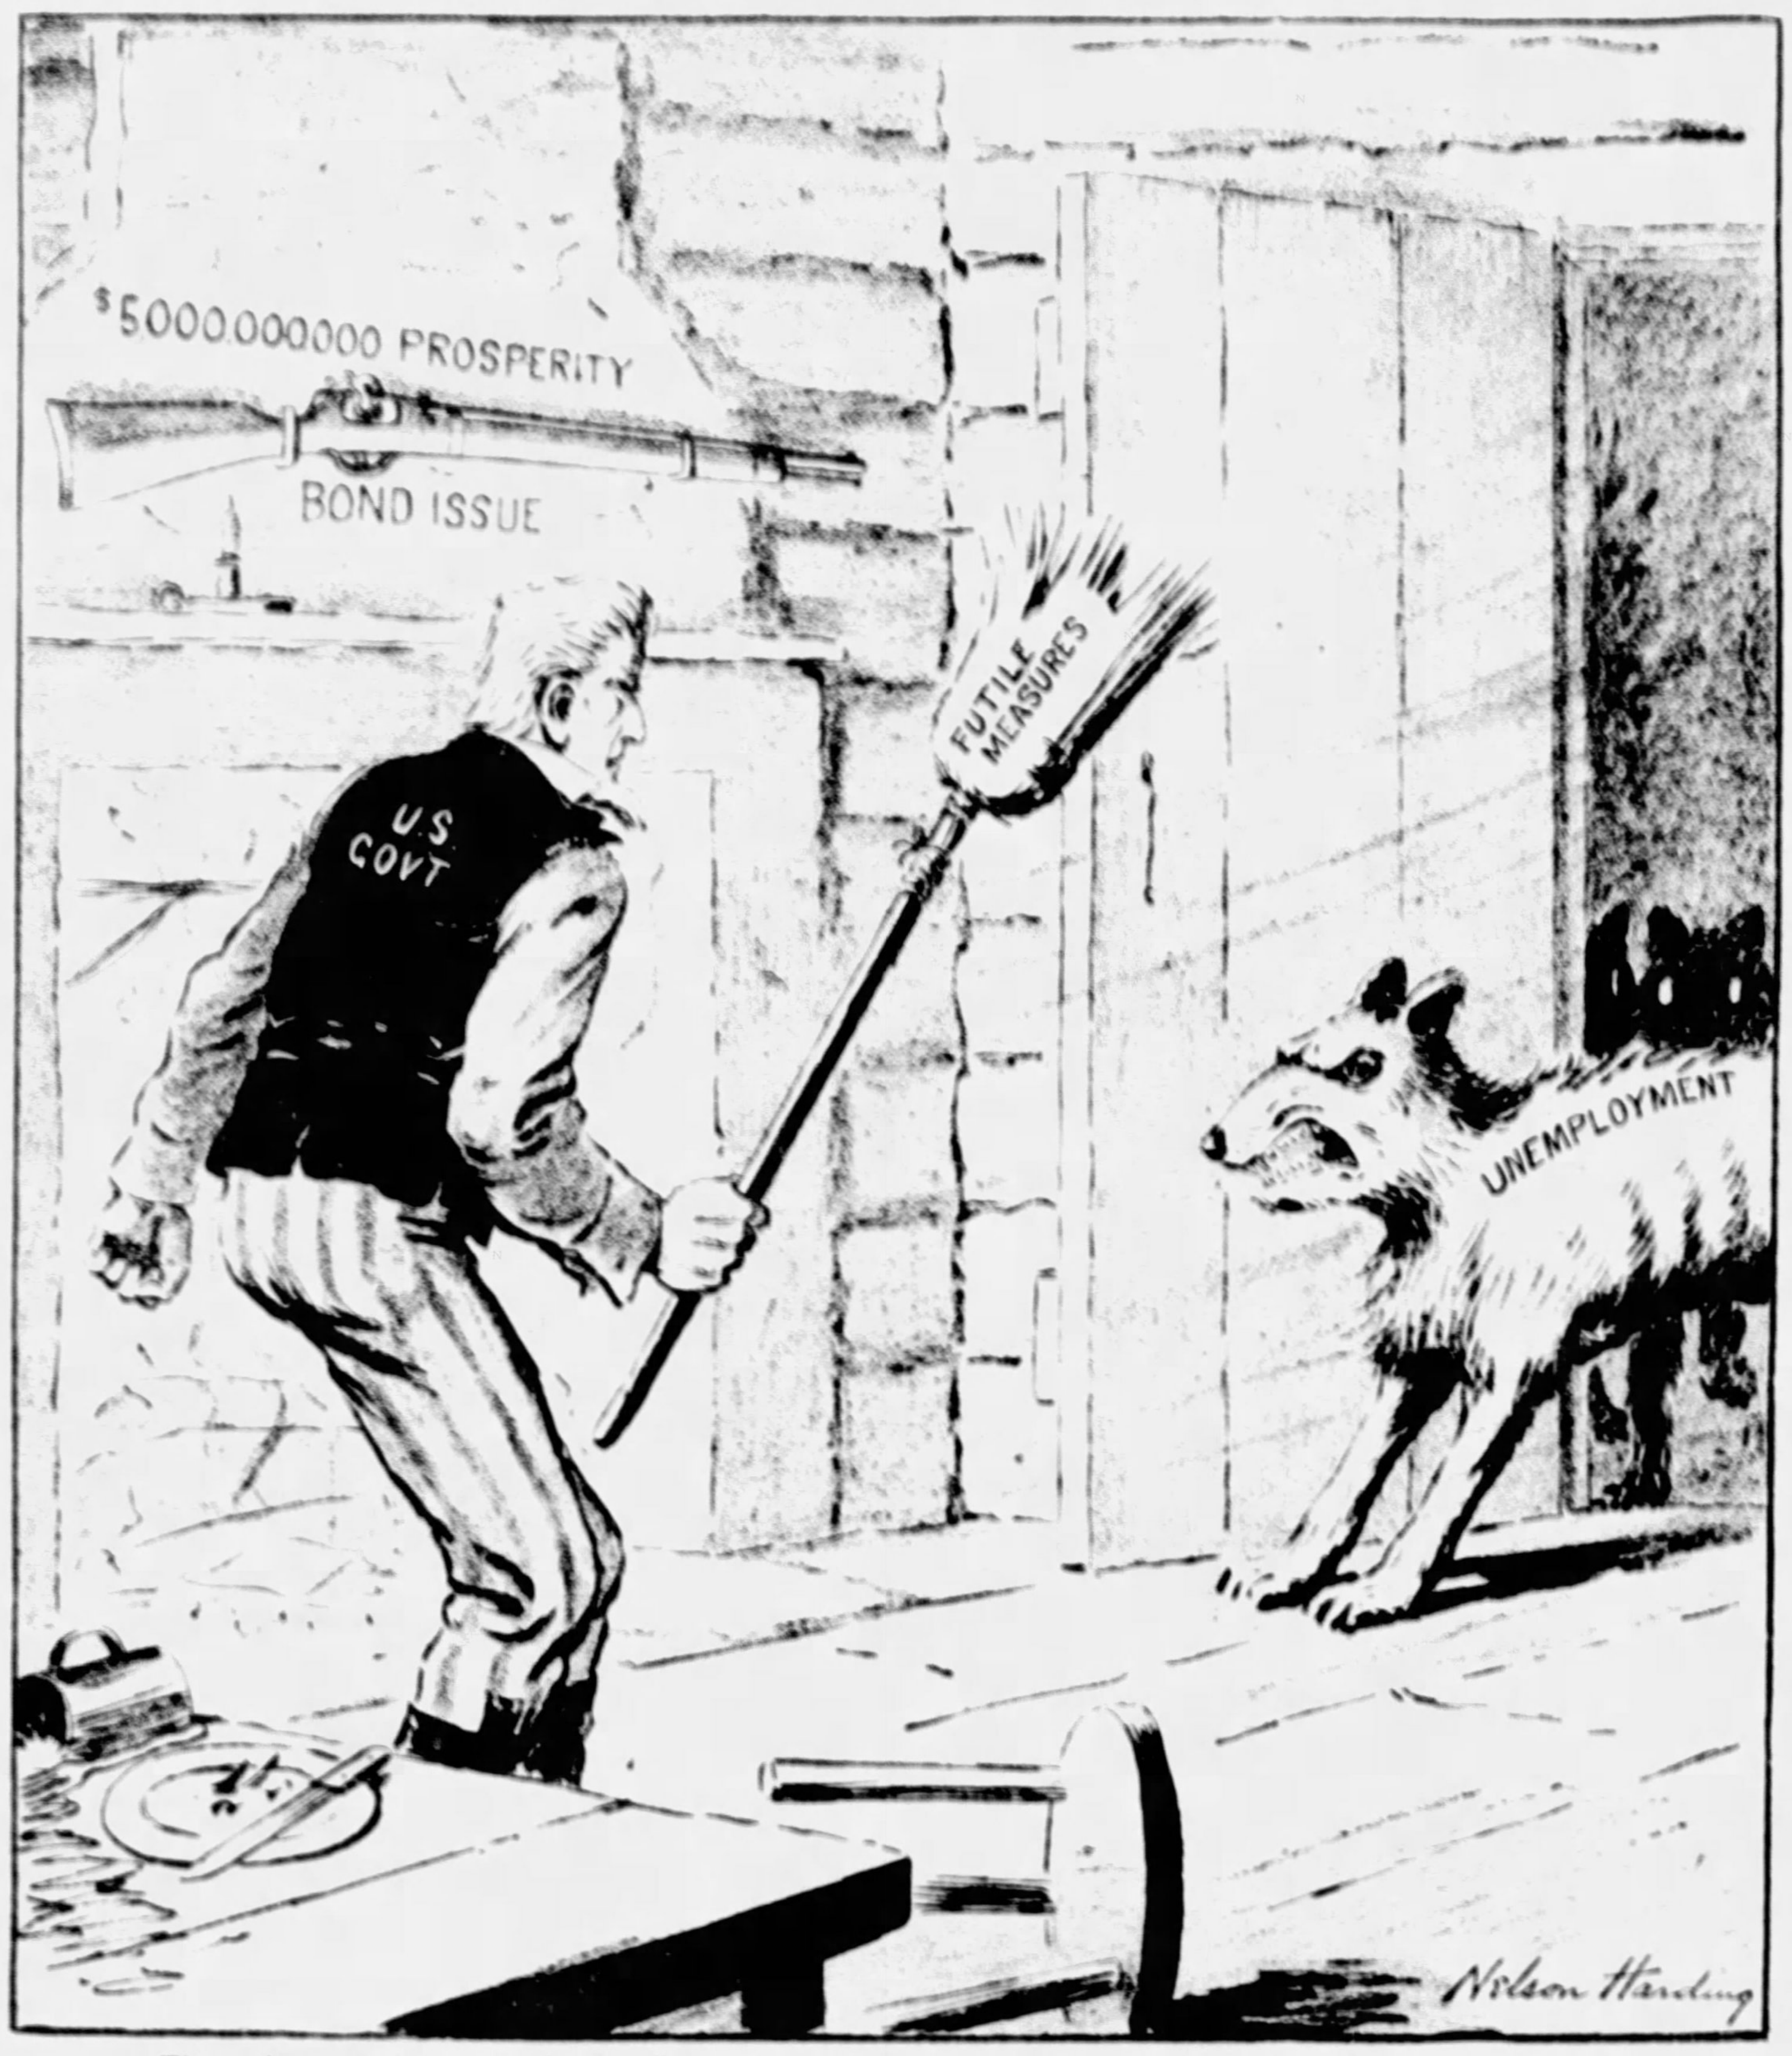
The Allied Forces for Prohibition held a rally in Pittsburgh on Wednesday and Thursday, but it is doubtful if their campaign will stem the rising tide of sentiment in favor of repeal. At a big meeting in Harrisburg, Thursday, a plea was made for the retention of a "closed" Sunday in Pennsylvania; but it is doubtful if that reactionary plea will be successful, either.

Abolition of the Blue Law is strongly desired by many Pennsylvanians, and there is a good chance that the Legislature at its next session will grant the desire. There is a timely article on the Blue Laws in the American Weekly to be issued tomorrow as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. The ancient ban on innocent Sunday amusements is a relic of barbarism and bigotry.

The Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will also deserve your attention. It will present, among other things, an unusual view of the Cathedral of Learning of the University of Pittsburgh, a page of pictures of interesting babies, old-time scenes in Pittsburgh, a large photograph of the senior class of Dormont High School, another of Carnegie Tech girls playing football, and pictures of bathing beauties.

Get Your Gun! -:- -:-

By Nelson Harding



The wolf we said was "at the door"
Is now within the room,
And Uncle Sam cannot expel the beast
By brandishing a broom.

But on the wall a loaded gun
Is hanging, close at hand,
And why this weapon is not used
We cannot understand.

A man's idea of a "bad memory" is the kind that keeps him from forgetting a duty or a woman that he's TRYING to forget.

Even Solomon must have needed all his wisdom, when it came to convincing each of his wives that the other 699 were all "just good little pals."

I CAN'T FORGET A THING!

Many a man who has half a dozen glowing letters of recommendation for steadiness and reliability from big business firms couldn't get one from his private secretary.

Too much independence and individualism are as bad as too much propinquity. A modern husband can be so carefree and unfettered that he almost forgets that he has a home until it comes time to pay the rent.

Second marriages, like your second trip abroad, may lack the thrill of novelty, but they are usually a lot more comfortable because you know so much better how to prepare for all the little surprises and emergencies.

The nudist fad will never become a real menace, as long as a woman's chief excitement in life consists in beating all the other women to the newest mode.

Marriage is a sacrificial altar, where you both lay down your petty selfishness and most of your ego. Otherwise, it becomes a life-long debating contest or turns out to be a prize-ring.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 21.—I haven't enough distractions. No indeedy. I must glance out the window after sitting here a half hour without the faintest rustle of an idea, and what do I see? O, nothing except a window cleaner working without a strap on the eleventh floor across the way.

If he thinks he was responsible for my sudden yell, he's silly. I often let go a Canadian moose call that way. Just outdoorsey. A sight such as that never frightens me. Notice how I flirt back my hair and go right on writing. Tip-tap, tip-tap.

He knows his job. I'll show my public I know mine. Why should the petty affairs of a window cleaner intrude? The trouble with so many writers is they have not mastered the art of concentration. Keep the mind off of anything calculated to annoy.

Do that and drink plenty of spring water. Try to think of other things. I'll ring for what's-his-name to bring me the morning papers. Let's see. What's important in the news of the day? Here is an interview with Yehudi Menhuin, the celebrated violinist.

He says: "I have no good spiccato. I have no staccato. I play my double stops out of tune, my vibrato is bad and my trills terrible." I know so little about violining, but it wouldn't surprise me if the whole back of his fiddle might be missing.

Pardon while I peep at soandso. He's weary of his labors. A good sick spell wouldn't hurt him. He's now sitting on the sill edge. Miss Eppis, take this letter: "Dear sir." Rub that out. Don't make it so polite. Why should I show him consideration. Start it: "Listen. "Has it ever occurred that your method it still sitting . . ." Never mind. He's standing up again. Awk! He's leaning far out and gazing into the traffic below. That's one way of reaching the street level, but I'm old-fashioned. I'll take an elevator.

* * *

Something intimate about the ascenseur, as we Gallics say. Now and then you find yourself cooped up for 50 floors or so with a stunner. Once I stood right next to Charles Evans Hughes in Kansas City. Remember Charlie? And then there was the time in the Eiffel Tower lift I was no farther away than this from Mistinguett. Yessir. I've had my ups and downs. Title for a magazine piece: "Memoirs of an Elevator Fiend."

* * *

Speaking of ups and downs, there is the depression on the down side. But it's not so bad. Read what Napoleon wrote on the very eve of the French revolution in 1316: "Famine rages throughout the British Isles. Men are exhuming corpses to pacify ragings of hunger. Destitution is so terrible that women destroyed and ate their offspring." I'm glad I had my breakfast. But a couple of more looks at whiffenpoof, the ape man across the way, and I'll have to order another. Every time I look up from the typewriter my head swims. If anyone catches a floating head size 7⅞, please send it back. No. 290 Park, up four flights, ring Gilhooley's bell.

* * *

This far anyway without a complete collapse. And I'm getting so I can look up, sweep the horizon and scarcely notice young squirrel on yon sill. Horizon sweeping! There's a darb in careers. Here is what you do! Twirl about in your swivel chair. And Presto, you sweep the horizon. Tomorrow: Lessons in paper tearing.

* * *

Notice how my mind is clearing up. I'm within two inches of being rational again. I suppose by this time the window sill is empty. Anyway, I'm going to see how the horizon looks after its sweeping. Great Balls of Fire, there he is again on an eighteenth floor sill. Anyone holding the lucky number may now claim me.

-:- LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

Lights blazed through the palace. Jewels glittered. Fountains splashed their irridescent spray. Across the splendid courtyard thronged soldiers in shining armor, courtiers in trailing velvet, slaves whose naked flesh was gleaming bronze. In the scented harem the women danced, and beyond the palace steps proud Israel swept by, insolent in her riches.

But King David sat alone, apart in a small upper room, sick at heart. What was it worth, all this pomp and play-acting? What did it mean to a discouraged soul?

It meant nothing. Whether one lived in a palace or in a mud hut, life at times became a desert—a gray desolation like that which he could glimpse beyond the city wall. Flat days, flat nights, and man, a weak, futile creature plodding across the hopeless waste of ignorance and fear.

Weary, the old king looked across the waste of land, the waste of years.

Suddenly, on the far rim of the desert, something burned for an instant like a torch. A ray of setting sun touching one high peak, that was all. But, at that spark, joy flared in David's heart. The gray head lifted. The dimming eyes shone. Softly he began to chant.

"I WILL LIFT UP MINE EYES UNTO THE HILLS

"FROM WHENCE COMETH MY HELP!"

(For there are hills! Life is not only desert, desolate, sad sands of weariness, seared sands of sin. Above the sands there rise the shining heights of faith, purity, honesty, courage, love. These, too, are part of human life, and I will lift my eyes to those free heights when my weak feet seem sinking in the sands.)

"MY HELP COMETH FROM THE LORD WHICH MADE HEAVEN AND EARTH!"

(I'm not forsaken! I am not alone! The God who made me from the faulty dust, placed in that dust a spark of His own flame. And so, though I am dirt, I, too, am God! He cannot fail me who am part of Him.)

"HE WILL NOT SUFFER THY FOOT TO BE MOVED."

(I slip; I fall; and yet I'm fixed as firmly in God's plan as any wheeling star. Each slip, each fall, is but a part of life. The stars go wheeling round their central sun. My life revolves around the heart of God.)

"HE THAT KEEPETH THEE WILL NOT SLUMBER. BEHOLD, HE THAT KEEPETH ISRAEL SHALL NEITHER SLUMBER NOR SLEEP. THE LORD IS THY KEEPER."

(I sleep. I falter, crumble, like the earth from which I'm made. But always, deep within me, something holds, some pride and purpose, greater than my acts. The God within me does not slip nor sleep.)

"THE LORD IS THY SHADE UPON THY RIGHT HAND. THE SUN SHALL NOT SMITE THEE BY DAY, NOR THE MOON BY NIGHT. THE LORD SHALL PRESERVE THEE FROM ALL EVIL. HE SHALL PRESERVE THY SOUL."

(Often I wonder if it's all worth while—this muddled thing I call my human life. Why was I made, and whither do I go? What does it matter—this brief, yearning dream that seems to end so surely at the grave? Sometimes I ask these questions of myself, but find no answer in my narrow brain. Then, from the silence, the old answer comes. "Look all around you. See what God has made. Ten million years to shape one little flower. How many more to shape one human soul? Will God, who toiled for ages on one flower, let all His work be wasted on a soul? Be still and trust Him. He has brought you far. The God who made you will not fail you now.)

"THE LORD SHALL PRESERVE THY GOING OUT AND THY COMING IN, FROM THIS TIME FORTH, AND EVEN FOREVERMORE."

(A going and a coming, that is life. Whate'r befalls me, whether shame or grief, I shall go on through endless happenings, learning and living, with His hand on mine.)

In the courtyards the bugles called. In the harems the women danced. Huzzahs echoed as King David left his room and walked by kneeling multitudes.

But now his eyes were neither eager, nor angry, nor afraid. He was at peace. It did not matter. None of these outer things mattered.

He had lifted his eyes above all that, up to the high places—up to God.

Secretary Wilbur and Marie Antoinette

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The propagandists for the transfer to our backs of the debts of the 14 nations who "hired the money" from us, almost succeeded in creating the impression that the railroad brotherhoods had urged the transfer of the debts. This week the representatives of six of the brotherhoods have informed the President that their members are opposed to the plan of the propagandists. They say:

"We feel it would shift an additional burden to the American taxpayer and American industry, thus retarding economic recovery."

They should not only feel, but know. When we loaned the money, we borrowed it to loan, and issued bonds. To get this money to loan, we paid a higher interest than we exacted from the nations to whom we loaned it in turn. It was not money magically plucked from the air.

We must pay the interest on the bonds we issued to get the money to loan to Europe, and we must redeem the bonds. If the nations that got the loans will not pay, then we must tax our own people to get the money to pay to our own government's creditors.

All the war debts have to be raised by taxation. The nations that borrowed and used the money we loaned can only pay back by taxing their own people. It is suggested that this is a hardship upon these other nations. But if they refuse to pay, then we must pay for all of them on the bonds we issued by taxing the American people. It is a question of who is to be taxed—the American people who loaned the money or the nations that borrowed and used the money.

High Taxes Will Retard Economic Recovery

Just now every one is staggered by the extraordinary taxes being levied in this country to meet the enormous deficit in the treasury. We are constantly warned that these high taxes, now necessary, will retard economic recovery by putting too much of a taxburden on business.

And yet, extraordinary as these taxes are, in figuring the amount of revenue we have to raise, we have counted on the payments from Europe—about a quarter of a billion. That is in our estimate. England has balanced her budget by not including payments to us on the loan as necessary.

If the other countries are to balance their budget easier by refusing to pay us, then to balance our budget we must add a quarter of a billion to the taxes we must raise.

If economic recovery is retarded by the taxes necessary without this additional obligation, then the additional obligation would seem to retard our economic recovery just that much more.

A Truthful Statement

The talk of wiping the slate clear of war debts is dishonest talk. No one contemplates such a thing. A truthful statement would be that it is proposed to wipe out the war debts of the nations that borrowed our money, by having our taxpayers assume the war debts of them all.

The wiping of the slate clean of war debts cannot be accomplished by the repudiation of the debts of the debtor nations; to wipe the slate clean we would have to repudiate our own war debts to our own people. Instead of that, it is proposed to increase the scribbling on our own slate by billions of dollars.

Congress Performed Its Duty

In his otherwise sound speech, Mr. Smith takes the position that the President should be left free to handle these debts as he sees fit. He finds fault with the rider to the moratorium in which Congress correctly states the position of the American people.

There is nothing more axiomatic in our governmental theory or system than that the power of taxation must rest with the legislative, and not the executive branch of the government. If the forgiving of the debts means anything it means adding enormously to the taxing of the people. If we give the President unlimited power to deal with the debts, regardless of the legislative branch of the government which has the power of the purse, then the executive can add billions to our taxes as surely as though he legislated on the subject. If there is one subject on which Congress has a right to speak it is on any subject which touches the taxes on the people. Congress acted within its constitutional sphere and performed its duty.

Millions of Americans In Desperate Straits

There are millions of Americans in desperate straits today who must observe with curiosity and amazement the constant propaganda for helping Europe, and the ultra-conservatism on helping American men, women and children who are in abject want because of unemployment. The Democratic subcommittee, dealing with unemployment relief in the Senate, appears to be having some difficulty in reaching the decision to do something in the way of a prosperity loan.

Some are said to want to fall in with the Hoover "plan," which is a plan to prevent anything effective. If the Democrats in the Senate fail to get behind a real prosperity loan of the type proposed by Senator Wagner, they not only fail in their duty to humanity, but they will convince the millions of victims of the stupid blundering of statesmanship and greed, that nothing in the way of help or comfort can be expected from our government.

How easy it was to get the $2,000,000,000 to loan to private business! How nimbly they all danced in line! "The welfare of the country" they said. And so it was. But how strange that the proposal to float a loan to save the lives of women and children and to put men to work must be debated and debated and whittled down to nothing.

If any one imagines it is statesmanship or patriotic to push the growing army of the unemployed into a fourth consecutive winter of human misery they are likely to learn better in the reaction when winter comes.

Children of the Jobless Are 'Profiting'

Meanwhile the administration of Mr. Hoover, speaking through Secretary Wilbur, has the cruelty and impudence to declare to a national conference of social workers who are striving hopelessly to prevent starvation without federal aid, or even comfort, that the children of the jobless who are hungry and anemic and starving are "profiting."

It is such a rare contribution to the humane literature of the administration that we set it forth:

"I think that unless we descend to a level far beyond anything that we at present have known our children are apt to profit rather than suffer from what is going on."

How tricky of the block-aiders, going from door to door begging the dimes and dollars of the poor "to prevent the suffering and starvation of children," not to explain this to us.

Little wonder that the President's spokesman was greeted with cries of "Shame!" Little wonder that one of the social workers said to the Presidential messenger:

"Such smug complacency on the part of a prominent member of the administration is positively disgraceful when one realizes what conditions really are."

One must go back to Marie Antoinette's comment that if the poor did not have bread they should eat cake, or to the Duke of York's statement, during the Irish famine of more than a century ago, that if the people were resourceful they could make a nutritious food from the dried leaves of the forests, to find anything quite so disgraceful, coming from the spokesman of a civilized government.
